President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

With 55 per cent of precincts in Illinois counted, Ford had 219,688 or 60 per cent of the vote to Ronald Reagan's 45,604 or 39 per cent. Incomplete tallies showed Ford winning in all of the five townships in the Northwest suburbs, what was expected to be, a Reagan stronghold in Illinois and home of many of his campaign managers.

In the Democratic "beauty contest," Carter was the big winner, capturing his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, showed a poor third and said while he will remain in some upcoming primaries he said he considered himself out of the race.

With 55 per cent of state precincts in, Carter had 346,848 or 48 per cent of the votes, Wallace had 190,767 votes or 27 per cent, Shriver had 124,060 votes or 17 per cent and Fred Harris had 58,212 votes or 8 per cent.

With most votes counted, Carter was winning big in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Figures for Elk Grove, Maine and Wheeling townships were unavailable.

In the race for convention delegates with 19 per cent of precincts reported, Ford had won 58 delegates of the 96 Republican delegates and Reagan 12. Carter won 53 of the 155 Democratic delegates, Wallace 6.

Voters picked 72 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name. The apparent purpose is to enable the organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation for bargaining.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the race. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at midnight were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine

and Elk Grove townships and leading 2 to 1 in Wheeling Township with most votes counted. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten. R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

by JACK PENCHOFF

and
KURT BAER

Michael Howlett, the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Dan Walker, said early today he will go to work to "unite all the people in Illinois."

In a statement at 1 a.m. to a crowd of his supporters at the Bismark Hotel, in Chicago, he said his first job will be to "unite the Democratic party in Illinois."

Walker, who refused to concede defeat before going to bed at midnight, had earlier said he would support Howlett in November if he won the primary.

With 57 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker early Wednesday by more than 96,000 votes.

Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.

Walker officials at campaign headquarters announced their candidates would not have statements until later today.

"We're still picking up votes downstate. We've told our people to stay in the precincts," a Walker spokesman said.

"Mr. Howlett puts a great premium on courtesy. The courteous thing to do is wait for the other man to concede," a Howlett spokesman said. "If the other guy gets unreasonable, however, then we'll go ahead."

In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Wheeling and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.

Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comm. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comm. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again.

"Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes, things wouldn't be so bad.'"

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

On Wheeling Twp. vote

Schlickman wins, Pullen leading

by BILL HILL
and TOM WELLMAN

Incumbent State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights gained Republican renomination last night in the Fourth Legislative District and it appears his running mate will be Penny Pullen of Park Ridge.

With approximately two-thirds of the votes tallied, Schlickman had gained 8,143 to lead the ticket.

In a narrow race for the second spot, Pullen pulled ahead of Roy H. Bergquist of Niles, 5,684 to 4,741. However, the majority of votes in Niles Township had not been reported.

Schlickman, who has served six terms in the Illinois General Assembly, gained renomination with a strong showing in his native Wheeling Township.

With approximately 36 of 47 precincts reporting, Schlickman had rolled up 3,491 votes, compared to 962 for Bergquist and 961 for Pullen.

Schlickman said he was especially pleased by the victory in his home township.

"Wheeling Township carried me magnificently. I wish there were more townships like Wheeling."

He added: "I spent less mental effort on this one and relied more on the efforts and actions of others. I would like to have run stronger in Maine Township. That was a disappointment. It's an area I will be concentrating on in the general election."

In Maine Township, with approximately 50 per cent of the votes tallied, Pullen had 2,357 votes, 400 more than Schlickman and 450 votes ahead of Bergquist.

Only scattered returns from six of 50 precincts in Niles Township were available, and they showed Bergquist with 163 votes and Pullen with 105.

Pullen, who lives in Park Ridge and has served as a legislative assistant to the late State Rep. Robert Juckett, said she was pleased with her strong showing in Maine Township.

"I'm better organized than anyone else," she said. "If this keeps up, we'll be fine."

Running behind the three top vote-getters were Anne E. Marzullo of Niles, with 2,015 votes, and Gerald M. Rubin of Skokie, with 1,000 votes.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,083 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,989 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomingdale Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomingdale and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane county reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,496.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid votes last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

IT WAS EUGENE Schlickman's night in the Fourth District race. The long-term state legislator swamped his four opponents and will be listed first on the general election ballot in November.

Young triumphs in 10th District

by GERRY KERN
LINDA PUNCH
and
JOE FRANZ

Republican Samuel H. Young Tuesday was the apparent victor in the 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading a three-man field with about 48 per cent of the vote.

With 334 of 529 precincts reporting, Young, a 53-year-old Glenview attorney, turned back challenges from Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod for the right to face Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Young was leading with 14,248 votes to 11,083 for Hales, a Winnetka attorney. Nimrod, a Glenview resident, was trailing badly with 4,315 votes. The vote totals gave Young 48.1 per cent to Hales 37.4 and Nimrod's 14.6.

THE 10TH CONGRESSIONAL district reaches from Des Plaines to the lakeshore, and includes Evanston, New Trier, Northfield, Niles and Maine townships.

Obviously pleased by the election results, Young called for Republicans to close ranks behind him to defeat Mikva.

"I want to extend a hearty welcome to Dan Hales and John Nimrod and their supporters to join the Young campaign for a unified and enthusiastic march to a November 2 Republican victory," Young said in his victory speech. "We intend to field a well-organized effort to elect a congressman the 10th District can believe in."

Although the vote tallies were incomplete, Hales conceded the election and promised to support Young in his efforts to unseat Mikva.

"While the results could turn around, such a reversal would be unlikely," Hales said. "When I started this campaign I had the goal of getting Mikva out of office. I haven't lost sight of that goal. I will work for Mr. Young in that manner."

Nimrod showed up at Young's campaign headquarters at the Glenview Country House Restaurant, Glenview, to congratulate the apparent winner.

"You've got a big job ahead of you," Nimrod said. "I'll help you. You know that."

Young's apparent primary victory gives him the chance to reclaim the seat he lost to Mikva in 1974. It will be the third consecutive election since 1972 that Young and Mikva, a liberal Democrat, have appeared opposite one another on the ballot. Mikva was unopposed in Tuesday's primary.

540 complaints reported of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with

LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Bomb derails 2nd London subway train

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb exploded on a subway train Tuesday shortly after the passengers had left it at north London's Wood Green station, Scotland Yard reported.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said one man was injured by flying glass. The bomb exploded just as the train was pulling away from the station into the tunnel. The blast derailed the train.

The explosion came about 36 hours after another bomb ripped through a subway train outside east London's West Ham station. That blast, believed to have been a premature explosion, injured seven persons.

Police searched east London for an IRA bomb factory Tuesday and warned commuters they are frontline targets of the IRA's renewed bomb war in Britain.

Antiterrorist squad detectives guarded the hospital bed of a suspected IRA gunman who shot and killed one man and wounded another after a bomb he was carrying exploded prematurely in a subway train Monday.

Scotland Yard said they had identified the critically injured gunman as Vincent Kelly, 36, a native of Castlefin, County Donegal in the Irish republic but who has lived in Britain since 1971.

The explosion itself injured seven passengers and the gunman in a coach of the metropolitan line subway train as it pulled out of a West Ham station in east London.

Kelly started shooting at pursuers, killing the West Indian motorman, as he fled the train with blood streaming from wounds of his face caused by the blast.

Shouting "You English bastards!" he turned the gun on himself and fired as police closed in.

The police hunt for the bomb factory centered on east London Tuesday. It was the 13th bomb attempt in Britain since the death of IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg in a British jail last month. The IRA swore to revenge his death and last weekend in Dublin issued a warning to the British people it was going to attack indiscriminately.

Bombings blamed on the IRA's campaign to force British troops out of Northern Ireland have taken more than 60 lives and injured some 700 since the attacks spread to England in 1972.

Commander Roy. Habershon, head of Scotland Yard's antiterrorist squad, warned the public that the IRA now considered them a legitimate, front-line target.

"The traveling public have got to act as their own security officers," he said. "They must learn to protect themselves and watch out for anything suspicious."

Britain stunned as Wilson announces his resignation

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced his resignation to a stunned Britain Tuesday and his ruling Labor Party said it will move swiftly to choose a successor.

Cledwyn Hughes, chairman of the 315 Labor Party members of Parliament, said they will start voting for a new leader Monday and the result of the first ballot will be announced Thursday of next week.

Under Labor Party rules each Laborite member of Parliament casts one vote in a secret ballot for the party leader. To win election a candidate must win more than 50 per cent of votes.

Opposition Conservative politicians called immediately for a general election, saying the resignation showed the Labor Party was unable to run the country.

Wilson, 60, who has been Prime Minister eight of the past 12 years and run the nation longer than anyone in this century, said it was a sad moment but he had had enough.

Wilson first told his decision to Queen Elizabeth, then to his cabinet and then, in a five-page statement listing his career and achievements, to a shocked British public.

In the statement Wilson said he had vowed two years ago to quit in two years and had informed the Queen of the exact date on Dec. 9.

"I'm not happy to go," he told a news conference. "It is a sad moment but there is a certain relief that the burden is off one's shoulders, a seven-day-a-week burden."

"In 31 years in Parliament," his statement said, "I have been on one or other front bench for nearly 30 years. Almost 11½ years of that were in the cabinet. No one should ask for more."

"My period as Prime Minister has been longer than that of any of my peacetime predecessors in this century," the statement said. "The cabinet accepted it with regret."

Wilson said he would remain in office until the 317 Labor Members of Parliament elect a new party leader to replace him and called a meeting to begin the process of nominating and electing a successor. An aide said it could take two weeks.

The process will not require a general election because it was the party and not Wilson that was elected to power in October, 1974.

Wilson refused to endorse a candidate, but said he would support whomever is chosen.

Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, a moderate like Wilson, became the immediate betting favorite at 5-4. Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey has the bookmakers' next choice at 7-4, followed by Home Secretary Roy Jenkins and Energy Secretary Tony Wedgwood Benn.

Wilson said he would have resigned last September had it not been for his determination to wrest Britain out of its economic crisis.

"Now," he said, "The economy is beginning to revive."

There was no mention of the left-wing revolt within the Labor Party that last week helped defeat Wilson's plan to slash public spending as part of his anti-inflation program.

The defeat led to a parliamentary vote of confidence in the Wilson leadership, won by an 18-vote margin, but it was a clear indication that the Prime Minister's ability to hold the party together was in question.

The opposition Conservative Party predicts a parliamentary general election within six months to enable Wilson's successor — whomever he may be — to seek a national mandate.

For Great Britain, the main issue is whether a new Labor prime minister will carry on the tough counter-inflation policies needed to pull it out of its worst economic crisis since the great depression.

HAROLD WILSON waves to a crowd in Downing Street Tuesday as news of his resignation became known. His ruling Labor party said it would move swiftly to choose a successor.

Patty called 'strong willed' by dad

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Randolph Hearst went to the witness stand at his daughter's bank robbery trial Tuesday and testified that he knew her as a bright, pretty and strong willed girl.

Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner newspaper, was called as a defense rebuttal witness by attorneys for his daughter, Patricia, who is charged with the robbery of a bank after being kidnapped by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

Asked by attorney F. Lee Bailey what kind of girl his daughter was, Hearst replied:

"She was a very bright girl, pretty, strong willed, fun to be with."

He said he had seen no signs in her behavior that would lead him to agree with a previous witness, psychiatrist Harry Kozol, who had said Miss Hearst was a "spiritual sister of the SLA" long before her kidnapping.

The father testified that he had met in January with Dr. Joel Fort, one of two government psychiatric witnesses, and Fort had brought up the point that a public trial would be a bad idea because Miss Hearst was run down and depressed. Hearst said Fort suggested he familiarize himself with what he took to mean "plea bargaining."

On cross examination U.S. Attorney James L. Browning asked Hearst if Fort had said anything about trying to "fix" the trial.

"I wouldn't say he was trying to fix it," Hearst replied.

Earlier Miss Hearst's best chum from childhood testified the defendant told her the SLA tapes on which her voice was heard were staged, "like, it wasn't me."

Patricia Tobin, who has known the bank robbery defendant since the fourth grade, was called as one of the closing defense witnesses in Miss Hearst's bank robbery trial and the two young women exchanged broad smiles across the courtroom.

Miss Tobin, also 22, is the daughter of Michael Tobin, president of the Hibernia Bank, one of whose branches was held up by Miss Hearst and the SLA.

Miss Tobin visited Miss Hearst in the San Mateo County jail three days after her arrest last Sept. 15 and their conversation was recorded by telephone as they spoke by telephone with a glass panel between them.

A jail authority told her the conversation had not been recorded since the equipment had broken down, Miss Tobin said, and later when she heard it played she realized that considerable portions of it had been "edited."

One of the deletions in the recording of the jail conversation, Miss Tobin said, referred to the tapes in which Miss Hearst proclaimed she had joined the terrorist group and robbed the bank voluntarily.

Miss Tobin said the recording of their conversation had left out words to the effect that Miss Hearst said the tapes were staged — "you should disregard those tapes. Like, it wasn't me."

Miss Hearst seemed dazed, her speech slow, not the same person she had known over the years, Miss Tobin said.

"There was no animation, no spontaneity. She looked terrible."

The witness acknowledged that Miss Hearst told her that she wanted to make a statement about "revolutionary feminism" and that "my politics are real different from way back then."

Defense lawyer Albert Johnson asked how the words were spoken.

"She just droned them out," Miss Tobin said.

She said the recording had also deleted Miss Hearst's words that "these people are so crazy and weird."

Johnson asked her if she agreed with the assessment of government psychiatrist Dr. Harry L. Kozol that shortly before her kidnapping Miss Hearst was "a rebel in search of a cause."

"That is totally false," Miss Tobin said.

Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey spent the better part of the morning session attempting to discredit Dr. Joel Fort, one of the two government psychiatric witnesses who gave the opinion that Miss Hearst joined the SLA and the bank robbery of her own free will.

will be the springboard to success Nov. 2 and we're going to make it."

Ogilvie told workers:

"We've gotten our marching orders and it's on to the convention. We did it in the primaries and we'll do it in the fall. Ford's our President and we'll keep him in the White House."

BOTH OGILVIE and Sen. Charles Percy said Reagan was good for the Ford campaign because of the competition.

"I think the win is due to the support the people obviously have for the president," Percy said. "They recognize his strength as a leader in economic recovery and a basic belief that he is a decent, honest man. I think that he is going to help the Republican Party put Watergate behind us."

Percy also predicted a Ford-Rockefeller ticket in November.

Things were quiet at Reagan headquarters at the O'Hare Marriott where the crowd was small. U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, Reagan's Illinois campaign chairman, called the primary a victory for Reagan.

He said support for Reagan in Illinois had picked up about 7 per cent in the last five days and that "Reagan's message was finally getting around." He said Reagan was looking to primaries in California and Texas where he expects to do well.

"Our hope is to deny Ford the first ballot at the convention and we're looking for defections if Ford doesn't win that first ballot," Crane said. "Ford's supporters wouldn't find it difficult to support Ronald Reagan."

CRANE SAID Reagan's recent appearances in Illinois garnered support for the former governor but that more appearances might have gotten him a larger vote. He also said that while the campaign spent about $700,000 in Illinois, he wondered if it should have spent more.

"I wish we would have had another week," Crane said. "If we had we might have had a real horse race."

Donald Tetzlaff, leader of the Independent Conservative Party in the 12th Congressional District, blamed the poor showing for Reagan in Wheeling Township on a crossover by traditional Republicans to Democratic ballots.

Carter was jubilant with his victory. "I am very pleased," he said. "I did not expect to win that big."

Wallace, however, was not a gracious loser and called Carter "just a wamed-over McGovern." He criticized Carter for allegedly campaigning on Wallace's coattails while running for governor of Georgia but shunning him in the 1976 presidential race.

Report Princess Margaret, Lord Snowdon to separate

Princess Margaret of England and her husband Lord Snowdon, are about to separate, the Daily Express newspaper said Tuesday night.

The Queen is believed to have given consent for Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon to separate," the newspaper said. An announcement from Buckingham Palace is said to be imminent.

Astronaut Eugene Cernan, last American to walk on the moon before the lunar shots were stopped, said he is retiring and will leave the National Aeronautics and Space Administration July 11.

Charles Olson said his former boss, Richard Nixon, is a national resource going to waste. Olson told the San Diego Union he thinks of Nixon

"as a kind of elder statesmen, private citizen and troubleshooter in foreign affairs." He said, "We should thank God we have someone like him, despite Watergate. Colson, one of Nixon's former top aides, spent seven months in jail after pleading guilty to interfering with the defense of Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the Pentagon papers."

A San Antonio, Tex. nightclub owner, fighting the city's "nude ordinance" says watching exotic dancers is an educational experience that improves his customers' minds and makes their marriages happier. Joe Cook said in his suit against the ordinance that "nudity and sexual matters are displayed in the philosophy of art and beauty, and not a social disgrace or taboo."

Sandra Good, Susan Murphy found guilty

Manson cultists Sandra Good and Susan Murphy were found guilty Tuesday of conspiring to mail 171 death threat letters to business executives they accused of polluting the environment. The seven-woman, five-man jury returned the verdict after deliberating for only 1½ hours. Earlier Miss Good told the court that thousands will die to preserve the environment. She said: "It won't be murder... it will be torture. It will be so bad it will make your hair stand on end."

Economic indicators point to recovery

Figures released Tuesday on three major economic indicators — housing starts, business inventories and industrial production — indicated recovery from the country's worst recession since World War II was moving at a healthy pace. A large surge in new construction of single family dwellings pushed total housing starts in February up a record 27 per cent over the previous month. At the same time, the Commerce Department announced inventories rose by $1.2 billion in January, the largest gain in four months. The Federal Reserve Board said the total output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities rose 0.6 per cent in February.

Workers seal entrances to Kentucky mine

Somber Kentucky miners moved huge concrete blocks into place Tuesday to seal eight entrances of the Scotia Coal mine and entomb 11 of 26 miners killed in two explosions last week. Ben A. Taylor, a federal mine inspector, said the purpose of the sealing is to put out fires which may exist in the underground corridors.

Panel urges public service jobs

The Senate Labor Committee is urging Congress to provide a million public service jobs for the unemployed at an initial cost of $7.3 billion. The proposal is contained in the committee's request to the Senate Budget Committee, dated Monday. The federal government already is financing 300,000 public service jobs in state and local governments. President Ford wants to phase these out during 1977.

Peres: Israeli army poised for violence

Defense Minister Shimon Peres summoned West Bank leaders to his offices in Tel Aviv Tuesday and warned them the army would act vigorously to put down violent Arab protests in the occupied territory. Police in Jerusalem used tear gas and clubs to scatter crowds of rock-throwing young Arabs demonstrating against a court ruling allowing Jews to pray at the Temple Mount, a site holy to Islam and Judaism.

A full curfew was imposed Monday on the town of Ramallah, eight miles north of Jerusalem, after a week of similar protests. UPI Correspondent Allen Alter reported from Ramallah that the streets were deserted and soldiers fired in the air to remind residents to stay indoors.

Syrians urge Franjiah to resign

Syrian peacemakers tried to convince President Suleiman Franjiah to resign Tuesday. Moslem rebels poised to attack the presidential palace awaited the outcome with "fingers on the trigger." Warring militiamen battled around the ruins of the hotel seafloor area and in Moslem and Christian suburbs, killing 43 persons and wounding 100. Dozens of persons were reported kidnapped and gunmen prowled the streets of the capital at will. To add to the anarchy, gunmen stormed Beirut's Al Ramel jail — in a Moslem area — and released 700 prisoners, including murderers.

Heights was standing against Joe's bar, hustling down another drink before the ride home. He was pointing out that 22.8 per cent Democratic vote in Chicago.

"Jesus, that means Daley's golden," Jenkins said. "I don't think the suburban vote can offset that."

"Daley's a toughie as we've all known in the past. Everyone keeps saying it can't happen again. Then he proves us wrong."

I asked Mark Jenkins about his own balloting. Indeed, had he even voted? The answer was yes.

JENKINS WENT for "ultra-conservative" Ronald Reagan in the Republican primary.

"He did a good job in California," Jenkins said. "Sure, he had a lot of battles, but he got their budget in line."

But even Jenkins recognized that President Ford would defeat Reagan. And he did, by nearly 2 to 1.

We talked about the Republican gubernatorial primary. Jenkins went for "Big" Jim Thompson. There would be fireworks before November, Jenkins thought.

"Thompson's been lying in the bushes," Jenkins said. "Once he knows who he's running against, then he's going to let the guns go. Don't you feel that way?"

But the real story Tuesday afternoon was Michael J. Howlett.

No, make that Richard J. Daley. "WRITE DOWN that I love Mayor Daley and I feel bad he's getting old," said Abe Abasalan, who tends bar with Joe Diaz. "I hope, what you call it, he gets elected again next time."

And, of course, there was Joe Diaz disagreeing when told about a Wisconsin man who said the "Daley Machine" should be defeated.

"This I'll tell you," Joe said. "The Daley Machine is the greatest thing that ever happened in this town."

"I remember when there was not a Daley Machine. I'm grateful for everything that chubby little Irishman has done."

Scott blocks Walker fiscal plans

by STEVE BROWN

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott has quietly moved to throw a major roadblock into Gov. Daniel Walker's plans to avoid major fiscal problems next June.

Scott issued a legal opinion last week which could block the governor from using funds collected in the next fiscal year, which begins July 1, to pay bills from the previous fiscal year.

Scott's opinion was prepared at the request of State Rep. Thaddeus S. Lechowicz, D-Chicago, the chairman of the Illinois House Appropriations Committee.

ALTHOUGH THE governor says the state will have a $115 million cash balance at the end of the fiscal year, he admits the figure does not include bills that represent funds spent during fiscal 1976, but are not received until the start of the new fiscal year.

Walker clearly intends to spend money brought in next year to pay debts incurred this year.

An aid to Scott hinted the attorney general is willing to go to court to block Walker's plans. Scott indicated that such a payment plan could be accomplished only if the Illinois General Assembly were to pass legislation approving it.

Current estimates suggest Walker will have to spend about $100 million in fiscal 1977 revenue to retire all of the fiscal 1977 debt.

SCOTT ALSO said funds from one state agency cannot be spent on behalf of the other agency's debt unless it is specifically authorized by the legislature.

The situation appears to set another early summer battle between the governor, the legislature and Scott.

Some members of the legislature already have complained about the governor's budget for next year.

Some observers have indicated the recent opinion from Scott could serve to delay even further some state bill payments. The state has been delaying payments on bills for several months because of a cash flow problem. While Walker aides have denied there is any systematic delay, a number of groups, especially hospitals, have complained they are being paid up to six months after they submit their bills.

If Scott's opinion is followed by the legislature, businesses doing business with the state may be forced to go to court to collect their debts.

Hospitals plan $2.3 million gear buy

Three Northwest suburban hospitals are planning to buy major pieces of new equipment at a total cost of more than $2.3 million.

Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. will hold a public hearing on the proposed purchases at 10 a.m. March 27 at the civic building, 1420 Miner St., Des Plaines.

CHP will make a recommendation to the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board, which has final authority over the expenditure.

THE BIGGEST dollar expenditure is proposed by Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, which plans to buy a computerized tomographic scanner at an estimated cost of $490,000 and a linear accelerator estimated to cost $970,000.

The computerized tomographic scanner is a diagnostic piece of equipment used to take multiple "pictures" of the body to locate tumors, blockages and other abnormalities.

The linear accelerator is used in cancer treatment. It directs high-energy material at the tumor and is more precise in certain cases than Cobalt radiation therapy.

Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, plans to buy a $560,000 computerized axial tomography whole-body scanner.

THE SCANNER is capable of taking cross-section pictures of the head and also can illustrate the internal structure of the brain.

It has an advantage over regular X-ray equipment because it does not need spinal or neck tape, or any radioactive dyes to show the body tissues under study.

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, wants to buy radiographic and ultrasonic equipment estimated to cost $293,800. The equipment is similar to a portable fluoroscope and is especially useful during the insertion of heart pacemakers.

CHP will evaluate each hospital's proposal. In most cases, its recommendation is followed by the state health facilities planning board.

Village board wrapup

Doctor gets OK to expand building

Dr. Gordon C. Ward was given permission Monday by the Arlington Heights Village Board to expand his building at 502 S. Arlington Heights Rd. for a private office and recreation room.

Ward's request was passed 7-1 by the board with only Trustee Madeline Schroeder dissenting. Mrs. Schroeder opposed the 400-foot expansion, saying "If they think there is a need for a larger space, it can be found elsewhere in Arlington Heights."

Ward's request required the expansion of an existing special-use permit for the property, which is zoned for residential use.

Ward said he was not expanding his practice nor the number of people he employs.

Plea for drive-in store delayed

The village board deferred a request from Fotomat Corp. to put a drive-in store at the Surrey Ridge Shopping Center, Algonquin and Golf roads.

The board asked the public health and safety committee to investigate maintenance problems at the shopping center before making a decision on the Fotomat request.

No objections to the Fotomat proposal were expressed by board members.

Ewart heads youth council

James Ewart was appointed chairman of the Arlington Heights Youth Council. Ewart succeeds Alfred J. Barboro who was appointed to the village board in February.

Up to $50,000

Village OKs census expenditure

The Arlington Heights Village Board has approved spending up to $50,000 to conduct a special census in the village this summer.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has estimated the results of the census may make the village eligible to receive an additional $96,000 in motor fuel and income tax funds in each of the next four years.

The cost of conducting the census will be financed with federal revenue sharing funds, despite objections from Trustee Madeline Schroeder that that money should be used for different projects.

Mrs. Schroeder asked that the federal revenue-sharing fund account be reimbursed with receipts gained from the census, but other trustees questioned whether juggling of village accounts was practical.

"Federal revenue-sharing funds should be used for special uses, such as land acquisition. We shouldn't just fritter away this federal money," Mrs. Schroeder said.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan and Trustee Richard Durava objected to Mrs. Schroeder using the term "fritter away."

"It certainly isn't being frittered away when it is used to gain as much as $96,000," Durava said.

"This is a justifiable use of the federal revenue-sharing funds. I didn't think we had put a holier-than-thou stamp on these funds," Durava said.

Mrs. Schroeder's motion to have the federal revenue sharing account reimbursed was opposed by all other trustees present.

Hanson said the village's count of water meters installed in the village indicates that the village's population may have increased by as much as 4,800 since the last census in 1970, when the population was 69,204.

Scarsdale to get sample streetlights

Five sample streetlights will be installed in the Scarsdale subdivision to determine residents' reaction before a final selection is made for the subdivision.

The fixtures will be fitted with varying strength and type bulbs. Two lights will have 175-watt mercury bulbs, two will have 100-watt mercury bulbs and one will be fitted with a 70-watt sodium vapor bulb.

The fixtures will be installed on the 600 and 700 blocks of Newbury Place in about two weeks.

The village board's community service committee has asked that residents from all areas of the village inspect the sample lights. The committee said if the new streetlights are well received, they might be used in future subdivisions or as replacements of older lighting systems.

Still unanswered is the question of whether the proposed lights would meet state brightness standards. If the state does not approve the lights, motor fuel tax funds could not be applied to their purchase.

Attorney to draw ordinance

Nursing home zoning delays OK

Approval of a restaurant-nursing home proposal on N. Arlington Heights Road near the north-industrial park has been delayed because of legal questions over how the nursing home parcel should be zoned.

The village board Monday instructed Village Atty. Jack Siegel to draw an ordinance for the nursing home-restaurant proposal from Irving Lefkowitz and to attempt to iron out the zoning question with Lefkowitz' attorney, William J. Moore.

Moore says the nursing home should be allowed as a special use under the industrial park classification. Siegel, however, said at the last board meeting that a nursing home is not defined in the village code as a business. He said it is considered a special use for multiple-family zoning classifications, but not as a special use in an industrial district.

Several village trustees said they object to rezoning the 4-acre parcel for multiple-family development even with the special use provision.

TRUSTEE MADELINE Schroeder said she did not object to the nursing home plan but was against it being rezoned. "I prefer it stay zoned (industrial)," she said. "We have to work out these problems so it won't have an influence on the rest of the property up there."

Trustee David Griffin agreed, saying "we should give serious consideration to its implications."

Moore said "it would be hard for someone to use this as a precedent when it is tied to a special use. The question is: Do you want a nursing home there?"

No objections to the nursing home were expressed by trustees.

The nursing home plans call for a bilevel structure with 240 beds.

On the adjacent property will be a Fiddler's restaurant.

Schroeder seeks manual outlining village policies

A policy manual spelling out procedures, responsibilities, precedents and ethical standards for elected and appointed village officials is being proposed by Arlington Heights Trustee Madeline Schroeder.

Mrs. Schroeder said such a manual would be "a guideline, a basis for decision-making by our officials."

She said the village board's committee on internal procedures and communications, which she chairs, should take up the question as soon as the full board concludes its budget hearings for the upcoming fiscal year.

The manual would contain policy positions adopted in the past by the village board, but that have not been compiled under one cover, Mrs. Schroeder said. She proposed writing and including the policy detailing ethical conduct.

SHE SAID POLICIES, such as the ones covering apartment development and sidewalk installations, are not part of the village municipal code book but have been adopted by the board as a basis for future action.

"If you were on the board when they were adopted, you'd know about them. But if you weren't, the policies are not in the ordinances and you must ask for them," she said.

The proposed manual would spell out the village's established precedents and policies for the newcomers, she said.

IT COULD ALSO be helpful to trustees in defining the roles of committees on which they serve, she said. She said the community service committee, on which she serves, is manned entirely by new trustees who might not be fully aware of what can or cannot be accomplished by a single committee.

To be included in the manual would be an ethics policy for officials. The ethics policy, she said, would not have the force of law, but would set boundaries and guideposts for officials' actions.

The proposed ethics policy, adapted from one used for state officials, would be an adjunct to the disclosure ordinance recently approved by the community services committee and to be considered by the full board.

"Basically, it's code of conduct on how to act in certain situations," she said. "Officials are dealing with their friends, neighbors and relatives a lot of the time. It can be a kind of a guideline for them."

Mrs. Schroeder said such a policy would eliminate some questions that have been posed about potential conflicts of interest.

Dist. 59 union members protest, but...

First-year teachers' contracts cut

The contracts of all first-year teachers were terminated by the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education while teacher union members protested the district's cutback procedures and called for a written rehiring policy.

Board members Monday approved 1976-77 budget cuts totaling $754,000, including the elimination of 30 teaching positions, to avoid a budget deficit next year. The teacher cutbacks are made possibly by current overstaffing and a projected 4 per cent enrollment decline, officials said.

More than 125 teachers attended the meeting Monday.

The board voted to notify all 55 first-year teachers that they will not be rehired next year. Supt. Roger Bardwell said the district usually loses 70-80 teachers at the end of the year and that these first-year teachers will "in all probability" be rehired.

BARDWELL SAID, however, that he advised the board to terminate the contracts because he could not assure that the positions will be open next year. By law, teachers must be notified 60 days before the end of the school year if their contracts are not going to be renewed.

Representatives of the teachers' union protested that the board's cutback methods of notifying all first-year teachers that they would not be rehired, when only 30 positions will be eliminated, leaves all those teachers "in limbo."

Bardwell said that the teachers will be rehired "as soon as we know how many resignations we will have."

Teacher Ruth Ross protested that the board "has a terminating policy, but there is no rehiring policy." She asked how these teachers would be rehired and whether they would be rehired before any new personnel were hired.

BARDWELL SAID the terminated teachers would receive "first consideration" when positions open up. Also cut Monday were professional services staff members including a small number of psychologists, social workers and speech clinic personnel. Five administrative positions were eliminated. All staff cutbacks approved total $354,500 in savings.

Officials said the cutbacks will not directly affect educational programs, but will balance the district's budget if inflation is held to 5 per cent.

In other action the board agreed not to continue efforts to open an alternative school in September. Board members did agree to discuss establishing in the future a committee composed of parents, administrators and board members to study not only conservative alternative schools, but all varieties of alternatives.

ALSO TABLED FOR further discussion was a resolution to place more emphasis on discipline in all district schools. Board member Erwin Poklaski protested that passage of this resolution would be "telling principals what to do in their own schools," and said this was not the board's role.

School officials said there were very few residents who supported the alternative school at the public hearings, though in a district survey more than 400 families had said they would send their children to a conservatively-oriented alternative school.

Residents were concerned the district was spending money on an alternative school while a deficit is looming next year, officials said. Other sentiments expressed at the hearings were that the district's present schools are "good enough" and that if the schools need some changes, more discipline should be added to all the schools.

Some board members said residents would view the alternative school concept more favorably if alternative classes were established in each school, allowing the district to keep all its children at neighborhood schools.

Resident Sabra Patterson said alternatives in education should not be in the district at random "but at each school. The neighborhood school concept is important. Certainly it is feasible to offer one alternative class at each grade level" at all the schools.

Dist. 23 adopts calendar; schools will open Sept. 7

Students in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will start school after Labor Day.

The Dist. 23 Board of Education approved a calendar recently which sets Sept. 7, the day after Labor Day and traditional starting date, as the first day of school. The board had considered starting school earlier because Labor Day is so late this year.

Supt. Edward Grodzky said the district could not afford the attendance loss that he said normally results when the first day of school falls before Labor Day. Parents who called in response to a board letter concerning the situation were 2-to-1 in favor of starting after Labor Day, he said.

The board of education in High School Dist. 214, which high school students in the Dist. 23 area attend, approved a calendar starting school the week before Labor Day. Grodzky said the calendar the Dist. 23 board approved will be the same as Dist. 214 concerning vacations, but will have different opening and closing days.

In other action, the board tentatively approved a five-day summer school camp program. For about 900 students will be able to attend a camp on Lake Geneva, Wis., at the beginning of the summer. Grodzky said final approval will depend on the number of students interested.

School officials said there were very few residents who supported the alternative school at the public hearings, though in a district survey more than 400 families had said they would send their children to a conservatively-oriented alternative school.

Residents were concerned the district was spending money on an alternative school while a deficit is looming next year, officials said. Other sentiments expressed at the hearings were that the district's present schools are "good enough" and that if the schools need some changes, more discipline should be added to all the schools.

Some board members said residents would view the alternative school concept more favorably if alternative classes were established in each school, allowing the district to keep all its children at neighborhood schools.

Resident Sabra Patterson said alternatives in education should not be in the district at random "but at each school. The neighborhood school concept is important. Certainly it is feasible to offer one alternative class at each grade level" at all the schools.

Says the man behind window 17

Another's loss is his challenge

by LEA TONKIN

Some people watch for snowdrops and other dainty flowers as a sure sign spring is coming.

Leonard Walavich has a better barometer. All he has to do is count the hats, umbrellas and other cumbersome gear stacked and forgotten by commuters on the Chicago and North Western Ry. lines.

There is a definite seasonal pattern in some commuters' forgetfulness. Walavich says after 15 years of manning the North Western's lost and found department.

First comes the hat and umbrella season. "It starts now and runs through the rainy season," Walavich says. "Then there's the coat season. That starts in April or May."

SEASONS CHANGE. Gloves and mufflers start coming in to window 17 at the North Western's Chicago terminal as soon as the weather turns cold. Before he knows it, Walavich is counting umbrellas again.

Walavich says he's a man who doesn't like to see anybody go away from Window 17 unhappy. When the bumbershoots and other paraphernalia gathered up from the commuter trains reach his office, Walavich does his best to make sure the abandoned items are quickly returned to their owners.

"If a person knows the day he lost it, most any item can be easily claimed at the railway lost and found window. The problem is in men's umbrellas," Walavich said. "They're all black." Each item is marked with a tag showing the date it was found on a train and the location it was found.

"We keep articles 30 days. Then if they're not claimed, they go down stairs," Walavich said.

IN HIS INVENTORY of recently discarded items, Walavich counted two bottles of imported whiskey, boxed cookies, eye glasses, umbrellas, coats and a selection of briefcases.

"From March through October, we get about a hundred coats a month. In gloves, we get 100 pair from November through April," the chief clerk says.

The trouble stems from riders who never claim their possessions. Walavich has more than 1,000 unclaimed umbrellas on hand, not to mention an incredible array of abandoned items ranging from kangaroo tail soup to crutches and electric space heaters.

Rainstick Junction houses the umbrella accumulation. It's a cart stocked with unclaimed umbrellas. The umbrellas, stamped "Rainstick Junction," can be used by North Western riders arriving at the Chicago terminal unprepared for a sudden shower. The service will start its 1976 season in April. Although the commuters are asked to return umbrellas, there are bumbershoots never returned. One was recently spotted on a street in West Berlin, Walavich says.

LUNCHES AND OTHER food items are another matter. "We toss them out, after they're in pretty bad shape," Walavich says.

Unclaimed items are eventually stacked in a lower level storage area at the terminal. After six months or longer, the goods are sold to a salvage company.

For some unknown reason, the area storing unclaimed merchandise is called "old horse." Maybe it's because horses were used to pull carts years ago, Walavich says.

Old junk is piled high on the shelves in "old horse." Although some of the rumpled clothes and dusty suitcases look like they'd be easy to forget, Walavich just can't figure out how some people leave some things behind. "Look at these crutches," he says, pointing out several pairs. "I guess people get well awful quick."

A BRAND NEW electric space heater, expensive luggage and brand name coats stashed in boxes crowd the shelves. "You're not surprised at what you get," Walavich says.

He holds a can of roasted caterpillars up to the dim light. "And I got octopus. In a can, of course. It's not running around."

Light bulbs, an old iron and a hard hat seem strange storeroom companions. Books and a child's toy lean against dusty suitcases.

WALAVICH KEEPS a disinfectant spray handy. "Sometimes I open something up and the stench is overwhelming," he says. Opening a large blue suitcase, he says, "Let's see what's inside." The cavernous case holds one box of dry dog food, one can of dog food and three or four small packaged hand towels like the ones customers get at fried chicken restaurants.

Sure, some of the things people leave behind are predictable, Walavich says. But it's the unending variety of forgotten items and the challenge of finding their owners that makes his job enjoyable.

"I'm happy when I come to work and sad when I go home," the lost and found man says. He's found contentment in the things other people leave behind.

Kids' Hiding Place

by Ed Landwehr

When we take the backs off TV sets, we find many things besides electronic parts. Lollipop sticks are in the lead, then comes curlers, burned matches and pieces of string. Sometimes we find small toys shoved in between the openings of the backboard which gives us the clue that the kids fool around back there.

Of course, this doesn't help the TV set, but worst of all, it's a dangerous place for the kids to be.

It's a good idea to clean out a set occasionally, even if it's only dusty. We do this in our shop on all bench maintenance. Phone 355-0700 next time for TV servicing, or bring your set to Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Expert concerned about economic future

by LEA TONKIN

Most people agree that 1976 is turning out to be a decent year for the U.S. economy compared to last year's showing.

Even Alexander "Perry" Paris, author of the 1974 book "The Coming Credit Crash" can take heart in the improved employment and inflation figures. The Palatine investment counselor maintains a fairly pessimistic outlook for the economy, however.

"The major indicators are showing a pretty decent year," Paris said. "The only big question marks are, when is inflation going to start bottoming out and start going up again?"

PARIS FIGURES that more consumers and business executives should understand the real reasons for the recent recession. Then they could see why the inflation problem is not licked.

"The key question is whether it will come roaring back in 1977," he said. Paris adds that "it may possibly be 1978 before it comes."

"The only way out is to stop spending so much money," the investment specialist said. He said many people believe inflation is the trend of rising prices.

"But rising prices are an effect of inflation, which is excessive creation of money," Paris said. As long as the government cracks out money to finance heavy deficit spending and production fails to keep up the same pace, the U.S. consumer and business will suffer inflation, he said.

ONE WAY TO reach business and consumer representatives is through educational programs, Paris said. He is president and founder of the nonprofit Economic Education & Research Forum, 407 S. Dearborn St., Suite 600, Chicago. A monthly bulletin and programs are aimed at economic education.

Murray L. Weidenbaum, director of the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University, St. Louis, is slated as the forum's guest speaker at its March 31 meeting. Weidenbaum also serves as adjunct scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. He will discuss private capital versus public control. The meeting will start at noon at the Continental Plaza.

Paris said the forum's meetings are open to the 300 members and non-members. He believes the discussion topics such as the long-term capital shortage problem and inflation will have a significant impact on the success of U.S. business and the prices paid by consumers.

"One of the basic problems in the economy is that there is a very poor education on the economy and what makes it work," he said.

"People tend to get buffaloed,"

Alexander Paris

Stock prices soar; Dow up 8.97

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices soared Tuesday for the first time in three sessions in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange, after the government reported a surge in housing starts and business sales.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 28.81-point loser the previous two sessions, rallied to gain 8.97 points to 983.47. It had been ahead nearly four points at the outset and down around two before the afternoon rally erupted.

The blue-chip average had encountered heavy profit-taking pressures after climbing to 1,003.31 last Thursday, the first time in three years it had finished over the 1,000 level.

The afternoon rally appeared to be triggered by government reports that housing starts climbed 27 per cent in February from January, that business inventories rose 0.5 per cent and business sales by 1.1 per cent.

THE NEWS helped other averages rebound, also. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.12 to 100.22, the NYSE common stock index 0.57 to 53.90 and the average price of an NYSE common share by 36 cents.

Advances topped declines, 956 to 557, among the 1,881 issues crossing the tape. There were 368 unchanged issues, however, which reflected investor uncertainty.

Volume swelled to 22,780,000 shares from 19,570,000 traded Monday, the second slowest day of the year. Tuesday's turnover, however, was sharply below the 30-million-share average daily volume of January and February.

Carrier Corp. topped the Big Board actives, off 1/8 to 15 1/4 on 220,800 shares, including a block of 200,000 shares at 15. Fedders Corp. followed up 7/8 to 9 3/8 on 206,100 shares. Gulf States Utilities was third, off 1/8 to 13-1/8 on 204,300 shares, including a block of 179,100 shares at 13-1/8.

Prices closed higher in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased four cents. Volume totaled 3,270,000 shares, compared with 3,000,000 traded Monday.

Game shows fear liability for injuries

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The California Supreme Court recently handed down a decision that sent shivers up and down the spines of promoters of giveaway games.

The court affirmed a $300,000 judgment against a Los Angeles radio station for inadvertently causing the death of a motorist at the hands of speeding teenagers.

The station ran a series of contests to stir enthusiasm of the youngsters for one of its disc jockeys. It offered a cash prize to the first listener who could rendezvous with the disc jockey who was driving around in his car. Teenagers began racing around town at speeds up to 80 miles an hour, following the DJ to win the prize. One excited lad racing to meet the DJ forced the motorist off the street, causing his death. After a five-year court battle, the radio station was ordered to pay.

Says the Research Group of Charlottesville, Va., which does research for law firms, "In contrast with earlier 'duty to care' decisions involving accidents resulting from over excitement of participants in giveaway contests, in which the accidents occurred on the business premises of the defendant, this accident occurred on the streets, and the decision seems to extend the duty of a broadcasting station to the full limits of its broadcasting area."

TYPICAL OF earlier 'duty to care' tort decisions involving accidents resulting from giveaway contests was one in 1950 against an Illinois supermarket. A shopper was trampled and injured when the store manager dumped a case of then scarce margarine on the floor and shouted: "Come and get it!"

In 1950, a Florida discount store was held liable in a somewhat similar case when a customer was pushed over a table and injured by an unruly crowd at one of those "while they last" sales. The store employees opened the front door and shouted "Go!" to a crowd of 100 waiting to compete for "fifty only available" of the advertised bargain.

The Charlottesville firm quoted noted tort law expert William Prosser who said the duty to care question must be resolved by the courts in terms of social policy as well as the letter of the written law.

Prosser extended this doctrine to conclude that courts should enforce the duty to care principle most vigorously against those who are best able to pay or are most likely to have insurance protection.

Retailing changes topic of book

Life is becoming more complicated for today's retailer.

The days of the peddler and trading post have been replaced by the department store, the chain outlet, mail order companies and massive discount retailers. And the change will continue, said University of Illinois marketing professor Carl M. Larson.

Larson, an Arlington Heights resident, is one of three authors of the newly published book, "Basic Retailing" (Prentice-Hall, Inc.). Coauthors are Robert E. Weigand and John S. Wright.

NO ONE CAN predict the future of retailing, Larson said. He's written the book as a practical, "how to" account of the industry as it has developed through the years.

"What we're trying to show is what goes on in retailing, from how to operate a store to the environment that surrounds it," Larson said. The book is "the culmination of six years of writing," offering illustrations from across the U.S.

One of the stores mentioned in "Basic Retailing" is the Persin & Robbin Jewelers store in Arlington Heights. Larson said the store is an example of the "outstanding" stores that continue to offer good service to customers.

THE COMING of shopping centers in the suburbs and the decline of some downtown business districts are some of the continual changes confronting retailers, Larson said. His book is intended to provide information on the business of selling merchandise. Business and retailing students will use "Basic Retailing" as a textbook.

Cases in small business will be the topic of Larson's next book. The author of a book on promotional strategy and related articles, Larson has taught economics and marketing courses at U. of I. for some 30 years. He completed undergraduate work at U. of I. and graduate work at Northwestern University. Larson serves on the Paddock Corp. board of directors.

Better employe training forecast for retail chains

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The W. T. Grant & Co. collapse because of over-expansion will not stop other retail chains from expanding, but it will cause them to plan more carefully, according to a leading management consultant.

Fulton MacDonald of Booz, Allen & Hamilton, Chicago, said the grim lessons of the Grant fiasco will cause managers of large retail chains to "stop and think" and make more detailed preparation for expansion programs.

From now on, he said, retailers are going to have to pay a lot more attention to training help, both at the supervisory level and at the sales level, and possibly the number of sales people may have to be increased somewhat.

THE SHIFT in the last 20 years away from the well-trained, behind-the-counter sales clerk to open racks and counters manned largely by part-time sales help has not turned out to be the unalloyed blessing it was expected to be, MacDonald said.

"Shoppers resent the uninformed and indifferent part-time sales people who can't help them with their problems," he said. "These people can make mistakes that are extremely costly to the store. Nor can they contribute anything to merchandising policy the way the old-fashioned well-trained salesperson did."

Therefore, he said, store chains that expand from now on are going to have to make a much more effective effort to train sales and supervisory people.

He said that, next to too rapid expansion and its workers, the retail industry's worst errors in recent years have been lack of controls on both operations and plant expenditures and too much poor quality management in the middle-sized firms.

"The giants mostly have good management and so do many of the small specialty chains," MacDonald added.

IN SPITE OF some setbacks in chain store expansion, MacDonald said the grim erosion of "mom and pop" stores will continue all across the land. Many independent stores will be bought up by chains; others will just succumb to chain competition.

He said either an independent retailer or a chain store management should become deeply concerned if, in spite of all its efforts, its sales gains fall consistently to keep up with or exceed the rate of monetary inflation as measured by the government's consumer and wholesale price indexes. If this continues so that the company is only marginally profitable for three years running, the business may be doomed unless very drastic steps are taken, MacDonald said.

Among the trends he sees for the future in retailing are:

- More attention to innovative distribution procedures.
- A sharper definition by management of the type of store conceived and operated.
- More careful location selection.
- A more integrated merchandising approach.
- More emphasis in making store environments appeal to today's casual life-style.
- More automation in the store's offices.

Centel to 'adjust' 40 area employes

Central Telephone Co. of Illinois announced 40 employes in the Des Plaines and Park Ridge operations will be affected by a "force adjustment" starting May 2.

No layoffs are included in the plan, said J.S. Vanderwoude, Centel personnel and public relations manager. Workers displaced from their jobs will be offered continued employment, he said.

The work force will be cut by some 20 employes in the switching equipment area, 15 persons in the installation and repair of business equipment and five employes in support groups. Conversion of switching equipment and depressed levels of business activity are cited as reasons for the change.

Wards to sell catalog ad space

Montgomery Ward, the Chicago based company known as the founder of the mail order business, announced Monday it will sell advertising space in its catalogs distributed to 6 million customers.

Edward S. Donnell, chairman of the company, said a pilot program will be introduced in the April and May sale catalog.

"This will be the first time any of the major mass merchandising catalog companies has sold advertising in any of its catalogs," Donnell said. The company will limit the type of advertising it uses. Liquor, insurance, tobacco and political advertisements are among those not solicited by Montgomery Ward.

Ask Andy

Gar—reminder of prehistoric fish

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Sarah Sweeney, 12, of St. Paul, Minn., for her question:

WHAT IS A GAR?
Mention the name gar to many freshwater fishermen, and right away you've said enough. Gars are not considered good to eat; they scare game fish away, and they steal bait off your line. This assortment of bad habits is enough to make them unpopular fellows. Worse yet, if a fisherman is lucky enough to hook a fish when gars are around, a gar might get the fish before a fisherman does.

It doesn't take an expert to recognize a gar. One look at his long slender body and elongated beaklike jaws is enough to identify him. If by chance he opens his mouth for you, make sure to keep your hands away. His jaws are lined with sharp teeth, and if they clamp down on a finger it could be quite painful.

The gar is sometimes called a living fossil because his species represents the only surviving members of a group that lived more than 50 million years. His scales are unlike scales on modern fish in that they are more like a suit of armor. Burdened by his heavy coat, the gar is somewhat sluggish in his swimming habits, except when feeding.

Also called garfish and garpike, the gar is a rather fierce fellow. He is at home in lakes and rivers throughout the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, and from southern Canada to Panama. His main food is fish, and he is a very adept fisherman. Most gars resemble floating sticks, but let a prospective dinner come swimming by and he attacks with a sudden, swift sideward snap. His prey is generally caught crosswise, but he juggles it around until he can swallow it whole, head first.

Gars prefer shallow water with lots of weeds. When spring arrives, the female lays eggs that number in the thousands. One female that was examined was found to contain more than 77,000 eggs. Covered with a sticky adhesive, the eggs become attached to the floor of their water environment or to weeds.

As the eggs hatch, the young gars attach themselves to plants by means of a sucker located on their forehead. The adult males guard the young until they are old enough to fend for themselves. Fortunately, many of the eggs and young gars serve as food for other predatory fish.

Even though the gar is a voracious hunter and eater, he serves a purpose in the balance of nature. The eggs and young gars provide valuable food sources for other animals. What's more, the adults help control the populations of suckers, catfish and the hordes of minnows that hatch each year.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Bryon De Haven, 11, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for his question:

WHAT IS A TERRAPIN?
Terrapin, a word of American Indian origin, is the name often given to certain freshwater or tidalwater turtles. In North America the diamondback terrapin is the turtle in this group you will most often see. The male is not as large as the female, whose lower shell may measure more than seven inches from front to back. For their dining pleasure terrapins eat crabs, snails and other water animals, as well as juicy green plants.

The diamondback terrapin gets his name from the beautiful pattern of his shell. A dozen or more diamond-shaped shields decorate his upper shell. They are arranged in oval rows, and each shield has a conspicuous golden center, also shaped like a diamond. For a long time terrapins were regarded as a delicious treat, and people would spend a great deal of money for a terrapin dinner. For a dozen of these delights, fashionable hotels and restaurants have paid as much as $100. After becoming somewhat scarce in their natural habitat, large numbers were raised on special farms.

A rather large bit of luck

The last thing South wanted to do was to get to seven diamonds, but his partner's five notrump was the grand slam force. This tells South to bid seven if he holds two of the three top honors in diamonds.

South looked at the queen of hearts lead for some time. His first thought was to discard a spade from dummy and settle for down one. Then he thought some more, whistled "With a little bit of luck" and proceeded to make his contract.

More than a little luck was needed. He had to ruff three hearts in dummy. Those three ruffs plus his own four trumps, five clubs and one spade counted to 13 tricks.

South ruffed that first heart, led a low club from dummy and finessed his nine spot. One bit of luck. He ruffed a second heart, returned to his hand with the queen of clubs. No one ruffed in. Second bit of luck. Then he ruffed a third heart with the queen of trumps, led dummy's last trump, finessed his 10 spot. Third bit of luck. Pulled trumps. They broke 3-2 and he had his 13 tricks.

Name of game is 'beat the referee'

In the fourth quarter of a recent game against the Los Angeles Lakers, Norm Van Lier of the Chicago Bulls saw that the occasion called for an outlet pass. So he set it up under the defensive boards, drew back his hand to let fly, spotted the open man without difficulty — the referee — and let him have the outlet pass right in the mouth.

What Norm Van Lier was outletting was a nice big juicy piece of bubble gum. As it hit the ref, Van Lier did not even break stride. He went on a fast break right to the dressing room. Back on the floor, referee Ken Sussman was wiping chicle from his chin. Across the floor, referee Richie Powers was signaling a technical against Van Lier, his second, and pointing to the dressing room for the Bulls' All-Star guard. In the press box, they debated whether to give Van Lier an assist.

Refereeing in the NBA is a miasma of bubble gum in the face, basketballs in the ear, lighted cigars down the collar, cold showers down the back, lonely nights in your underwear in motels socked in by snowstorms, running for flights through mop-palls at 2 o'clock in the morning, coaches' curses and menaces like 7-foot players threatening to pinch your head off. Sometimes, you get a beer after the game. Right in the hair as you walk off the court.

You make almost as much as a senior truck driver, and you get to see your wife and family sometimes as much as twice a month in a season. It's a nice job if you have thick skin, poor hearing, and you like flying through blizzards, room service, old movies, and Holiday Inns. A spy has a better social life. The piano player in a bordello gets more respect.

Richie Powers has been at it longer than any referee in the NBA. Richie Powers is a man who looks like — and, according to NBA players, sometimes thinks he is — James Cagney. He has flown more miles than the German Luftwaffe. He lives life at 40,000 feet — or staring into the navel of 7-foot centers. He has been in the game 18 seasons, passed out about 4,000 personal fouls (and, to hear the league coaches tell it, almost as many technicals), has worn out 30 or 40 whistles, a store full of shoes. He has officiated more than 1,500 games. At the age of 45, his highest accolade is a shout from the gallery, "Powers, you stink!" Or, "Powers, why don't you call them from both ends of the court?"

His life consists of a series of wakeup calls at 5 o'clock in the morning in Greenwich, Conn., his home, a cross-state trip to Kennedy Airport, frequently in a snowstorm, a morning and afternoon spent juggling flights or finding alternate routes for canceled flights at airline counters, a hasty junk-food meal, often at a standup lunch rail, then a night galloping five miles up and down a hardwood court while a red-faced coach screams at him, "Where was the foul, Richie?" Or a 250-pound forward yells, "Homer!"

Richie, like many NBA officials, is only 5 feet 9 inches tall, which makes breaking up fights at mid-court between two guys who could steal pies off a third-story window, difficult. But it makes getting up and down the court easier. Seven-foot players may stay in the backcourt to take a "blow" (i.e., rest period) from time to time, but referees have to go where the ball goes. Despite his size, Richie also fights a considerable waistline, made all too visible to the hecklers by too many pizzas at 1 o'clock in the morning or packaged airline dinners at 2 in the afternoon.

Richie's foul calls were critical to the Lakers this particular night. The Bulls sank 32% of their 27 free throws. The Lakers sank only 46% of their 18. The Bulls were to win, 91-88, but none of this impressed Norm Van Lier when he decided to get rid of his chewing gum by sticking it under the nearest object — the referee's chin.

In the dressing room afterwards, Richie Powers, his eyes drained of color by fatigue, sat in his longjohns, pulling on a can of Schlitz. "The game has changed," he said. "It's a cock fight, rugby, karate, sumo wrestling. But mostly it's speed today. So many of the fouls are off-the-ball. They move without the ball nowadays. It used to be you only had to check the guy with the ball, and his man. The rest of them tended to stand around. Now you got one guy with the ball and nine guys fouling. The name of the game is 'beat the referee.' And, if you can't do that, criticize him."

Richie peeled off his long underwear and dabbed at the sweat on his forehead. "How long are you going to continue?" he was asked. "I'd like to do 2,000 games. It's a game of motels, capillaries, arteries, and God these days."

From the shower came a yelp. "Hey!" shouted Ken Sussman. "This water's cold!"

"Be glad you're not in Milwaukee," sighed Richie, grabbing a towel and stepping in. "There, it turns to hail on its way down your back."

Eight remain in Class AA tourney

The field is set. The monstrous mushroom called the University of Illinois Assembly Hall is ready for the invasion. It's countdown time in the annual spectacular.

Eight high school basketball teams — the eight survivors from pressure-packed Super-Sectional play Tuesday afternoon and evening — will assemble in Champaign Friday for the Class AA state tournament.

A new champion is assured with Chicago Phillips on the sidelines, but the Chicago Public League is sending another formidable entry in Morgan Park. Overall, the field is exceptional with several clubs capable of bringing home the biggest prize in Illinois schoolboy sports.

Competition Friday will match Thornridge and Aurora West in a classic tourney opener at 12:15 p.m. Marion, the hope of southern Illinois, and Decatur Eisenhower will collide at 1:45 p.m.

The two evening matchups Friday will be Galesburg, coached by former Wheeling head man Mike Owens, and Morgan Park at 7:00 and Loyola Academy and Oak Park at 8:30.

Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will present a complete preview to the AA tournament field in Friday's sports section.

Here's the way the action developed Tuesday:

Aurora West coasts

Aurora West, ranked No. 3 among Illinois' Class AA high schools, romped to its 23rd straight victory at the DeKalb Super-sectional, downing McHenry 53-40.

The win gave Aurora West a 27-2 season record and ended McHenry's season at 25-5.

West never was pressed, leading 24-14 at halftime and 42-23 after three quarters. Bruce Johnson scored 17 points for the victors and Terry Reilly 16 for McHenry.

T-Ridge takes thriller

Bill Cunningham's desperation shot at the buzzer dropped through the basket to give No. 5 ranked Thornridge a 66-64 overtime against Homewood-Flossmoor.

Cunningham's basket accounted for the only points scored in the three minute overtime. Arzelia Motley's basket with about three seconds to play brought Thornridge into a 64-64 tie at the end of regulation time.

Homewood-Flossmoor stalled for almost all the overtime, waiting until 18 seconds were left when Dave Goff tried a shot and missed. Ken Seymans rebounded and threw a half court pass to Motley, whose shot missed as the clock ran down to three seconds.

But Cunningham dove into the crowd of players, came up with the ball and put it into the air as the buzzer went off. Cunningham led Thornridge scorers with 24 points and Derrick Jackson had 16 while Goff had 18 for Homewood-Flossmoor.

Marion advances, 76-74

Jim Orr's basket with 3:38 to go gave Marion a 66-65 lead which it held the rest of the way to defeat Edwardsville 76-74 in Carbondale.

Marion, earning its 20th win in 28 games, had a 36-34 halftime lead, but Edwardsville rallied and the lead saw-sawed throughout the second half until Orr's shot.

Orr led the Marion scorers with 19 points while Fred Barton of Edwardsville netted 24 for game honors. It was the 13th loss for Edwardsville in 30 games.

Decatur pulls upset

A comeback attempt by No. 3 ranked Normal Community went awry Tuesday night when Decatur Eisenhower, tied for No. 10 in the rankings, used free throws in an overtime to upset Normal 75-65.

Normal had a 28-27 lead at the half, but trailed by six points with 2:40 to play when it rallied to score six straight points with a basket by John Mann tying the score at 53-53 with 28 seconds to play to force the overtime.

But Eisenhower was in the one and one situation when the overtime began, got the first four points, and after Normal hit one basket to pull within two, Eisenhower outscored the loser 12-5 the rest of the way.

The win gave Eisenhower a 24-4 record and eliminated Normal with 26-4.

Morgan Park dominates

Jeff Berry dropped 20 points and superstar Levi Cobb 15 Tuesday afternoon to lead Morgan Park to a 75-60 triumph over Vocational for the Chicago public league championship and a quarter final berth in the Class AA High School Basketball Tournament Friday at Champaign.

Morgan Park, scoring its 25th win in 30 games, led after every quarter and wrapped up the decision with a second quarter spurt in which it outscored Vocational 28-18 for a 47-32 halftime lead at the Amphitheatre.

Vocational took its seventh loss against 23 wins and its second defeat in three games against Morgan Park. The victory sent Morgan Park to Champaign for the second time in three years.

Laird Smith scored 18 points for Morgan Park while Mike Miller and Sam Oldham topped Vocational with 12 each.

Galesburg rolls along

Galesburg's Silver Streaks led all the way to defeat Moline 52-47 in Peoria.

It was the 19th win in the last 20 games for Galesburg, which earlier eliminated the No. 1 ranked Class AA school, previously unbeaten Peoria Richwoods.

Galesburg had a 28-20 halftime lead and was ahead 36-31 after three quarters. Scott Kelly dropped 24 points and Mike Wilder 12 for the winners while Jim Hallstrom hit 26 for Moline. It was Moline's 12th loss against 16 wins.

Loyola ousts Niles West

Loyola Academy's Ramblers, after finishing only fifth in the Catholic League, stormed to Champaign with an impressive 50-44 victory over Niles West in the Evanston Super-Sectional.

Coach Bill Gleason's outfit threw a tenacious, sagging man-to-man defense at Niles West and shackled an Indian outfit that had blitzed Hersey

Loyola, the first Catholic League entry ever in a state tourney, led 12-11 after one period and 28-19 at the intermission, but Niles West went to work late in the third stanza to regain the advantage. Loyola outscored the Indians 8-2 down the stretch in that third period and held a 34-23 lead with eight minutes remaining.

Some pressure free throw shooting by the Ramblers helped seal the victory although Niles closed to within four points at 33-34 with 4:40 left and at 46-42 with 38 seconds remaining. A charging foul cost the Indians their final shot at victory.

Oak Park rips Elgin

Oak Park-River Forest, sparked by Tom Norris and Chuck Dahms, led all the way to defeat Elgin 71-55 at Aurora East.

Oak Park, running its season record to 26-4, led all the way, but after holding a 34-32 advantage at the half, broke the game open in the third period when it outscored Elgin 21-9.

Norris had 18 points and Dahms, recently returned to the lineup after an eye injury, 16. Butch Douglas had 16 for Elgin.

FALCON FLYER. Forest View's Steve Schellenberger leads the way in the 800-yard run in an early indoor meet at Buffalo Grove. The talented defending state champion has been nursing a case of bursitis/tendonitis in his leg and has missed his team's last two meets. Schellenberger clocked a 2:01.9 at Buffalo Grove.

Players reject new offer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — A ringing rejection by the major league players to the club owners' "final and best proposal" plunged the start of the 1976 baseball season into extreme peril Tuesday and cast grave doubt that any quick accord could be reached in the game's prolonged labor hassle.

For the first time, American League President Lee MacPhail admitted he was concerned about the baseball season opening on time, April 8.

Asked whether there was a chance the season now would not start on schedule, he said, "It's getting very close. Every hour this thing drags on places the start of the season in greater jeopardy."

The latest distressing setback in the negotiations came when the players refused to okay an owners' plan which would have technically given all 400 major leaguers the right to play out their options and become free agents with the expiration of their current contracts.

Key stumbling block was the so-called "liability issue" in which the owners would put an eight-team negotiating limit on the players playing out their options instead of all 24 as is now the case in the court-upheld Andy Messersmith decision.

MacPhail and the owners' chief negotiator, John Gaherin, both of whom departed for New York after one final brief pow-wow with the players, agreed the outlook was bleak.

"You can't be optimistic in the face of the attitude being displayed here by the players," said Gaherin. Added MacPhail: "We don't know what the next move is."

There was some speculation that baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn might yet step into the dispute and defy the owners by opening the locked spring training camps. But a spokesman for the commissioner said Kuhn would not make any statement until the Players' Executive Committee officially rejects the owners' proposal in Tampa Wednesday.

Still, the players and their union chief, Marvin Miller, made appeals to Kuhn to exercise his authority and get spring training underway.

"While it may be true we cannot possibly accept their proposal as they've presented," said Miller. "That is not to say there hasn't been progress made here. I believe Mr. Kuhn said that if progress were made he would order the camps open. Well, they're still closed so apparently he does not consider this progress."

Bob Boone, player representative for the Philadelphia Phillies, echoed Miller: "I'm appealing to the owners to get the commissioner to open the camps. It's not doing any good to the owners, the players or the fans to keep spring training closed."

"one-and-one" clause in the proposal.

"In no way under their one-and-one proposal would a player become a free agent in the true form, like Andy Messersmith," Miller said. "The liability has not been removed — only narrowed. What they have proposed by limiting a player's bargaining to only eight teams is in a sense a new form of free agent draft."

The players, although adamant in their demand for complete free agency, remained hopeful the owners would budge further in their proposal. "There are earmarks of an agreement," said Rusty Staub of the Detroit Tigers. "The ball is over. They are going to put themselves in a position where spring training must open or else the pitchers won't be able to pitch and the rest of the players won't be in any kind of shape."

Added Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates: "The courts have given us things we want and the owners don't want. But that doesn't mean we can't work out something. We've got to sit down and come to an agreement that we can both live with."

That, however, did not seem imminent.

"We gave them what they asked — our final and best offer," said Gaherin. "If they reject it, that's it. It will be withdrawn and there will not be another one."

In reaction to Gaherin's ultimatum, Miller said wily, "I think the owners are jeopardizing the opening of the season."

TAKING A BLOW after testing his injured left knee is Boston Celtics superstar John Havlicek. He's been out of action since March 3.

Bulls trample Suns

John Laskowski with 20 points and Norm Van Lier with 19 led the Chicago Bulls to a 120-87 victory over the visiting Phoenix Suns Tuesday night, only the third win in the last 11 games for Chicago.

Chicago blew the game open in the second quarter, holding the Suns to only eight points in the first eight and one-half minutes while scoring 18 itself to build a 46-23 lead.

The Bulls shot 59 per cent in the third quarter and ran the score to 90-43 and built their biggest margin of 39 points in the last period with less than nine minutes to play, 104-65.

Chicago had six players in double figures. Alvin Adams led Phoenix with 15.

Koroll sparks Hawks' win

Cliff Koroll scored a hat trick and Stan Mikita had an assist on all three of the goals Tuesday night in leading the Chicago Black Hawks to a 6-3 win over the struggling Kansas City Scouts.

The loss tied a Scouts record of 16 straight games without a win and left Kansas City with only one victory in its last 33 games.

Koroll opened the scoring on a power play at 15:11 of the first period and added his second goal at 2:28 of the second period when his chip shot from the blue line bounced past Scouts goalie Denis Herron.

Chicago took a 3-0 lead at 5:12 of the period on an Alan Daigle goal and 16 seconds later Kansas City's Dave Hudson scored the Scouts' first goal of the night. Koroll picked up his hat trick at 12:25 of the second period and Pat Martin, who had assists on Koroll's third goal and Daigle's goals, gave the Black Hawks a 5-1 lead at 14:17 of the second period.

Guy Charron set a Scouts record with his 27th goal of the season 30 seconds into the third period. Chicago's Ivan Boldirev scored Chicago's final goal at 4:01 and Craig Patrick finished the Kansas City scoring at 11:32.

Wisconsin hires black cage coach

Bill Cofield, an assistant coach at the University of Virginia, was named Tuesday as head basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin, becoming the first black hired as a head basketball coach in the Big Ten Conference.

Cofield tried to play down the fact he is the conference's first black coach. "I guess it is a historical event whether I like it or not," he said. "Let's don't get into this business of saying black or white. We want to recruit outstanding basketball players."

Two MSU head coaches jobless

Denny Stolz has turned in his resignation as head football coach at Michigan State Tuesday, completing a belated and bungled house-cleaning of the troubled Spartans' athletic department.

Stolz' announcement came little over an hour after university officials announced they had fired head basketball coach Gus Gankas for reasons unconnected with the football probe.

A university spokesman said MSU President Clifton R. Wharton and the Board of Trustees asked Stolz to step down as a result of information obtained during an institutional investigation that followed an NCAA recruiting probe. The NCAA found MSU guilty of granting prohibited financial considerations to football players and prospects.

Zikes among leaders in U.S. Open

Defending champion Steve Neff bowled a 1,764 Tuesday for a pinfall total 14 pins better than his closest competitor to take the early second round lead in the Texas hosted $100,000 Bowling Proprietors Association of America U. S. Open. Palatine's Les Zikes is 22nd with 3387 pins, 202 behind the leader.

NFL plans superduper bowl game

The Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans will host the 1976 Super Bowl. National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the 28 NFL club owners cast four ballots during a morning session before picking New Orleans over four other cities.

PBA's Anthony in class by self

Earl Anthony, despite taking last week off from the Professional Bowlers Association tour, maintained a sizeable lead in the official PBA money winning standings. His $51,400 in eight tournaments this year more than doubles the $23,550 earned by runnerup Tommy Hudson.

Dan Immerfall returned home to Madison, Wis., with the bronze medal he won in speed skating at the Olympics and said he would try to win a gold one next time. Immerfall and his mother, Irene, said the sacrifices they made were "worth it all." Immerfall's father died when he was nine-year-old, and his mother has worked at two jobs to support the family.

Del Crandell, former Milwaukee Brewers manager, was hired by the California Angels to manage their Salinas, Calif., farm club this year.

The National Basketball Association's annual draft of college players will be held on Tuesday, June 8, it was announced by Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien.

Texas Ranger bullpen coach Pat Corrales was arrested and charged with burglary in an incident at a Pompano Beach, hotel. Authorities at the Surf Rider Hotel said Corrales kicked in the doors to several hotel rooms and entered them shortly after leaving a hotel bar. Under Florida law, such action is considered burglary.

Bill Hands, 35-year-old righthander who formerly pitched for the Chicago Cubs, Minnesota Twins and Texas Rangers, retired from baseball.

Shortage of veterinarians ahead

There are currently 19 fully operational colleges of veterinary medicine in the United States. Even with the four new colleges under development, the supply of veterinarians will not keep pace with the future needs for veterinary service.

According to a report appearing in the Feb. 15 issue of the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Assn., by 1985 there will be a shortage of 7,000 veterinarians. According to the projections in the report, 43,000 veterinarians will be required to provide current levels of veterinary service, yet the report projects the number of available veterinarians at 36,000, some 7,000 short of the projected need.

The report was prepared by Drs. Gerald W. McLaughlin and Richard B. Talbot, along with Mr. H. E. Bard of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University at Blacksburg, Virginia.

According to the authors, "Our study shows that there is a need for serious concern among those responsible for providing veterinary medical services for the nation. It is evident that the only practical way to provide increased veterinary services for the nation is to expand the veterinary educational opportunities available in the United States."

A.K.C. show date table —

Recently the American Kennel Club sent to show giving clubs a copy of the date tables from January 1975, through December 1983. This table gives the corresponding Saturday and Sunday dates for this period of time.

As pointed out on the table, corresponding dates throughout the year are based on the dates of the first dog show weekend. The first dog show weekend and the first calendar weekend do not always coincide. The first dog show weekend is the first weekend to occur in which Saturday's date is neither Jan. 1 nor Jan. 2.

If you would like a copy of the table and accompanying letter, send your request with a self addressed stamped No. 10 envelope to the attention of Dave Terrill, Just Dogs Editor, Padlock Publications, Inc., P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Schnauzer Club meeting —

The Chicago Miniature Schnauzer Club, Inc. will hold its next monthly meeting at the Lombard Park District Community Center, Grace Street and St. Charles Road, Lombard, on March 24, at 8 p.m.

There will be a program and refreshments and a chance to meet other Miniature Schnauzer breeders and owners. Contact the club secretary at 253-8487 for information about the club or the meeting.

International K.C. —

By the way, the total entry for the International Kennel Club show to be held Sat. and Sun., March 27 and 28, is 3,210.

This will be the 36th annual all-breed show to be held by the club at the International Amphitheatre in Chicago. Judging starts both days at 9 a.m. and gives you an excellent chance to see purebred dogs at one of the largest shows in the country.

SIXTH GRADE LEAGUE
 A tight 15-2 victory by the Lions over the tough St. Emily Eagles capped off the evening competition and finished a perfect league season for the undefeated champions. Never separated by more than four points, the two teams battled in one of the most exciting games of the year. Ten points by league champion scorer Fuenti spelled victory for St. Mark.
 Second half standings — St. Mark 5 - 0, St. Emily 3 - 2, St. Zachary 3 - 2, Dempster 3 - 2, Holmes 1 - 4, St. Raymond 0 - 5.
 Current standings — St. Mark 10 - 0, St. Emily 7 - 3, St. Zachary 6 - 4, Dempster 4 - 8, Holmes 3 - 6, St. Raymond 0 - 10.
 The Wildcats were only three points ahead at halftime, but a great second half surge brought them an overwhelming victory over the Saints in their final confrontation of the season. Leading the very balanced Dempster attack was Langowski with eight points and teammates Anders-kow, Hunt, and Czaplak with six points each. Greiner had five, and in a strong final quarter performance, Benken had 7.
 Dubny's eight points provided most of the Saints' offense. Springston joined in with five in mid teammate tabert.
 A great 15-point explosion in the third quarter by the Hawks brought them to within a single point of a fourth quarter rally by the Zebras but the game away. Manning had his finest game with an eight point performance. McLaughlin clipped in with seven and Hopkins added six.
 Making his first appearance after sitting out an injury for six weeks, John Mooney exploded for 24-second half points in leading the Zebras to victory.
 Ken Iwanski helped him to nose out teammate Bobek for fourth place in the scoring race.
 St. Mark 23, St. Emily 22.
 The Lions made it 10 in a row after meeting a tough challenge in the form of the St. Emily Eagles. Fuenti played an important part in the Lions victory as they crashed in for nine points from the free throw line and a 20-point lead.
 The Eagles made a comeback, trailing by a single point going into the fourth period after relinquishing a one point halftime lead. Enright had eight, Dave Kozlowski six.

Education came late for Elk Grove pastor

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

At a time when most teenagers are finishing up their high school education, Henry Warkentin was just beginning his.

Now pastor of Elk Grove United Presbyterian Church, Reverend Warkentin quit school after eighth grade to help his father, pastor of a Menominee Church in western Nebraska, work the family farm. He didn't start high school till he was 18.

"My father was a worker-priest in the true Biblical sense," Henry recalled as he related how hard he had to work on returning to school. He planned at the time to follow the example of a respected aunt who was a missionary-nurse in the then-Congo (now Zaire).

"Serving in foreign lands seemed adventuresome and challenging," he said.

HENRY, HOWEVER, didn't follow his aunt into the missionary field. After high school he married his longtime sweetheart, Katherine. She quit her teaching in a one-room schoolhouse and the newlyweds went off to Chicago where they enrolled in Moody Bible Institute. Henry was then 22.

At 26 he entered the University of Dubuque, a Presbyterian-related college in Dubuque, Iowa, studying for a bachelor's degree in philosophy and history. He served as student supply pastor for two Presbyterian churches while there.

Henry and Katherine joined the Presbyterian Church the same year their daughter Phyllis, now 28 and a physician in first-year residency at the University of Minnesota hospital in Minneapolis, was born. The following year he entered Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif.

"THOSE WERE three fascinating years of study," the Rev. Warkentin remembered. "Teachers were young PhD's who challenged and really made the top academic students work."

After completing seminary, he directed Christian education at a church in Arcadia, Calif., and then moved on to become pastor of a church in Sioux City, Iowa, where the Warkentins' son, Tom, was born. He was there five years and then at Rock Island 12 years before taking the pulpit at Elk Grove United Presbyterian.

Chaplain for the village police department as well as pastor of the UP church, the Rev. Warkentin sees himself as an instructive Bible teacher. He tries to make his sermons "sometimes spiritual, sometimes topical" but "hopefully always mentally challenging and stimulating."

BUT HIS WORK as a pastor includes far more. Counseling couples about to marry, comforting the bereaved, helping those with marital or other difficulties, giving guidance whatever the need to those who seek his help.

And he still believes the world, despite its serious pressures and problems, is a great place.

"Man remains the same no matter what the outside problems are. Real satisfaction comes from going out to help others, action which fulfills a need in anyone's life," he said.

Such satisfaction comes to Rev. Warkentin from the service his church provides in addition to its regular education program. A day care center accommodating 40 youngsters operates in the Elk Grove church, and kindergarten and Montessori classes meet there too.

"THE CHILDREN look at me as a very good friend . . . or a grandfather," he said smiling.

Concern for children and family is a major part of a pastor's life. Henry and his wife, in bringing up Phyllis and Tom, followed a philosophy of letting the children pursue their own interests.

"We felt if we gave them the best training possible, as we understand Christian training, then when they went on to college, they would take responsibility for their own lives," said the Presbyterian minister.

In his experience the major cause of the currently rising divorce rate is non-communication between marriage partners.

"People let little things pile up, go separate ways, meet someone else to talk to, close the doors at home."

HE SUGGESTS talking problems through, seeing the spouse as a person who needs to be understood. "Face the truth; don't blame someone else for your problems; and don't share them in the wrong place" is Rev. Warkentin's advice.

He believes alcoholism is another contributing factor to marital break-ups.

But Henry is confident the church and the family will survive "with work and dedication."

"Religion is a three-way street," he said. "It reaches out between soul and God and to our neighbors. The church is dedicated to strong family life. As long as there are churches, there will be families."

FOR YOUNGSTERS attending the day care center operating in Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, its pastor, the Rev. Henry Warkentin, is friend or "grandfather." Despite all the pressures and stresses facing today's family, he has faith that it will survive with the church's help.

What's meant by implied consent?

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

A friend of mine was picked up for drunken driving. He said he wasn't drinking and refused to take a breath test. The judge found him innocent; still his driver's license was suspended. If he's innocent, why did they suspend his license? I don't think this is fair. —T. A.

Dear T. A.

Every state in this country has an "implied consent" law, and this seems a good time to explain what that law means. The law entitles the police to make a breath test without the driver's consent because the driver, in effect, has already agreed to take it. This was the condition under which he received his driver's license. If he refuses to take the test, he has broken his promise and is held accountable because of it and not the drunken driving charge.

• This newer, stricter "implied consent" law went into effect July 1, 1972. If a person is not willing to imply a consent to take a breath test when accused of drunken driving, he or she will not have the privilege of driving a car, not only in this state but any other.

The law was passed to discourage offenders from refusing to take the test.

The reasoning behind its passage is that there is no way to simply look at a person and decide whether or not that person has exceeded the legal limit of the blood alcohol content which is one-tenth of one per cent.

Alarming statistics indicating that more than one-half of the traffic fatalities in Illinois were caused by drunken drivers hastened the enactment of the law.

• Does the law apply to the implied consent of blood tests?

No. In Illinois the law does not include the taking of blood samples

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

from drivers accused of drunk driving without their consent.

• What does the breath test consist of?

There is a device which resembles a box with a tube attached. A disposable mouth piece is placed on the tube and the accused person blows a sample of his breath into the machine. This breath sample goes through the tube and then through the device which measures and registers the percentage of alcohol in the accused's blood.

Q. My mother reads your column and she told me that some time ago you listed some interesting drunken driving laws of other countries in one of your columns.

We're starting a new safety-driver program at school and would like to have this information for it.

A. The drunken driving dilemma appears to be the same even in the most remote sections of the world.

In Australia, the drivers' names are printed in the local newspapers under a heading, "He's Drunk and in Jail."

Not only the offender, but his wife goes with him if he lives in Malaya.

South Africa confines the culprit to a 10-year prison sentence in addition to imposing a $2,000 fine or both.

Turkey has a sobering thought with its punishment. Drunken drivers are taken 20 miles away by police and forced to walk back — under escort.

San Salvador takes a parting shot at its offenders. Drunken drivers are executed by firing squads!

This may also be of interest (and useful) to you in your safety program. The U. S. Department of Transportation has a national registration service which permits any state motor vehicle bureau to obtain within 24 hours information on any driver's license that's been suspended, revoked or even denied.

(Attorney Martoccio's column is intended to inform, not advise. Send questions regarding legal problems of women and children to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Facts that would identify the writer are withheld upon request.)

A chance to focus on President Ford

Some people pretend to be so sophisticated. "Why," they ask, "should I drive 60 miles just to see a President? I've seen Presidents before."

Well, I hadn't. So, country girl that I am, I was really thrilled when my husband and I had a chance recently to attend a presidential press conference in Chicago for the Northern Illinois Newspaper Association.

We had to furnish assorted information for the advance security check; we got lost trying to find the Marriott; there were tornadoes all around us that Friday afternoon. But it was worth it all when we finally arrived. The room held maybe 250 people, which is practically an intimate little gathering by political campaign standards. And possibly a third of those were photographers.

SINCE I AM taking a beginning photography course, I elected to join my colleagues in the camera section.

"Colleagues" is stretching it a bit. My Kodak Retina Reflex goes back practically to World War II and doesn't even have a flash, much less a strobe. The professionals all around me had Nikons, Canons, Leicas and other "name" brands.

Most of them had at least two cameras, plus lenses out to here and all sorts of extra equipment. The average photographer there probably had a couple of thousand dollars around his or her neck, and heaven knows how much all the television equipment cost. Taking my Retina into that enclave was roughly equivalent to entering a Model T in the Indianapolis 500.

But I guess the President needs all the votes he can get as nobody asked me to leave.

AFTER WHAT seemed like a fairly long wait, a man came out and hung the new presidential seal on the speaker's stand and suddenly President Ford was actually there.

If you want to know what he said, ask somebody else. I was too busy taking pictures. Besides, there were cameras clicking all around me like loads of locusts. And the clicks rose to a real crescendo every time the President laughed or made a sweeping gesture. Besides, I had to change film in the middle of the whole thing, which is no easy task when you're just a beginner and too embarrassed to get out your instruction booklet.

Also, a Secret Service man was watching my every gesture very suspiciously. But I don't think it was anything personal: there were Secret Service men watching everything very suspiciously.

PARTICULARLY OMINOUS looking were the two up by the platform who might have been watching a tennis match. They'd look to one side, then back to the other and they didn't miss a thing throughout the whole affair.

I hoped they were the ones who would guard the photo equipment we had to leave behind when we went across the hall to the reception. I really hated to leave my camera but, as my husband pointed out, only the most retarded thief would steal my old Retina with all the other costly brands around it.

There were a few other assorted politicians at the reception, but the big moment came when the President walked in. And I noticed that the self-styled sophisticates who'd debated whether or not it was worth driving all that way just to see the President were right in the forefront when it came time to shake hands. Many of them even asked for autographs.

I didn't ask for an autograph, but I was really proud to shake his hand and exchange a few words.

OF COURSE, once you shake a President's hand you feel more or less pledged. In fact, I refused to go to a Wallace rally held the next day right here on the campus at home. It seemed somehow disloyal even to look at another candidate.

Besides, I needed to get to the darkroom and develop my film. One picture may not be worth a thousand words, especially if it's my picture. But it should be worth a vote.

And that, I suppose, was the whole idea.

Fat stomach calls for diet, exercise

I have a weight problem. It's my stomach. I seem to put all my weight on the stomach and it's really big. I am not big in other places, just my stomach. In other words, I have a fat belly. I don't eat a lot and in the evening I don't eat much at all. I do drink tea with sugar, but not too much. What could be the cause of my having such a big stomach?

Body fat distribution does have some hereditary and familial characteristics. A classic example is one of the African tribes in which there is a large amount of fat accumulated in the buttocks area. The accumulation is so large that it looks like a localized pillow.

Nevertheless, fat storage anywhere means excess fat. You probably do have excess fat inside your abdomen as well as whatever amounts you have underneath your skin. That will contribute to your problem. You can't squeeze down fat that's already inside the abdominal cavity with any form of exercise.

The two principal attacks on the belly bulge are simply a dietary program that enables you to eliminate excess body fat and an exercise program that helps you take up the slack.

Many people do now know how to exercise properly to improve the muscle tone of the abdomen. This is not accomplished just by simple situps or walking or bending over to touch the toes. What you need are leg lift exercises. Namely lying flat on your back and lifting your feet straight up from the floor. Moving the feet up and down in these types of exercises does tend to use the lower abdominal muscles and helps to eliminate that lower pot. While doing these exercises, it's important to voluntarily contract your abdominal muscles.

For more detailed information on how to control the big abdomen send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Would you please tell me whether or not hair continues to grow or thrive on the human body after death and explain why. What is human hair anyway?

You have been listening to old folklore. I used to hear that kind of thing when I was a boy and before I became a physician. One reason for this idea is that men often have to be shaved after death so that they won't appear to have a prominent beard. This is not because the hair has continued to grow, it is because the tissue around the hair shrinks. The shrinkage is due to loss of water in the skin and tissues.

Specifically, hair does not grow after death. Hair is nothing more than specialized skin. It is mostly protein. The growth of hair requires nutrients, especially protein, and oxygen which requires circulation, the same as the growth of any other body tissues. When death occurs and circulation stops, the oxygen supply stops and hair growth stops. I recognize this statement is probably going to be disputed by a lot of people who are firmly convinced that hair growth stops. I recognize this statement is probably going to be disputed by a lot of people who are firmly convinced that hair grows after death so I will say in advance that the scientific evidence is as I have stated it; the rest is folklore and misunderstandings of natural observations which are often embellished by enthusiastic story tellers.

Here's Senate recipe for bean soup lovers

Dear Dorothy: We love bean soup. Seems as if all my life I've heard of the U.S. Senate's great bean soup. Is there a way to get this recipe?—Mrs. J. F. Eggers

Here's the Senate dining room's recipe: Pre-soak one pound of white beans as directed on the package (usually overnight). Next day drain and put the beans in a soup kettle with three quarts of water and a ham bone which has some meat on it. Bring to a boil and simmer for two hours. Then stir in one-half cup of mashed potatoes, three medium-sized onions (diced fine), one bunch of celery (chopped fine) and one finely minced clove of garlic.

Simmer one more hour. Take out the ham bone, dice the meat on it and return the meat to the kettle. Add salt and pepper, depending on your taste. This amount is designed to serve six. Happy eating.

Dear Dorothy: I despise these new "childproof" medicine bottles. I've got a touch of arthritis in my hands and find that I often can't get the bottle open without help. Since we have no children around there's no reason for me to have hard-to-open bottles.—R. Rockmore

Apparently you missed one important part of the new bottling practice. You're allowed to request and use the old-style bottles. Just tell your pharmacist that this is what you prefer.

Dear Dorothy: I am suddenly having trouble with my laundry — using one of the carbonate powders that has never given any difficulty in the past. The clothes seem stiff to the touch and some are even spotty. Any idea what might be happening?—Mrs. J. Gauman

It sounds like undissolved detergent which could mean that the water isn't hot enough. Remember, too, that when the water's hard, carbonate powder tends to form a build-up on clothes.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Look Younger in the Face of Winter

You can look older sooner than you think. As early as your twenties, your natural moisture and oil supply decreases, leaving your skin vulnerable. Winter, with its chill weather, harsh winds and indoor heat can quickly dry your skin, making you look older... no matter what your age. Take a close look in the mirror. Is that really how you want your skin to look?

Now discover the secret of a mysterious beauty fluid, a secret shared by knowledgeable women of all ages in many parts of the world, who look their youngest no matter what the season. This beauty fluid, with its wealth of pure moisture and tropical oils, is known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion.

Oil of Olay works hand-in-hand with nature to ease away the dryness that can too easily make you look older too soon. The beauty fluid penetrates your skin's surface deeply and astonishingly quickly. And there's never, ever, a greasy aftereffect. The beauty fluid works almost exactly like your own natural moisture to soothe away dryness. # Richmond Research Team Discovers 'Enriched Flavor'

MERIT taste secret found by isolating key flavor ingredients in cigarette smoke, then adding them to tobacco.

In Richmond, Virginia, there's an eight-story building that houses the main Research Facility for Philip Morris.

Around the company they call it the Tower. It's here that pure research in tobacco yielded what might be the most significant smoking advance since the filter.

It's called 'Enriched Flavor.' It comes in the tobacco of a new kind of low tar cigarette.

MERIT.

Only 9 mg. of tar. Yet with astonishing flavor.

If you enjoy a full-flavor cigarette now — but would like to find a low tar smoke with a taste you can switch to and stick with — you'll be interested.

Key Flavor Ingredients Of Tobacco Isolated

'Enriched Flavor' was developed by "cracking" cigarette smoke down into its basic ingredients, and isolating special key units that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

'Enriched Flavor' is extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

We packed MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' and began a series of taste tests.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

Thousands of filter cigarette smokers tested 9 mg. tar MERIT against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much — or more — taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
and
JOE SWICKARD
President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace in the Illinois Presidential primary Tuesday.
Vote totals in the Northwest suburbs showed the Republican vote closer here than statewide where with 40 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ford received 147,153 votes or 60 per cent to Reagan's 97,362 votes or 39 per cent.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the vote. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at 11:30 p.m. were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine and Elk Grove townships and the apparent victor in Wheeling Township, where with most votes counted, Ford was leading 2 to 1. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.
Carter was the victor in the Democratic "beauty contest," his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, finished a poor third in the state. He said he would remain in some upcoming primaries but that he considered himself out of the race.

With 40 per cent of state tallies in, voting went 268,687 or 48 per cent for Carter, 148,370 or 28 per cent for Wallace, 101,184 or 18 per cent for Shriver and 45,003 or 8 per cent for Fred Harris.

With most votes counted in Palatine Township, Carter was an obvious winner.
IN THE RACE for convention delegates, with 5 per cent of precincts counted, Ford had won 36, Reagan, 14, Carter, 52, and Wallace, 4.
Voters picked 31 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name.

The apparent purpose is to enable organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation ready for brokering.
Ford telephoned his headquarters at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel at 9:30 p.m. to thank his campaign workers. He called the primary win "a great victory" and a "real clincher."
"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)"

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

by JACK PENCHOFF
WANDALYN RICE
and
KENT BAER
Michael Howlett was the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Gov. Dan Walker.
With 55 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker late Tuesday by about 100,000 votes.
Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.
Walker aides refused to concede defeat as returns from downstate showed Walker closing the gap.
The three major television networks early in the evening projected Howlett the winner based on sample precincts and United Press International at 11:30 p.m. also declared Howlett the winner.

"I would like a nickel for every percentage point those figures are off," Norton Kay, Walker press aide, said of the projections.
"It is now clear that Walker is going to carry every county in the state but Cook," Kay said at 10:45 p.m.
In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Wheeling and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.
Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.
HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.
Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.
Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.
Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.
Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF
James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.
In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.
"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.
Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.
SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.
O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.
At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

Hales, Nimrod pledge November support

Young victorious in 10th District

by GERRY KERN
LINDA PUNCH
and
JOE FRANZ
Republican Samuel H. Young Tuesday was the apparent victor in the 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading a three-man field with about 48 per cent of the vote.
With 334 of 529 precincts reporting, Young, a 53-year-old Glenview attorney, turned back challenges from Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod for the right to face Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.
Young was leading with 14,248 votes to 11,093 for Hales, a Winnetka attorney. Nimrod, a Glenview resident, was trailing badly with 4,315 votes. The vote totals gave Young 48.1 per cent to Hales 37.4 and Nimrod's 14.6.
THE 10TH CONGRESSIONAL district reaches from Des Plaines to the lakeshore, and includes Evanston, New Trier, Northfield, Niles and Maine townships.
Obviously pleased by the election results, Young called for Republicans to close ranks behind him to defeat Mikva.
"I want to extend a hearty welcome to Dan Hales and John Nimrod and their supporters to join the Young campaign for a unified and enthusiastic march to a November 2 Republican victory," Young said in his victory speech. "We intend to field a well-organized effort to elect a congressman the 10th District can believe in."
Although the vote tallies were incomplete, Hales conceded the election and promised to support Young in his efforts to unseat Mikva.
"While the results could turn around, such a reversal would be unlikely," Hales said. "When I started this campaign I had the goal of getting Mikva out of office. I haven't lost sight of that goal. I will work for Mr. Young in that manner."
Nimrod showed up at Young's campaign headquarters at the Glenview Country House Restaurant, Glenview, to congratulate the apparent winner.
"You've got a big job ahead of you," Nimrod said. "I'll help you. You know that."

Young's apparent primary victory gives him the chance to reclaim the seat he lost to Mikva in 1974. It will be the third consecutive election since 1972 that Young and Mikva, a liberal Democrat, have appeared opposite one another on the ballot. Mikva was unopposed in Tuesday's primary.

Young said, "I'll help you. You know that."

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.
He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.
Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.
And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?
PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.
That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.
So Joe was right again.
"Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.
"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."
WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,989 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomington Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomington and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid veto last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

Leverenz on top in 5th District

Freshman State Rep. Ted Leverenz, D-Maywood, appeared to be the top votegetter Tuesday in the three-way battle in the 5th Legislative District.

With about 60 per cent of the precincts reporting in the district, which includes the southern portion of Des Plaines, Leverenz had received 10,449 votes compared to 9,404 for State Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, and 4,919 for newcomer John Condeduca of Franklin Park.

A Leverenz aide said he was running like a "house on fire" in some areas of the district.

Vote totals from the Maine Township Democratic Organization for the 5th Legislative District were not available during the evening.

LEVERENZ FIRST won election

two years ago in a general election race which saw him oust incumbent State Rep. Richard Walsh, a Republican. The outcome swung the district from two Republican representatives to two Democrats.

In the uncontested races for the Illinois Senate in that district, Tom Paul of Des Plaines and Walsh both were nominated.

In the uncontested GOP primary for the Illinois House, State Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, and Robert J. Guerine of Melrose Park were nominated. Voters in the district will elect three of the four candidates in the November general election.

Neither Williams nor Condeduca were available for comment on the outcome of Tuesday's balloting.

Schlickman gains win; Pullen has narrow lead

by TOM WELLMAN and BOB GALLAS

Incumbent State Rep. Eugene Schlickman gained Republican renomination last night in the 4th Legislative District—but the race for the second nomination remained unresolved.

With approximately one-half of the votes tallied, Penny Pullen held a narrow lead, 2,465 to 2,210, over Roy H. Bergquist for the second nomination.

Schlickman, who has served six terms in the General Assembly, gained renomination on the basis of his strong showing in his native Wheeling Township.

WITH 34 OF 47 precincts reporting in Wheeling Township, Schlickman had rolled up 3,491 votes, compared to 962 for Bergquist and 961 for Pullen.

In Maine Township, with approximately 50 per cent of the votes tallied, Pullen had 2,337 votes, 400 more than Schlickman and 450 votes ahead of Bergquist.

Only scattered returns from six of 50 precincts in Niles Township were available, and they showed Bergquist with 163 votes and Pullen with 105.

Pullen, who lives in Park Ridge and has served as a legislative assistant to the late State Rep. Robert Juckett, said she was pleased with her strong showing in Maine Township.

Eugene Schlickman

"I'm better organized than anyone else," she said. "If this keeps up, we'll be fine."

Running behind the three top votegetters were Anne E. Marzullo of Niles, with 2,015 votes, and Gerald M. Rubin of Skokie, with 1,000 votes.

Rick Blaine, campaign manager for Rubin, said, "I don't think we'll have a clean-cut winner until later in the week after a vote canvass."

The 4th District includes the southeastern half of Wheeling Township, two-thirds of Maine Township and about 40 per cent of Niles Township.

River Trails Dist. 26 to cut 21 teachers, shut 1 school

The River trails Dist. 26 Board of Education Tuesday night approved an administrative plan to cut 21 teachers, increase class size and close one elementary school.

None of the district's five elementary schools was singled out for closing late Tuesday. Board members were discussing criteria on which to make the decision.

The plan calls for an increase of average class size from 20 to 26 students, with no class under 20 students and none to exceed 28.

THE CUTBACK IN teachers was 3.5 more than originally projected by district officials.

Board member William Haase said the school district stands to save about $300,000 by implementing the plan. Without increases in local taxes and state aid, the district will face bankruptcy by the 1977-78 school year if spending remains at the same level as this year.

Board Pres. Leora Rosen said the plan calls for dropping 1.5 teachers in music and physical education, 4.5 teachers at the junior high school level, 14 teachers at the elementary school level and one teaching consultant.

Mike Gibler, a member of the teachers' union negotiating team, said the union will have no immediate comment on the cuts.

Haase termed the plan a "most workable, reasonable solution" to the financial problems facing the district. "We are not creating anything grotesque," he said.

"It is the least lousy way to deal with the problem. The issue is clearly not one of what is desirable," he said.

"We're talking about the best available solution that does not affect the education process," he said. "This does not affect a single elementary school program."

SUPT. JOHN Fridlund said the plan was compiled by individual school administrators and that it was a "building-level decision."

Fridlund said the plan was based on a 26-student-per-class ratio and on the fact that one elementary school would be closed.

Mrs. Rosen said after the board had decided on the criteria for choosing a school to be closed, informational pamphlets would be distributed to district residents. She said residents would be invited to attend a public hearing to voice their views. The hearing date will be announced later.

Author's at peace when he writes about his home

by DIANE MERMIGAS

James Alexander Thom is doing what he loves most: writing about the people and lifestyle of his southern Indiana homeland.

But the town of Gasport, his birthplace with a population of 400, is a long way from Mount Prospect where Thom has done much of his freelance writing, including a 24-page photo-feature in this month's National Geographic on "Indiana's Self-Reliant Uplanders."

Thom, 42, returned home last spring to do the story and spent several months living and talking with the simple, self-supporting people of the Indiana uplands south of Indianapolis.

HE DESCRIBES the blacksmiths, craftsmen, hunters and homemakers of the region in colorful stories.

These timeless people continue plowing by horse, woodcarving and garden tending like their ancestors who migrated from the South in the early 1800s.

These are the people who once paid Thom's parents, a medical team in the area, with cattle and bushels of vegetables in exchange for health care, he said.

The land there is rich with forests and limestone and the people are rich in spirit.

"Most of my adult life I have lived in cities, writing about the complexities and anxieties of modern society. Now and then I need to return to these old uplands where I was born and raised because here, time seems to pause and let me think," Thom writes in his recent article.

THOM ABRUPTLY gave up a job with the Indianapolis Star in the mid-1960s to become a freelance writer.

He also gave up his position as senior editor of the revived edition of the Saturday Evening Post in 1971-72 in addition to his financial writing for the Wall Street Journal. He no longer writes speeches for businessmen and politicians.

However, he remains editor of "Nuggets," a philosophical, literary monthly magazine, and looks forward to the publication of his first book, "Let the Sun Shine In," later this year. He called his first book an "upbeat, common sense approach to living the good life" and "living like the rich without having to be one," he said.

But, a novel he currently is working on will be far different from this first book, "an effort to capture the character and philosophy" of his people.

THE MOST THAT Thom asks from life is to someday be able to build his own home in the Indiana uplands and to be a successful novelist.

He says he is "semi-contented" in the Northwest suburbs, but adds he would not be here if it weren't for the work of his wife, Cody Sweet, a non-verbal communications expert and lecturer.

Thom said the Indiana upland dwellers are inspiring to him; they have made him realize the most important things in life are simplicity and honesty.

"No matter what goes on with the rest of the world, I know from talking to those people that they will always get along. And they have more happiness and laughter than any of the rich people I know," Thom said.

Thom said he is concerned only with the tales of the "plain" and "common" people.

"I think that's what writing is all about. The novelist writes about people who are experiencing things in the world, hoping to help others understand life a little better," he said.

"When I was younger, I wanted to be a forester. But when I returned home from the Korean War, there were some things I wanted to write down, and I haven't stopped writing since."

Dist. 59 union members protest, but...

First-year teachers' contracts cut

The contracts of all first-year teachers were terminated by the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education while teacher union members protested the district's cutback procedures and called for a written rehiring policy.

Board members Monday approved 1976-77 budget cuts totaling $754,000, including the elimination of 30 teaching positions, to avoid a budget deficit next year. The teacher cutbacks are made possibly by current overstaffing and a projected 4 per cent enrollment decline, officials said.

More than 125 teachers attended the meeting Monday.

The board voted to notify all 55 first-year teachers that they will not be rehired next year. Supt. Roger Bardwell said the district usually loses 70-80 teachers at the end of the year and that these first-year teachers will "in all probability" be rehired.

BARDWELL SAID, however, that he advised the board to terminate the contracts because he could not assure that the positions will be open next year. By law, teachers must be notified 60 days before the end of the school year if their contracts are not going to be renewed.

Representatives of the teachers' union protested that the board's cutback methods of notifying all first-year teachers that they would not be rehired, when only 30 positions will be eliminated, leaves all those teachers "in limbo."

Bardwell said that the teachers will be rehired "as soon as we know how many resignations we will have."

Teacher Ruth Ross protested that the board "has a terminating policy, but there is no rehiring policy." She asked how these teachers would be rehired and whether they would be rehired before any new personnel were hired.

BARDWELL SAID the terminated teachers would receive "first consideration" when positions open up.

Also cut Monday were professional services staff members including a small number of psychologists, social workers and speech clinic personnel. Five administrative positions were eliminated. All staff cutbacks approved total $354,500 in savings.

Officials said the cutbacks will not directly affect educational programs, but will balance the district's budget if inflation is held to 5 per cent.

In other action the board agreed not to continue efforts to open an alternative school in September. Board members did agree to discuss establishing in the future a committee composed of parents, administrators and board members to study not only conservative alternative schools, but all varieties of alternatives.

ALSO TABLED FOR further discussion was a resolution to place more emphasis on discipline in all district schools. Board member Erwin Poklacki protested that passage of this resolution would be "telling principals what to do in their own schools," and said this was not the board's role.

School officials said there were very few residents who supported the alternative school at the public hearings, though in a district survey more than 400 families had said they would send their children to a conservatively-oriented alternative school.

Residents were concerned the district was spending money on an alternative school while a deficit is looming next year, officials said. Other sentiments expressed at the hearings were that the district's present schools are "good enough" and that if the schools need some changes, more discipline should be added to all the schools.

Some board members said residents would view the alternative school concept more favorably if alternative classes were established in each school, allowing the district to keep all its children at neighborhood schools.

Resident Sabra Patterson said alternatives in education should not be in the district at random "but at each school. The neighborhood school concept is important. Certainly it is feasible to offer one alternative class at each grade level" at all the schools.

Merger of two districts probed

Dist. 57 gets Dist. 26 comparison study

A study comparing enrollment, salaries, tax rates and programs in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 and River Trails Dist. 26 has been presented to the Dist. 57 Board of Education as part of an investigation into the merger of the two school districts.

The report, prepared by administrators in both districts, went to the Dist. 57 board Monday and will now go to the Dist. 26 Board of Education for study. The boards then will have to decide whether a merger of the two districts would provide any significant relief to their common problems of declining enrollment and financial deficits.

Enrollment in Dist. 26 is projected to decline 13.4 per cent from 2,420 students this fall to 2,096 by the 1979-80 school year. In Dist. 57 enrollment is projected to decline 17.9 per cent from 2,837 to 2,164 students during the same period. If the districts were combined, the decline would be about 15.8 per cent.

THE DECLINE in students spells financial trouble for the districts because state aid revenue is lost as the student population diminishes. Dist. 26 could face bankruptcy as early as the 1977-78 school year, when it will arrive at its maximum allowable indebtedness of $900,000. Dist. 57 has projected a budget deficit of $2 million in 1981. Both districts are in the midst of considering budget cuts to reduce their deficits.

Dist. 26 has seven schools and serves the northern portion of Des Plaines and northeast Mount Prospect. Dist. 57 has six schools and serves the central Mount Prospect area.

According to the administrative report, if Dist. 26 were to annex to Dist. 57, residents of Dist. 26 would be subject to Dist. 57's higher tax rate in education and operating funds and Dist. 57 would be subject to Dist. 26's higher rate in the bond and interest fund. If Dist. 57 would annex to Dist. 26, residents would pay Dist. 26's lower tax rate in the two funds. Since the districts are experiencing financial difficulties, the lower rate does not seem feasible, according to the report.

Other comparisons listed in the report included:

- Operating costs per student. Dist. 57 costs per student are $1,355 and Dist. 26 costs are $1,489 per student. Most of Dist. 26's higher costs are due to the construction of a new school and a lower student-teacher ratio.

- Hot lunch. Dist. 26 provides a hot lunch program for all its schools, while Dist. 57 does not. It is assumed that hot lunches would be provided in all schools if the districts are merged.

- Bus transportation. Dist. 26 transports students in kindergarten through eighth grade, while Dist. 57 transports only junior high school students. It is assumed that Dist. 26's transportation rules and regulations would be applied in the new district, if the schools are merged.

- Teacher salaries. While the starting salary for teachers are about the same in both districts, Dist. 26's average teacher salary is $13,200 and the average level of experience is 8.87 years. In Dist. 57, the average salary is $15,388 and the average years of experience is 12.

If the two boards of education decide to proceed with a merger, the merger could be accomplished through consolidation of the two districts or the annexation of one district to the other.

Under consolidation, any group of citizens can file a petition with the county board of school trustees to request a referendum on consolidation. The trustees would then hold a hearing and if they determine that consolidation would be in the best interests of the districts, a referendum would be called. If consolidation is approved, an election would be held to form a new board of education.

Under annexation procedures, the two boards or voters in each district would petition the county trustees. The trustees would then hold a hearing on the petition and can approve or deny the annexation. A referendum would not be required. The board members of the annexing district would then take over the operation of the combined district.

Record $15.2 million budget approved by city

Des Plaines officials have approved a record-setting budget of $15.2 million for 1976-77, an increase of 8.2 per cent over last year.

The budget, which takes effect May 1, was approved unanimously by the city council Monday night.

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, chairman of the city council's finance and insurance committee, said officials are attempting to hold the line on spending to ensure a balanced budget. The committee trimmed more than $500,000 from the budget requests of the city's department heads, but still surpassed last year's budget of $14.1 million.

THE BUDGET, BOLEK said, does not provide for new programs or the hiring of new employees.

He said it has escalated to a record-high figure primarily because of the rising cost of materials and labor, increases in employee salaries and the amount of money the city must pay into employee pension funds.

The budget provides for employee pay raises May 1, but officials have not revealed the amount because contract negotiations between the city and its police, fire and public works unions still are in progress.

The city granted its 400 employees a 6.5 per cent increase in salary and fringe benefits last year.

Although spending will increase, Bolek said recent tax hikes will bring in the needed revenue, and further increases will be unnecessary.

THE CITY WILL receive additional revenue from increases in garbage pickup fees, liquor licenses, vehicle license transfers, licenses for some trucks, water and sewer tap-on fees and property taxes.

The city also is expected to receive additional state income and sales and property tax revenues this year.

The city is considering several money-saving measures in 1976, including a proposal to reduce the city's work force and revise employee salary scales. City officials are awaiting the report of a consulting firm hired to study the matter before taking action.

Kindergartners program

The Maine-Niles Assn. of Special Recreation is expanding its services and programs to meet the needs of preschool and kindergarten age children.

As an extension of the seven park districts and recreation boards in Maine and Niles Townships, the association strives to offer leisure time activities for special groups.

Kindergarten children attending school in the morning are bused to a park facility three days a week. Parents are responsible for transporting the children home after the program. Those children attending the afternoon session of school are brought to the park by their parents in the morning and then are bused to school for the afternoon.

At the park the children have the opportunity to share in activities including cooking, music, crafts and outdoor sports and games.

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

With 55 per cent of precincts in Illinois counted, Ford had 219,688 or 60 per cent of the vote to Ronald Reagan's 45,894 or 39 per cent. Incomplete tallies showed Ford winning in all of the five townships in the Northwest suburbs, what was expected to be, a Reagan stronghold in Illinois and home of many of his campaign managers.

In the Democratic "beauty contest," Carter was the big winner, capturing his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, showed a poor third and said while he will remain in some upcoming primaries he said he considered himself out of the race.

With 55 per cent of state precincts in, Carter had 348,848 or 48 per cent of the votes, Wallace had 190,767 votes or 27 per cent, Shriver had 124,060 votes or 17 per cent and Fred Harris had 58,212 votes or 8 per cent.

With most votes counted, Carter was winning big in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Figures for Elk Grove, Maine and Wheeling townships were unavailable.

In the race for convention delegates with 19 per cent of precincts reported, Ford had won 58 delegates of the 96 Republican delegates and Reagan 12. Carter won 53 of the 155 Democratic delegates, Wallace 6.

Voters picked 72 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name. The apparent purpose is to enable the organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation for bargaining.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the race, Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at midnight were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine

and Elk Grove townships and leading 2 to 1 in Wheeling Township with most votes counted. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

Michael Howlett, the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Dan Walker, said early today he will go to work to "unite all the people in Illinois."

In a statement at 1 a.m. to a crowd of his supporters at the Bismark Hotel, in Chicago, he said his first job will be to "unite the Democratic party in Illinois."

Walker, who refused to concede defeat before going to bed at midnight, had earlier said he would support Howlett in November if he won the primary.

With 37 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker early Wednesday by more than 96,000 votes.

Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.

Walker officials at campaign headquarters announced their candidates would not have statements until later today.

"We're still picking up votes downstate. We've told our people to stay in the precincts," a Walker spokesman said.

"Mr. Howlett puts a great premium on courtesy. The courteous thing to do is wait for the other man to concede," a Howlett spokesman said. "If the other guy gets unreasonable, however, then we'll go ahead."

In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Township and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.

Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $30,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoe-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Clair County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again.

"Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes, things wouldn't be so bad.'"

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

Californian wins manager post

by LINDA PUNCH

Clarence Motz, 55, city manager of Stanton, Calif., will become the Wheeling village manager May 1.

He replaces Village Mgr. George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October and whose dismissal takes effect after Motz assumes office.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon Tuesday announced the hiring of Motz, saying he exhibits "the qualities of a strong managerial leader."

"We feel this will be a key asset in assisting the village government on the administrative side to some of its current problems as well as preparing it to more effectively handle our future concerns," Scanlon said.

MOTZ' STARTING SALARY will be $25,000 a year plus fringe benefits, including use of a village automobile. Passolt's salary is $28,600 plus fringe benefits.

Scanlon said Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974 and was manager in Blaine, Minn., for two years previous to that.

Scanlon said the board of trustees decided Motz "possessed the best combination of administrative qualities which related to the problems and areas of concern" of the village.

"He has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures," Scanlon said, adding Motz has a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz also has a record of reducing tax levies and "instituting many cost-saving measures," Scanlon said.

SCANLON SAID MOTZ said during interviews "that good relations between the village government and the business and industrial community were most important."

"He felt that growth of a community did indicate progress, but that such growth must be on a selective basis. There must be planning and strong administrative response to cope with pressing growth problems," Scanlon said.

Stanton is a city of 23,264 20 miles southeast of Los Angeles. The area is a mixture of industries and residences, with a population of low- and middle-income families.

Scanlon said Passolt, who was manager since 1971, will serve as village manager until Motz' arrival. He said the board will have to decide whether Passolt will remain to orientate Motz in his new position.

Village officials fired Passolt last year, saying he was not qualified to do a competent job as village manager. Passolt has not announced whether he has another job.

JAMES THOMPSON raised his hands in victory over a packed crowd attending his celebration following early vote projections declaring him the Republican gubernatorial candidate in November. State projections indicated Thompson would carry 86 per cent of the vote.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham headed Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,899 to Ayers' 2,865 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomingdale Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomingdale and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,786.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid vetoes last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 46, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

540 complaints reported of voting irregularity

By JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made. "We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with

LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

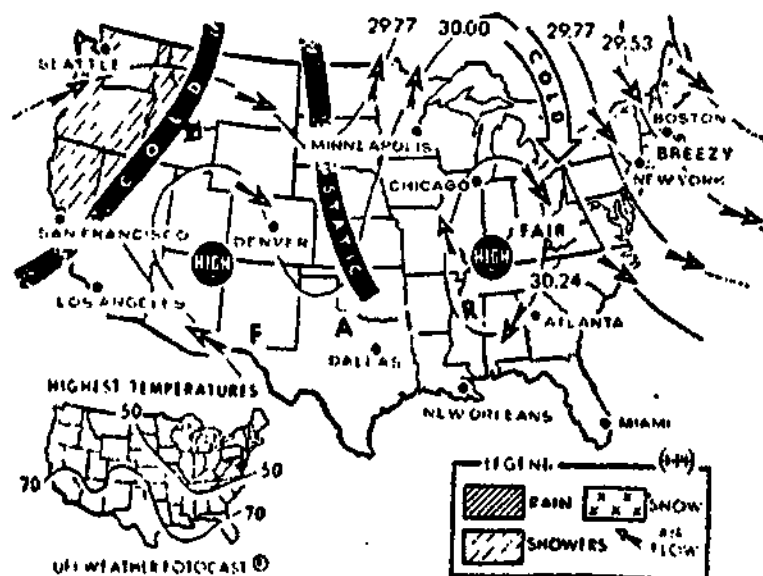

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Museum tax, home rule rejected in Lake County

Both the home rule and museum tax referenda were overwhelmingly defeated in Tuesday's primary election in Lake County.

With 41 per cent of the precincts counted, the home rule proposal was being defeated by a 6 to 1 margin, 18,400 "no" votes to 3,605 "yes" votes.

THE MUSEUM proposal was also losing with 14,479 "no" votes to 7,761 "yes" votes.

Approval of the .004 per cent increase would have meant a 40-cent tax on a home assessed at $10,000.

The home rule proposal, which would have created a county executive form of government and broadened the county's taxing power, was opposed by a majority of county board members and several area organizations.

On the museum tax defeat, Lake County Museum Association Pres. Wilson Brad Muse said Tuesday night, "It indicates people are just turned off on taxes, regardless of how miniscule they might be."

He added, however, that the apparent defeat "doesn't portend the demise of the museum."

"THE TURNOUT" seemed pretty heavy, judging from the judges' anxiety about running out of ballots," Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern told The Herald late Tuesday. No precincts actually ran out of ballots, as far as she knew, the county clerk added.

Fred Boyd, deputy county clerk, confirmed that there were some shortages of Democratic ballots, but no precincts had run out. He attributed the problem to a lot of Republican cross-overs and a "fairly hefty" turnout.

At 12:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dennis P. Ryan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lake County state's attorney, announced that he was surprised at his margin over his two opponents, Elliott S. Bacall and Nello P. Gamberdino.

Ryan's margin had not dropped below 47 per cent of the vote and was generally 50 per cent or more at the time. Ryan said he had won every precinct counted at the time when about 25 per cent of the precincts had been counted and 40 per cent of the vote tallied.

"I feel confident," Ryan said. "I think this thing will hold up."

IN INCOMPLETE returns, Ryan led the race for the Democratic state's attorney nomination with 5,487 to 2,809 for Bacall and 1,948 for Gamberdino.

John Miholic led the race for the Democratic coroner nomination with 4,593 votes, followed by Charles (Bud) Rose with 2,655; Marion G. (Red) Faber with 2,064 and John F. Vavrusa, 861.

William A. Kennedy led the Republican coroner race with 3,605 votes to 2,600 for Don Foreman; 2,888 for Robert H. (Mickey) Babcox and 976 for Herbert (Kelly) Horton Sr.

In Circuit clerk races, Bertha M. Ogrim with 5,095 votes led Mary McCrea Cizerle with 5,047 votes for the democratic nomination. Dawn Marie Mardolan led the GOP race with 3,935 votes to 3,296 for Paul R. Hatten and 2,956 for Harry Thomas.

Pulling the wool over our eyes?

Aggression study 'fleece,' Proxmire says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It cost $40,100 to find out, but the National Science Foundation has definitely determined a driver blocked at a green light will honk less at the car ahead of him if a scantily clad woman walks by.

The study Tuesday also won Sen. William Proxmire's "Golden Fleece of the Month" award for March.

The Wisconsin Democrat makes the monthly award for the biggest, most ridiculous or most ironic example of government waste. He said he was giving it to the NSF for its study of "Environmental Determinants of Human Aggression."

The National Science Foundation defended the experiment and said Proxmire had merely "pulled out a very small part of the whole study" for criticism.

IN WEST Lafayette, Ind., Dr. Robert A. Baron who conducted the study said "I'm almost disillusioned that somebody of such high status (as Proxmire) would pull something purposely out of context to attack."

The Purdue University social psychologist said Proxmire had looked only at a 2-week fraction of a 2½ year study of how heat influences human aggression. Almost all the work was in a laboratory that had used up much of the money in equipment for precision temperature control, he said.

That part of the project which drew Proxmire's attention involved stopping a car at an intersection for a red light and failing to start for 15 seconds after the light went green to determine when and how often the driver immediately behind the stopped car would become "impatient and aggressive enough to honk his horn."

TO SEE whether "environmental determinants" such as sexual arousal, humor and empathy reduced the amount of honking, Baron had a young woman wearing a variety of costumes walk past the stopped drivers.

For sexual arousal, she dressed "in an extremely brief and revealing outfit of a very unusual type," Proxmire said. Baron said the woman, a graduate nurse, wore brief red short shorts. For the humor test, she wore "an outlandish humorous clown mask" and in the empathy test, the woman "hobbled along on crutches and wore a bandage on her left leg."

Baron found that "the different costumes had their intended effect," Proxmire said.

"Not only did male drivers smile at the briefly attired young lady and watch her walk down the street, some whistled or made sexually oriented comments."

Also, the drivers honked less when the "injured" woman or the woman in the clown mask walked by, Proxmire said.

$1,500 in grants to Bicentennial unit

The Prospect Heights Bicentennial Commission has received $1,500 in grants to support its activities this summer.

The Illinois Bicentennial Commission has awarded a $500 grant to the city to help finance entertainment June 4, 5 and 6 when Bicentennial activities are scheduled, said Lynn Klotz, chairman.

Wheeling Township also has awarded $1,000 to the city which will pay for entertainment and an Indian crafts and artifacts display, she said.

The city's Bicentennial commission is planning a parade Friday night June 4, a funfair and a dance Saturday June 5, and an arts and crafts show and entertainment Sunday June 6.

Mrs. Klotz said the commission has a total of about $2,100 to finance Bicentennial activities, "which will be just about enough."

She said entertainment for the weekend will include a performance of country and western music by Robert Atcher, former Schaumburg mayor, and his family.

Prospect Heights was recently designated as a Bicentennial city by the Illinois Bicentennial Commission. Residents of the new city will celebrate their recent incorporation and their Bicentennial status at a dinner-dance May 14 at the Arlington Park Towers, Arlington Heights.

Tickets are $25 per couple and can be purchased by calling Mrs. Klotz, 255-9678.

Ex-Lake County sheriff seeks institutional release

The campaign by Lake County Board Member Glenn Miller to have Orville Clavey released to stand trial included the release of a letter from Clavey to Miller this week.

Miller, of Long Grove, has been writing congressmen to get support for Clavey's release from a federal psychiatric institution in Springfield, Mo.

Clavey was sent to the institution on March 3, after a panel of federal Appellate Court judges ruled that he was unfit to stand trial. Court-appointed psychiatrists had testified earlier he was depressed and unable to aid in his defense.

Clavey, a former Lake County sheriff, is accused of extortion and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged shakedown of the Cheetah II Tavern in Half Day.

MILLER, A PERSONAL friend of Clavey's, has launched a campaign for Clavey's release. Miller noted that Clavey has not been convicted of any crime, and wants to stand trial as soon as possible to clear himself.

Clavey's letter in part read, "I am in a cell 8' x 12", with a small bowl and toilet, and a window which looks to the next building. We are allowed no towel so I use toilet paper to keep clean. I have soap, and that helps, and we shower and shave every Saturday and Wednesday, at least that is the days so far."

Clavey said he spent most of his time reading the Bible, talking to the chaplain and praying. "By the mercy of God and the continuance of your labors on my behalf, I pray we will bring this nightmare to speedy conclusion," the letter said.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS take advantage of a clear day to put finishing touches on a chimney at the townhouse and single-family development, the Crossings development, Fremont Way and Arlington Heights Road. Construction is in full swing at the townhouse and single-family development.

Defense under way in Coles case

Federal prosecutors have finished presenting their case against former Lake County Board Chairman Ronald Coles, and the defense is expected to continue through this week.

Owners of four Lake County taverns testified against Coles for the prosecution, as did former Chief Deputy Sheriff Jerome Schuetz.

Coles is charged with five counts of obtaining money from tavern owners while he was county liquor commissioner, and two counts of filing false income tax returns.

COLES WAS COUNTY board chairman and liquor commissioner from 1972 to 1974. He was re-elected to the county board in 1974 and currently is a Dist. 4 representative.

Marino Petrucci, former owner of Marino's Lounge at Ill. Rte. 83 and Grass Lake Road, testified that he paid Coles $400 to get a liquor license for the lounge.

William Dugan, owner of the Country Music Inn at Ill. Rte. 21 and Aptakisic Road, testified that he gave Coles between $400 and $700.

Martin DeFoor, owner of the Cheetah II in Half Day testified that he paid Coles $2,500 prior to receiving a license, and paid $15,000 to Coles over an extended period of time. DeFoor said he made monthly, and later quarterly payments amounting to $1,000 per month to Coles.

Joseph Budy, owner of the Sahara Inn on U.S. Rte. 41 near Lake Bluff, testified that he paid Coles $300.

Schuetz testified that he had delivered the payments from DeFoor to Coles.

Author's at peace when he writes about his home

by DIANE MERMIGAS

James Alexander Thom is doing what he loves most: writing about the people and lifestyle of his southern Indiana homeland.

But the town of Gasport, his birthplace with a population of 400, is a long way from Mount Prospect where Thom has done much of his freelance writing, including a 24-page photo-feature in this month's National Geographic on "Indiana's Self-Reliant Uplanders."

Thom, 42, returned home last spring to do the story and spent several months living and talking with the simple, self-supporting people of the Indiana uplands south of Indianapolis. HE DESCRIBES the blacksmiths, craftsmen, hunters and homemakers of the region in colorful stories. These timeless people continue plowing by horse, woodcarving and garden tending like their ancestors who migrated from the South in the early 1800s.

These are the people who once paid

Thom's parents, a medical team in the area, with cattle and bushels of vegetables in exchange for health care, he said.

The land there is rich with forests and limestone and the people are rich in spirit.

"Most of my adult life I have lived in cities, writing about the complexities and anxieties of modern society. Now and then I need to return to these old uplands where I was born and raised because here, time seems to pause and let me think," Thom writes in his recent article.

THOM ABRUPTLY gave up a job with the Indianapolis Star in the mid-1960s to become a freelance writer.

He also gave up his position as senior editor of the revived edition of the Saturday Evening Post in 1971-72 in addition to his financial writing for the Wall Street Journal. He no longer writes speeches for businessmen and politicians.

However, he remains editor of "Nuggets," a philosophical, literary monthly magazine, and looks forward to the publication of his first book, "Let the Sun Shine In," later this year. He called his first book an "upbeat, common sense approach to living the good life" and "living like the rich without having to be one," he said.

But, a novel he currently is working on will be far different from this first book, "and an effort to capture the character and philosophy" of his people.

THE MOST THAT Thom asks from life is to someday be able to build his own home in the Indiana uplands and to be a successful novelist.

He says he is "semi-contented" in the Northwest suburbs, but adds he would not be here if it weren't for the work of his wife, Cody Sweet, a non-verbal communications expert and lecturer.

Thom said the Indiana upland dwellers are inspiring to him; they have made him realize the most important things in life are simplicity and honesty.

"No matter what goes on with the rest of the world, I know from talking to those people that they will always get along. And they have more happiness and laughter than any of the rich people I know," Thom said.

Thom said he is concerned only with the tales of the "plain" and "common" people.

"I think that's what writing is all about. The novelist writes about people who are experiencing things in the world, hoping to help others understand life a little better," he said.

"When I was younger, I wanted to be a forester. But when I returned home from the Korean War, there were some things I wanted to write down, and I haven't stopped writing since."

Head lice under control in Dist. 21

A head lice problem in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 appears to be under control although nurses are continuing periodic checks of students.

An outbreak of head lice was originally reported in September at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Field School nurse Audrey Stanowski said about 40 cases were found by December.

Mrs. Stanowski said in the last check conducted in January, only one new case of lice was found. No new cases have been reported since then, and another check will be made at the end of March, Mrs. Stanowski said Monday.

Head lice are small gray parasites causing chronic itching of the scalp and are easily transferable through contact with combs, hats and bedding.

Parents have been asked to continue checking their children for lice, Mrs. Stanowski said.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience. And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny. Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now I think you're interested when I tell you that of the 100 million Series E Savings Bonds that were sold in the first year, only one was sold in the last year. That's why we're here to stay.

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

With 55 per cent of precincts in Illinois counted, Ford had 219,888 or 60 per cent of the vote to Ronald Reagan's 45,694 or 39 per cent. Incomplete tallies showed Ford winning in all of the five townships in the Northwest suburbs, what was expected to be, a Reagan stronghold in Illinois and home of many of his campaign managers.

In the Democratic "beauty contest," Carter was the big winner, capturing his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, showed a poor third and said while he will remain in some upcoming primaries he said he considered himself out of the race.

With 55 per cent of state precincts in, Carter had 346,848 or 48 per cent of the votes, Wallace had 190,767 votes or 27 per cent, Shriver had 124,060 votes or 17 per cent and Fred Harris had 58,212 votes or 8 per cent.

With most votes counted, Carter was winning big in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Figures for Elk Grove, Maine and Wheeling townships were unavailable.

In the race for convention delegates with 19 per cent of precincts reported, Ford had won 58 delegates of the 96 Republican delegates and Reagan 12. Carter won 53 of the 155 Democratic delegates, Wallace 6.

Voters picked 72 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name. The apparent purpose is to enable the organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation for bargaining.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the race. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at midnight were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine

and Elk Grove townships and leading 2 to 1 in Wheeling Township with most votes counted. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

by JACK PENCHOFF
WANDALYN RICE
and
KURT BAER

Michael Howlett, the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Dan Walker, said early today he will go to work to "unite all the people in Illinois."

In a statement at 1 a.m. to a crowd of his supporters at the Bismark Hotel, in Chicago, he said his first job will be to "unite the Democratic party in Illinois."

Walker, who refused to concede defeat before going to bed at midnight, had earlier said he would support Howlett in November if he won the primary.

With 57 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker early Wednesday by more than 96,000 votes.

Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.

Walker officials at campaign headquarters announced their candidates would not have statements until later today.

"We're still picking up votes downstate. We've told our people to stay in the precincts," a Walker spokesman said.

"Mr. Howlett puts a great premium on courtesy. The courteous thing to do is wait for the other man to concede," a Howlett spokesman said. "If the other guy gets unreasonable, however, then we'll go ahead."

In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Wheeling and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.

Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoe-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 59, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again.

"Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

Lake County voters speak

Home rule, museum tax drubbed

Both the home rule and museum tax referenda were overwhelmingly defeated in Tuesday's primary election in Lake County.

With 41 per cent of the precincts counted, the home rule proposal was being defeated by a 6 to 1 margin, 18,400 "no" votes to 3,605 "yes" votes.

THE MUSEUM proposal was also losing with 14,479 "no" votes to 7,761 "yes" votes.

Approval of the .004 per cent increase would have meant a 40-cent tax on a home assessed at $10,000.

The home rule proposal, which would have created a county executive form of government and broadened the county's taxing power, was opposed by a majority of county board members and several area organizations.

On the museum tax defeat, Lake County Museum Association Pres. Wilson Brad Muse said Tuesday night, "It indicates people are just turned off on taxes, regardless of how miniscule they might be."

He added, however, that the apparent defeat "doesn't portend the demise of the museum."

"THE TURNOUT seemed pretty heavy, judging from the judges' anxiety about running out of ballots," Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern told The Herald late Tuesday. No precincts actually ran out of ballots, as far as she knew, the county clerk added.

Fred Boyd, deputy county clerk, confirmed that there were some shortages of Democratic ballots, but no precincts had run out. He attributed the problem to a lot of Republican cross-overs and a "fairly hefty" turnout.

At 12:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dennis P. Ryan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lake County state's attorney, announced that he was surprised at his margin over his two opponents, Elliott S. Bacall and Nello P. Gambardino.

Ryan's margin had not dropped below 47 per cent of the vote and was generally 50 per cent or more at the time. Ryan said he had won every precinct counted at the time when about 25 per cent of the precincts had been counted and 40 per cent of the vote tallied.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham headed Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,999 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomington Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomington and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid veto last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

In Circuit clerk races, Bertha M. McGrin with 5,095 votes led Mary McGree Cizerie with 5,047 votes for the democratic nomination. Dawn Marie Mardolan led the GOP race with 3,835 votes to 3,286 for Paul R. Hatten and 2,956 for Harry Thomas.

540 complaints reported of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made. "We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with

LEAP, (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

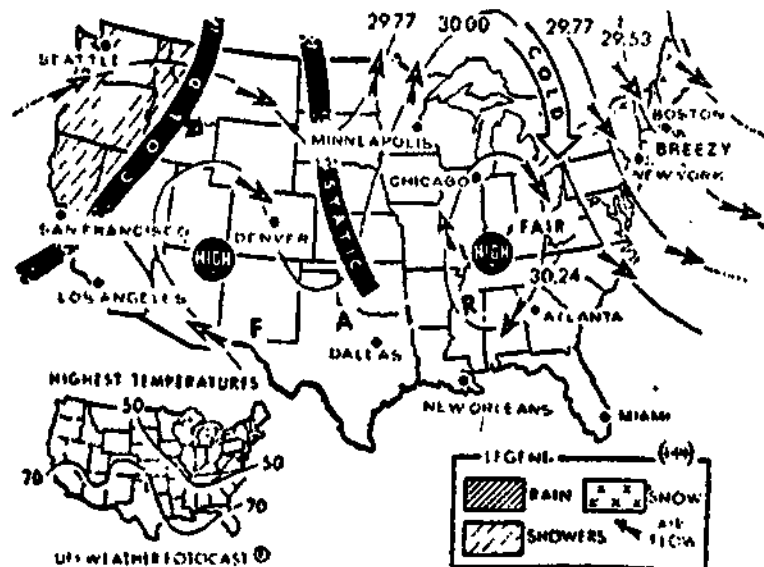

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Village board wrapup

Panel terms now uniform 3 years

Terms of office for most village commissions were changed to three years by the Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday.

Village Clerk Verna Clayton recommended three-year terms for village commissions with the exception of the fire and police commission, police pension board and zoning board of appeals. These three commissions are governed by state statutes.

The new procedure calls for one third of each commission terms expiring each year. The village has 12 commissions with terms varying from three to seven years.

Ordinances to be codified

Codification of Buffalo Grove's ordinances was approved by the village board at a cost of $4,133.

Codification collects all a village's ordinances into book form and examines them for errors and possible conflict with state and federal law. The entire process takes between nine and 12 months and will be conducted by the Book Publishing Co., Seattle, Wash.

William Whited, administrative assistant, said five bids were reviewed for the process, and Book Publishing Co. was the lowest bidder.

Water improvement fee hike OK'd

An increase in the Buffalo Grove water capital improvement fees was approved by the village board.

Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg recommended a detailed study of the village water system, but said increased costs of wells and storage facilities warranted the interim increase.

Developers of multi-family developments who now pay $150 per unit will pay $225 per unit, single-family developers will pay $300 per unit instead of $200 per unit, and commercial developers will pay $2,700 per acre instead of $2,000 per acre.

Chicago firm to lay carpeting

Office Equipment Co., Chicago, will lay the carpeting in the Public Service Center after submitting the low bid of $1,404.60. The carpeting will be tortoise shell green.

Four other companies submitted bids. Nearly $450 separated the highest bidder and Office Equipment Co.

Health board members renamed

Two members of the village board of health were reappointed and another was reinstated.

Mrs. Sheila Griffin, a former health inspector, was reinstated. Dr. David Seidel, a veterinarian and chairman of the health board, and Mrs. Joan Kuffel were reappointed.

Plaza Verde signs OK'd

Signs for two stores in the Plaza Verde Shopping Mall were approved by the village board despite earlier disapproval of the appearance commission.

The Sewing Basket and Sunshine Optical won approval for their signs upon which lettering differs from the Plaza Verde sign criteria.

Clavey asks friend's help to be freed

The campaign by Lake County Board Member Glenn Miller to have Orville Clavey released to stand trial included the release of a letter from Clavey to Miller this week.

Miller, of Long Grove, has been writing congressmen to get support for Clavey's release from a federal psychiatric institution in Springfield, Mo.

Clavey was sent to the institution on March 3, after a panel of federal Appellate Court judges ruled that he was unfit to stand trial. Court-appointed psychiatrists had testified earlier he was depressed and unable to aid in his defense.

Clavey, a former Lake County sheriff, is accused of extortion and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged shakedown of the Cheetah II Tavern in Half Day.

MILLER, A PERSONAL friend of Clavey's, has launched a campaign for Clavey's release. Miller noted that Clavey has not been convicted of any crime, and wants to stand trial as soon as possible to clear himself.

Clavey's letter in part read, "I am in a cell 6' x 12', with a small bowl and toilet, and a window which looks to the next building. We are allowed no towel so I use toilet paper to keep clean. I have soap, and that helps, and we shower and shave every Saturday and Wednesday, at least that is the days so far."

Clavey said he spent most of his time reading the Bible, talking to the chaplain and praying. "By the mercy of God and the continuance of your labors on my behalf, I pray we will bring this nightmare to speedy conclusion," the letter said.

Forest preserve unit meet Fri. morning

A special meeting of the Lake County Forest Preserve District Board of Commissioners will be held at 9 a.m. Friday in Waukegan.

Among the items on the agenda is a resolution supporting state legislation allowing forest districts to raise taxes from the current limit of 0.05 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to 0.075. The legislation was introduced by DuPage County, according to Forest Preserve Director Jerrold Soesbe.

Acquisition of three small parcels of land on the Des Plaines River north of Belvidere Road also will be on the agenda.

The meeting will be on the 10th floor of the county building, 18 N. County St., Waukegan.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS take advantage of a clear day to put finishing touches on a chimney at the townhouse and single-family development. Construction is in full swing at the townhouse and single-family development.

Wheeling names village manager

by LINDA PUNCH

Clarence Motz, 55, city manager of Stanton, Calif., will become the Wheeling village manager May 1.

He replaces Village Mgr. George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October and whose dismissal takes effect after Motz assumes office.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon Tuesday announced the hiring of Motz, saying he exhibits "the qualities of a strong managerial leader."

"We feel this will be a key asset in assisting the village government on the administrative side to some of its current problems as well as preparing it to more effectively handle our future concerns," Scanlon said.

MOTZ' STARTING SALARY will be $25,000 a year plus fringe benefits, including use of a village automobile. Passolt's salary is $28,500 plus fringe benefits.

Scanlon said Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974 and was manager in Blaine, Minn., for two years previous to that.

Scanlon said the board of trustees decided Motz "possessed the best combination of administrative qualities which related to the problems and areas of concern" of the village.

"He has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures," Scanlon said, adding Motz has a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz also has a record of reducing tax levies and "instituting many cost-saving measures," Scanlon said.

SCANLON SAID MOTZ said during interviews "that good relations between the village government and the business and industrial community were most important."

"He felt that growth of a community did indicate progress, but that such growth must be on a selective basis. There must be planning and strong administrative response to cope with pressing growth problems," Scanlon said.

Stanton is a city of 23,264 20 miles southeast of Los Angeles. The area is a mixture of industries and residences, with a population of low- and middle-income families.

Scanlon said Passolt, who was manager since 1971, will serve as village manager until Motz' arrival. He said the board will have to decide whether Passolt will remain to orientate Motz in his new position.

Village officials fired Passolt last year, saying he was not qualified to do a competent job as village manager. Passolt has not announced whether he has another job.

Author's at peace when he writes about his home

by DIANE MERMIGAS

James Alexander Thom is doing what he loves most: writing about the people and lifestyle of his southern Indiana homeland.

But the town of Gasport, his birthplace with a population of 400, is a long way from Mount Prospect where Thom has done much of his freelance writing, including a 24-page photo-feature in this month's National Geographic on "Indiana's Self-Reliant Uplanders."

Thom, 42, returned home last spring to do the story and spent several months living and talking with the simple, self-supporting people of the Indiana uplands south of Indianapolis.

HE DESCRIBES the blacksmiths, craftsmen, hunters and homemakers of the region in colorful stories.

These timeless people continue plowing by horse, woodcarving and garden tending like their ancestors who migrated from the South in the early 1800s.

These are the people who once paid

Thom's parents, a medical team in the area, with cattle and bushels of vegetables in exchange for health care, he said.

The land there is rich with forests and limestone and the people are rich in spirit.

"Most of my adult life I have lived in cities, writing about the complexities and anxieties of modern society. Now and then I need to return to these old uplands where I was born and raised because here, time seems to pause and let me think," Thom writes in his recent article.

THOM ABRUPTLY gave up a job with the Indianapolis Star in the mid-1960s to become a freelance writer.

He also gave up his position as senior editor of the revived edition of the Saturday Evening Post in 1971-72 in addition to his financial writing for the Wall Street Journal. He no longer writes speeches for businessmen and politicians.

However, he remains editor of "Nuggets," a philosophical, literary monthly magazine, and looks forward to the publication of his first book, "Let the Sun Shine In," later this year. He called his first book an "upbeat, common sense approach to living the good life" and "living like the rich without having to be one," he said.

But, a novel he currently is working on will be far different from this first book, "and an effort to capture the character and philosophy" of his people.

THE MOST THAT Thom asks from life is to someday be able to build his own home in the Indiana uplands and to be a successful novelist.

He says he is "semi-contented" in the Northwest suburbs, but adds he would not be here if it weren't for the work of his wife, Cody Sweet, a non-verbal communications expert and lecturer.

Thom said the Indiana upland dwellers are inspiring to him; they have made him realize the most important things in life are simplicity and honesty.

"No matter what goes on with the rest of the world, I know from talking to those people that they will always get along. And they have more happiness and laughter than any of the rich people I know," Thom said.

Thom said he is concerned only with the tales of the "plain" and "common" people.

"I think that's what writing is all about. The novelist writes about people who are experiencing things in the world, hoping to help others understand life a little better," he said.

"When I was younger, I wanted to be a forester. But when I returned home from the Korean War, there were some things I wanted to write down, and I haven't stopped writing since."

Coles prosecution finished; defense begins this week

Federal prosecutors have finished presenting their case against former Lake County Board Chairman Ronald Coles, and the defense is expected to continue through this week.

Owners of four Lake County taverns testified against Coles for the prosecution, as did former Chief Deputy Sheriff Jerome Schuetz.

Coles is charged with five counts of obtaining money from tavern owners while he was county liquor commissioner, and two counts of filing false income tax returns.

COLES WAS COUNTY board chairman and liquor commissioner from 1972 to 1974. He was re-elected to the county board in 1974 and currently is a Dist. 4 representative.

Marino Petrucci, former owner of Marino's Lounge at Ill. Rte 33 and Grass Lake Road, testified that he paid Coles $400 to get a liquor license for the lounge.

William Dugan, owner of the Country Music Inn at Ill. Rte. 21 and Aptakisic Road, testified that he gave Coles between $400 and $700.

Martin DeFoor, owner of the Cheeta II in Half Day testified that he paid Coles $2,500 prior to receiving a license, and paid $15,000 to Coles over an extended period of time. DeFoor said he made monthly, and later quarterly payments amounting to $1,000 per month to Coles.

Joseph Budy, owner of the Sahara Inn on U.S. Rte. 41 near Lake Bluff, testified that he paid Coles $300.

Schuetz testified that he had delivered the payments from DeFoor to Coles.

Head lice under control in Dist. 21

A head lice problem in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 appears to be under control although nurses are continuing periodic checks of students.

An outbreak of head lice was originally reported in September at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling. Field School nurse Audrey Stanowski said about 40 cases were found by December.

Mrs. Stanowski said in the last check conducted in January, only one new case of lice was found. No new cases have been reported since then, and another check will be made at the end of March, Mrs. Stanowski said Monday.

Head lice are small gray parasites causing chronic itching of the scalp and are easily transferable through contact with combs, hats and bedding.

Parents have been asked to continue checking their children for lice, Mrs. Stanowski said.

'Goodwife' to visit Eisenhower School

The Philadelphia Goodwife will visit Eisenhower School today to acquaint children with family life in America during the 1770s.

Mary Alice Helms portrays the goodwife, explaining meals, manners, clothing, home activities, occupations, schooling and life in a big city. Mrs. Helms, who appears in costume, uses posters and props in her presentation.

The program is sponsored by the Eisenhower School PTA. The school is located at Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
and JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace in the Illinois Presidential primary Tuesday.

Vote totals in the Northwest suburbs showed the Republican vote closer here than statewide where with 40 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ford received 147,163 votes or 60 per cent to Reagan's 97,362 votes or 39 per cent.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the vote. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at 11:30 p.m. were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine and Elk Grove townships and the apparent victor in Wheeling Township, where with most votes counted, Ford was leading 2 to 1. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township. Carter was the victor in the Democratic "beauty contest," his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, finished a poor third in the state. He said he would remain in some upcoming primaries but that he considered himself out of the race.

With 40 per cent of state tallies in, voting went 268,667 or 48 per cent for Carter, 148,870 or 26 per cent for Wallace, 101,184 or 18 per cent for Shriver

and 45,003 or 8 per cent for Fred Harris.

With most votes counted in Palatine Township, Carter was an obvious winner.

IN THE RACE for convention delegates, with 5 per cent of precincts counted, Ford had won 36, Reagan, 14, Carter, 52, and Wallace, 4.

Voters picked 31 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name.

The apparent purpose is to enable organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation ready for brokering.

Ford telephoned his headquarters at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel at 9:30 p.m. to thank his campaign workers. He called the primary win "a great victory" and a "real clincher."

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

and

KENT BAER

Returns late Tuesday gave Michael Howlett a lead over Gov. Dan Walker in the Democratic gubernatorial race, but returns from Downstate counties showed Walker closing the gap.

With 33 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker with 58 per cent of the vote to Walker's 42 per cent.

Howlett held a 3-1 lead in Chicago but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972. With 45 per cent of the vote in, Howlett had 406,501 to 399,133 for Walker.

THE THREE MAJOR television networks early in the evening projected Howlett the winner based on sample precincts. United Press International declared Howlett the winner at 11:30 p.m., but Walker press aide Norton Kay challenged the projections. "I would like a nickel for every percentage point those figures are off," Kay said.

In the Northwest suburbs, the two candidates were running a close race, but Howlett had a substantial 120,000 vote edge because of his strength in Chicago.

Kay predicted Walker would win all 101 state counties outside of Cook. "It is now clear that Walker is going to carry every county in the state but Cook," Kay said at 10:45 p.m.

Howlett three times delayed his arrival at his campaign headquarters at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

70 reported in suburbs

540 cases of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again. "Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 49 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,999 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomingdale Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomingdale and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote total came in his home Elgin area, where he bested Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid veto last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, of Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

Reagan to stay in race; declares his 'goals met'

Ronald Reagan, declaring that "we have met our goal in Illinois," Tuesday night refused to pull out of the Republican presidential race despite five primary losses and said he still has a "50-50 chance of winning the nomination."

Reagan, who read the Illinois primary returns at his ranch in Santa Barbara, released a statement through his press secretary that was read to newsmen in Los Angeles.

"We appear to have met our goal in Illinois with something over 40 per cent of the vote," he said. "I have never been under any illusions that our grass roots campaign could successfully buck both the Illinois Republican organization and the promises being issued so bountifully by the White House..."

"I look forward now to the North Carolina primary next week. And again I wish to assure my supporters that we are winning in the convention states and that the south and the west continue to look favorable."

"As long as this outlook remains unchanged, I am confident that we will go to the national convention in August with at least a 50-50 chance of winning the nomination."

Shriver drops out of race

Sargent Shriver virtually withdrew from the Democratic presidential race after running a poor third Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

Shriver, the party's 1972 vice-presidential nominee who has had no success whatsoever in his bid for the presidency, said he was dropping out of all future primaries save for Texas and his home state of Maryland.

"I learned enough to know that the process along the primary route is not meant for me," Shriver told his supporters at a downtown hotel.

Shriver said he may endorse another candidate, and campaign aides mentioned Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona as possibilities.

He attributed several factors for his poor showing in Illinois, but refused to lay blame on Chicago Mayor Richard Daley for failing to endorse him.

"He (Daley) never has announced as supporting a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president before the convention," Shriver said. "So far as I know, he never supported President Kennedy before the convention."

Big win surprises Carter

Presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter said in New York Tuesday night he was surprised to have won so big in the Democratic balloting in Illinois.

He said: "I'm very pleased... I did not expect to win that big." The former Georgia governor said he was looking forward to North Carolina where he faces Gov. George Wallace of Alabama again next Tuesday.

Illinois briefs

Phone only Ford foulup

President Ford apparently got his message across to Illinois voters Tuesday, but he had trouble getting it to some of his home town friends in Grand Rapids.

While results of the Illinois primary were showing he had won easily, the President decided to call about 1,100 faithful attending the annual GOP Lincoln Day dinner at Civic Auditorium.

He placed the call on a special telephone hookup and started telling his old friends and colleagues about his latest victory.

Then the President got cut off.

Organizers tried to make light of the situation, kidding that Democrat Richard Vander Veen, holder of Ford's old House seat, may have pulled the plug.

Within a minute, the President was back on the line. Officials did not reveal the cause of the mixup.

The President said he was pleased with his latest victory, and he considered it an endorsement of his administration's domestic and foreign programs.

"We're going to keep up our unbroken string of victories," Ford said. "I am convinced those programs will not only win the primaries but will win the general election."

Later in the evening, Ford telephoned his campaign headquarters in Chicago to tell former Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie the primary results were "great news" and "I'm very encouraged." He said the Illinois victory "is a stepping stone to North Carolina a week from now and then Wisconsin" April 6.

2nd place pleases Wallace

George Wallace, criticizing Jimmy Carter by name for the first time, said in Raleigh, N. C. Tuesday night "I feel good about running second" in Illinois — "I hope it stays second."

"I think second is good," Wallace said. "I think we did it with a minimum of organization and I think it is good." Wallace called Carter a "warmed-over McGovern."

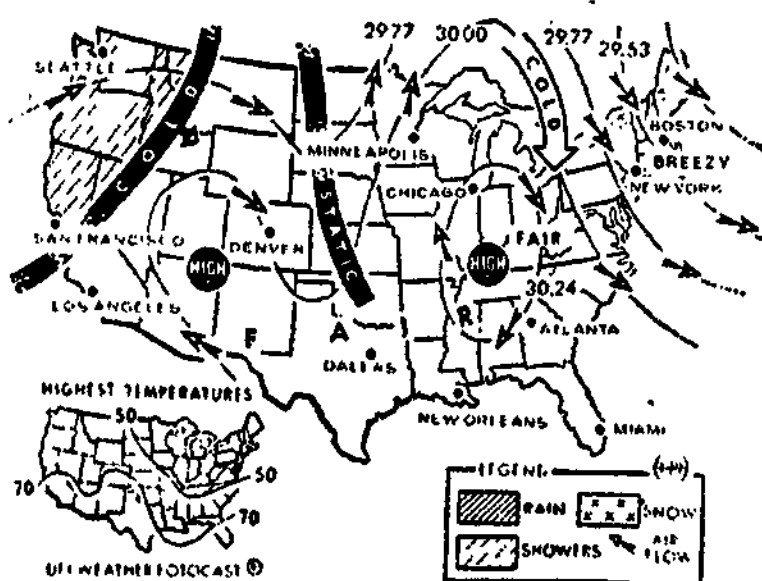

Although beaten by Carter in the first Democratic primary in the south in Florida, Wallace told a cheering crowd of 2,500 supporters at a rally, "I expect with your help and with the help of all the people in this state and the Raleigh area, to win this primary in North Carolina next Tuesday."

'Look into my eyes'

They looked into his eyes and fell into hypnotist Richard Calisch's spell.

Calisch, the head of Elk Grove High School's humanities department, exhibited his hypnotic skills on volunteers Sunday at the Elk Grove Village Public Library.

For those who fell under his spell, the trance produced hand-writing of a 6-year-old and an invisible glass wall. For those who resisted, it was an interesting show.

Few parents show support: officials

Dist. 59 vetoes alternative school plan

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has voted against opening an alternative school this fall.

The board Monday also voted to table a resolution to form a committee composed of parents, administrators and board members to study all varieties of alternative schools.

The board has been considering using one of the district schools for a basic academic program, that would stress rigid discipline. Board action Monday came in response to a series of public hearings where the majority of parents opposed the conservative alternative school.

ALSO TABLED for further discussion was a resolution to place more emphasis on discipline in all of the schools. Board member Erwin Poklacki protested that passage of this resolution would be "telling principals what to do in their own schools," and said that was not the board's role.

School officials said there were very few residents who supported the alternative school at the public hearings, though in a survey more than 400 families had said they would send their children to a conservative school if it were offered.

Residents were concerned that the district was spending money on an alternative school while a deficit is looming next year, officials said. Other sentiments expressed at the hearings were that the district's schools are "good enough" and that if the schools need some changes, there should be more discipline at all the schools.

Some board members said residents would view the alternative school concept more favorably if alternative classes were established in each school, allowing the district to keep all its children at neighborhood schools.

SABRA PATTERSON, a resident, said alternatives in education should not be in the district at random, "but at each school. The neighborhood school concept is important. Certainly it is feasible to offer one alternative class at each grade level" at all the schools.

Board member Lynn Helvie said: "I can't see the average and below-average child in this (alternative) school. I think we should put the better things we see in this school into our present schools and all will benefit."

Poklacki, however, said he believes "there are still parents who would like this type of school."

"It surprised me that some parents would not allow such an alternative for other children in the district," he said. "I would like to give the parents time to organize themselves so they can be heard by the board. I am sorry the parents who thought their children would benefit by the school did not come out and support it."

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
and JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace in the Illinois Presidential primary Tuesday.

Vote totals in the Northwest suburbs showed the Republican vote closer here than statewide where with 40 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ford received 147,153 votes or 60 per cent to Reagan's 97,362 votes or 39 per cent.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the vote. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at 11:30 p.m. were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine and Elk Grove townships and the apparent victor in Wheeling Township, where with most votes counted, Ford was leading 2 to 1. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

Carter was the victor in the Democratic "beauty contest," his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, finished a poor third in the state. He said he would remain in some upcoming primaries but that he considered himself out of the race.

With 40 per cent of state tallies in, voting went 268,687 or 48 per cent for Carter, 148,870 or 26 per cent for Wallace, 101,184 or 18 per cent for Shriver

and 45,003 or 8 per cent for Fred Harris.

With most votes counted in Palatine Township, Carter was an obvious winner.

IN THE RACE for convention delegates, with 5 per cent of precincts counted, Ford had won 36, Reagan, 14, Carter, 52, and Wallace, 4.

Voters picked 31 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name.

The apparent purpose is to enable organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation ready for brokering.

Ford telephoned his headquarters at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel at 9:30 p.m. to thank his campaign workers. He called the primary win "a great victory" and a "real clincher."

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)"

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

and WANDALYN RICE
and
KENT BAER

Returns late Tuesday gave Michael Howlett a lead over Gov. Dan Walker in the Democratic gubernatorial race, but returns from Downstate counties showed Walker closing the gap.

With 33 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker with 58 per cent of the vote to Walker's 42 per cent.

Howlett held a 3-1 lead in Chicago but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972. With 45 per cent of the vote in, Howlett had 496,501 to 309,133 for Walker.

THE THREE MAJOR television networks early in the evening projected Howlett the winner based on sample precincts. United Press International declared Howlett the winner at 11:30 p.m., but Walker press aide Norton Kay challenged the projections. "I would like a nickel for every percentage point those figures are off," Kay said.

In the Northwest suburbs, the two candidates were running a close race, but Howlett had a substantial 120,000 vote edge because of his strength in Chicago.

Kay predicted Walker would win all 101 state counties outside of Cook. "It is now clear that Walker is going to carry every county in the state but Cook," Kay said at 10:45 p.m.

Howlett three times delayed his arrival at his campaign headquarters at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

Today
Mike Klein's people

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again. "Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

70 reported in suburbs

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

JAMES THOMPSON raised his hands in victory over a packed crowd attending his celebration following early vote projections declaring him the Republican gubernatorial candidate in November. State projections indicated Thompson would carry 86 per cent of the vote.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,083 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,999 to Ayers' 2,663 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomington Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomington and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walker's 5,498.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walker by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 26 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid veto last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, of Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

Reagan to stay in race; declares his 'goals met'

Ronald Reagan, declaring that "we have met our goal in Illinois," Tuesday night refused to pull out of the Republican presidential race despite five primary losses and said he still has a "50-50 chance of winning the nomination."

Reagan, who read the Illinois primary returns at his ranch in Santa Barbara, released a statement through his press secretary that was read to newsmen in Los Angeles.

"We appear to have met our goal in Illinois with something over 40 per cent of the vote," he said. "I have never been under any illusions that our grass roots campaign could successfully buck both the Illinois Republican organization and the promises being issued so bountifully by the White House..."

"I look forward now to the North Carolina primary next week. And again I wish to assure my supporters that we are winning in the convention states and that the south and the west continue to look favorable."

"As long as this outlook remains unchanged, I am confident that we will go to the national convention in August with at least a 50-50 chance of winning the nomination."

Shriver drops out of race

Sargent Shriver virtually withdrew from the Democratic presidential race after running a poor third Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

Shriver, the party's 1972 vice-presidential nominee who has had no success whatsoever in his bid for the presidency, said he was dropping out of all future primaries save for Texas and his home state of Maryland.

"I learned enough to know that the process along the primary route is not meant for me," Shriver told his supporters at a downtown hotel.

Shriver said he may endorse another candidate, and campaign aides mentioned Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona as possibilities.

He attributed several factors for his poor showing in Illinois, but refused to lay blame on Chicago Mayor Richard Daley for failing to endorse him.

"He (Daley) never has announced as supporting a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president before the convention," Shriver said. "So far as I know, he never supported President Kennedy before the convention."

Big win surprises Carter

Presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter said in New York Tuesday night he was surprised to have won so big in the Democratic balloting in Illinois.

He said: "I'm very pleased... I did not expect to win that big." The former Georgia governor said he was looking forward to North Carolina where he faces Gov. George Wallace of Alabama again next Tuesday.

Illinois briefs

Phone only Ford foulup

President Ford apparently got his message across to Illinois voters Tuesday, but he had trouble getting it to some of his home town friends in Grand Rapids.

While results of the Illinois primary were showing he had won easily, the President decided to call about 1,100 faithful attending the annual GOP Lincoln Day dinner at Civic Auditorium.

He placed the call on a special telephone hookup and started telling his old friends and colleagues about his latest victory.

Then the President got cut off.

Organizers tried to make light of the situation, kidding that Democrat Richard Vander Veen, holder of Ford's old House seat, may have pulled the plug.

Within a minute, the President was back on the line. Officials did not reveal the cause of the mixup.

The President said he was pleased with his latest victory, and he considered it an endorsement of his administration's domestic and foreign programs.

"We're going to keep up our unbroken string of victories," Ford said. "I am convinced those programs will not only win the primaries but will win the general election."

Later in the evening, Ford telephoned his campaign headquarters in Chicago to tell former Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie the primary results were "great news" and "I'm very encouraged." He said the Illinois victory "is a stepping stone to North Carolina a week from now and then Wisconsin" April 6.

2nd place pleases Wallace

George Wallace, criticizing Jimmy Carter by name for the first time, said in Raleigh, N. C. Tuesday night "I feel good about running second" in Illinois — "I hope it stays second."

"I think second is good," Wallace said. "I think we did it with a minimum of organization and I think it is good." Wallace called Carter a "warmed-over McGovern."

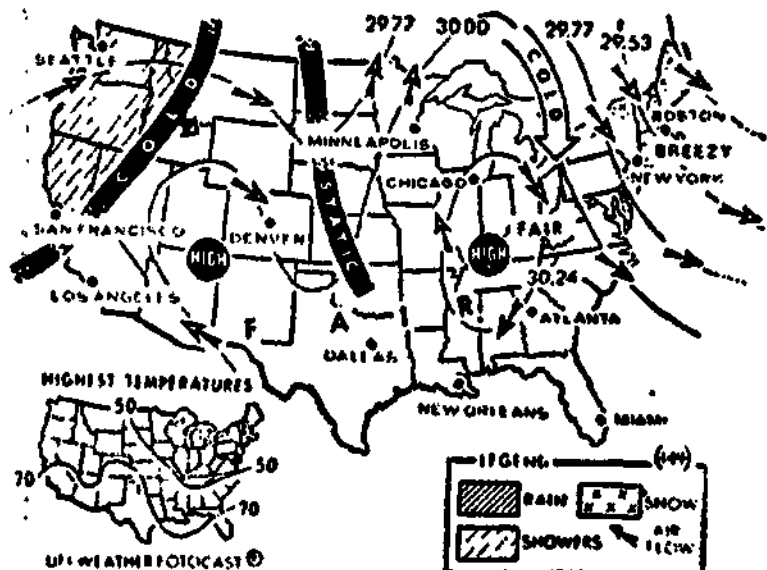

Although beaten by Carter in the first Democratic primary in the south in Florida, Wallace told a cheering crowd of 2,500 supporters at a rally, "I expect with your help and with the help of all the people in this state and the Raleigh area, to win this primary in North Carolina next Tuesday."

Alleged beatings case

Ex-bouncer's testimony sought for B'Ginnings

by PAT GERLACH

A former employee of B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, will be subpoenaed to testify when a hearing by the Schaumburg Liquor Commission into alleged beatings at the club continues March 25.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessel agreed Tuesday to continue the hearing to allow Harry Froese, a former bouncer at the club, to be subpoenaed. Also expected at the hearing is Jay Heckman, who with Anthony Pauletto and Danny Seraphine, a drummer with the rock group "Chicago," own B'Ginnings.

The hearing is being held to determine if the club's liquor license should be suspended.

SIX PERSONS, one a Schaumburg police detective, testified March 5 that they were physically mistreated by Froese and other doormen at the club.

Pauletto, an attorney, presented the club's defense Tuesday and also testified he sent written codes of conduct to employees in December after several incidents came to his attention during a telephone conversation with Police Chief Martin Conroy.

"I instructed our employees to use restraint, common sense and a little class in dealing with patrons who were first to exhibit force when asked to leave the club," Pauletto said.

In other testimony, club manager Dino Kolletis said he "put to work" several minors who, have visited the club before its 8 p.m. opening time. The youths were given jobs cleaning table tops and mirrors "because I'm kind, and I was kind to every kid who came in, and I knew some of them couldn't go home until school was out at 3 p.m.," Kolletis said.

KOLLETIS ALSO said salesmen and other adults occasionally bring their children into the club to see it during nonbusiness hours.

He estimated monthly business attendance at between 9,000 and 12,000 persons.

B'Ginnings, a singles bar, opened in July 1974. Kolletis has been manager since July 1975.

Within five days after the hearing concludes, Kessel must decide if the club's liquor license should be suspended. Kessel, as village president, also serves as village liquor commissioner.

Runaways' case 'one in a million'

Crime spree ends for 3 youths

Schaumburg police called it a case of "one in a million" after arresting three Florida runaways early Tuesday for a string of recent crimes in four states.

A 14-year-old youth was arrested Monday morning for allegedly shoplifting a $7.50 necklace from J. C. Penney Co. in Woodfield Shopping Center.

During police questioning, the youth admitted he and two other youths had run away from Florida, stolen a car and committed crimes ranging from theft to purse snatching in Florida, Georgia, Indiana, and Illinois, Schaumburg youth officer Dennis Hogs said.

Police were unable to find the other two runaways. But when two patrolmen were driving to Chicago on Interstate-90 about 1 a.m., their prisoner pointed out a passing car and identified the occupants as his accomplices, Hogs reported.

Patrolmen Michael Egan and Ted Pryka, with assistance from Maywood police, stopped the vehicle.

Hogs said the youths stole a car in Florida, bilked a person under the promise to buy some heroin, stole license plates from a car in Florida, bilked two service stations, stole a purse from a woman in Tennessee, stole groceries from a woman in Indiana and also shoplifted from an Indiana store. Hogs reported the youths also stole a purse from an elderly woman north of Chicago. A quantity of knives and non-chachu sticks were found in the stopped car, Hogs said.

The runaways were taken to the Andy Home, Chicago, pending an investigation by authorities.

Village board change plan dropped

A proposal to change the makeup of the Hoffman Estates Village Board has been dropped.

Trustee Ralph Lyster, who proposed earlier this year the possible expansion of the seven-member board, has agreed to drop the proposal after other trustees declined to support the discussion.

Most trustees said they would oppose increasing the number of village board seats or changing to an aldermanic form of government in which officials would be elected from wards rather than at-large.

"I am not in favor of expanding the board," Trustee Bruce Lind said. "If there were 15 on the board, we'd be going home (from meetings) about the time the milkman comes around."

Lind added he would oppose changing to an aldermanic form of government because he prefers election of trustees by all the village, not just a geographic area.

The aldermanic system also drew negative responses from trustees William Palmer and William Cowin, who said the system has "inherent parochialism and is not in the best interests of the community."

Trustee Jeanne Pavey said a ward system could lead to "empire building" and patronage.

"We just don't need it," she said. "And there is no need to enlarge the board."

Lyster withdrew his request for the study following the trustees' comments.

Deadline today for park post applications

Deadline for applications for Hoffman Estates Park District commissioner is 5 p.m. today.

Park Board Pres. George Rush said Monday he has received three applications for the positions.

The park board will appoint two of the applicants to replace commissioners Shirley Gibbons and Anthony Stompanato who resigned last month.

Appointment applications should carry a resume of community work, personal background and a cover letter, Rush said. Only applications postmarked by Wednesday will be accepted, he added.

"I've talked to our attorney and found out there are two ways we can legally fill our vacancies," Rush said. "One is appointment and the other is to wait until the next general election (next spring)."

The current park district code does not mention anything about a special election, he added.

"From what I've been told (by the attorney), the park board can be held responsible for whatever money it takes to hold a special election," Rush said. "We're just not authorized to spend money that way."

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
and JILL BETTNER
and JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace in the Illinois Presidential primary Tuesday.

Vote totals in the Northwest suburbs showed the Republican vote closer here than statewide where with 40 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ford received 147,153 votes or 40 per cent to Reagan's 97,362 votes or 39 per cent.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the vote. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at 11:30 p.m. were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine and Elk Grove townships and the apparent victor in Wheeling Township, where with most votes counted, Ford was leading 2 to 1. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

Carter was the victor in the Democratic "beauty contest," his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, finished a poor third in the state. He said he would remain in some upcoming primaries but that he considered himself out of the race.

With 40 per cent of state tallies in, voting went 268,887 or 48 per cent for Carter, 145,870 or 26 per cent for Wallace, 101,184 or 18 per cent for Shriver

and 45,003 or 8 per cent for Fred Harris.

With most votes counted in Palatine Township, Carter was an obvious winner.

IN THE RACE for convention delegates, with 5 per cent of precincts counted, Ford had won 38, Reagan, 14, Carter, 52, and Wallace, 4.

Voters picked 31 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name.

The apparent purpose is to enable organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation ready for brokering.

Ford telephoned his headquarters at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel at 9:30 p.m. to thank his campaign workers. He called the primary win "a great victory" and a "real clincher."

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)"

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

and WANDALYN RICE
and
KENT BAER

Returns late Tuesday gave Michael Howlett a lead over Gov. Dan Walker in the Democratic gubernatorial race, but returns from Downstate counties showed Walker closing the gap.

With 33 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker with 58 per cent of the vote to Walker's 42 per cent.

Howlett held a 3-1 lead in Chicago but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972. With 45 per cent of the vote in, Howlett had 406,501 to 309,133 for Walker.

THE THREE MAJOR television networks early in the evening projected Howlett the winner based on sample precincts. United Press International declared Howlett the winner at 11:30 p.m., but Walker press aide Norton Kay challenged the projections. "I would like a nickel for every percentage point those figures are off," Kay said.

In the Northwest suburbs, the two candidates were running a close race, but Howlett had a substantial 120,000 vote edge because of his strength in Chicago.

Kay predicted Walker would win all 101 state counties outside of Cook. "It is now clear that Walker is going to carry every county in the state but Cook," Kay said at 10:45 p.m.

Howlett three times delayed his arrival at his campaign headquarters at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant-governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

70 reported in suburbs

540 cases of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.9 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again. "Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

Council question also on ballot

Judge slates June 12 for city manager vote

by JERRY THOMAS
A Rolling Meadows city manager referendum will be held June 12. Cook County Circuit Judge Harry Comerford Monday set the referendum date during a hearing to consider possible challenges to petitions requesting the referendum.

The petitions were filed Feb. 20 by Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer. There were no challenges brought against the petitions, which contain approximately 440 signatures. Meyer's petitions blocked an attempt by the city council to hold a referendum April 3 that would have asked residents to approve establishing a city manager-council form of government and continuing to elect two aldermen from each ward.

AFTER MEYER vetoed the council's referendum action, he filed petitions to add a third referendum question asking residents if one instead of two aldermen should be elected from each of the city's five wards.

Aldermen had opposed including the controversial question on council size because they said it was unnecessary.

"I'm pleased. Now it will be up to the residents to decide the size of the city council," Meyer said. "If they feel two aldermen from each ward is what they want, they can vote 'yes' to that question, but if they want only one from each ward they can vote that question."

"The aldermen's referendum gave the residents no other choice if they said they did not want the council to remain the same," Meyer said.

Palatine delays ruling on 5-town lake water unit

Palatine officials will withhold a decision whether to join SHARE, a group of five Northwest suburbs working to get Lake Michigan water to the suburbs, until more information about the organization is obtained.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig was instructed by the village board to continue attending SHARE meetings and keep the board informed about the group's activities.

SHARE, which includes Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, is seeking $5,000 contributions from other villages that want to join the group.

SHARE, which was organized through meetings with village managers of each town, is attempting to obtain Lake Michigan water for the suburbs, Harwig said. The group differs from DAMP, an organization including Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine, because SHARE is not established by state statute.

DAMP, WHICH has been in existence for more than 15 years, seeks to construct an independent water pipeline system to Lake Michigan to provide water for its four members, who in turn can sell water to other suburbs, Harwig said.

Harwig added that DAMP has been seeking an allocation of Lake Michigan water through the Cook County Circuit Court rather than purchasing water from Chicago. SHARE seeks Lake Michigan water, even if it must be purchased from Chicago.

Harwig said he has tentatively planned to include the $5,000 membership cost in the 1976-77 budget for officials to discuss during upcoming budget talks.

Harwig will attend a SHARE meeting Thursday and report back to the board.

In Schaumburg singles bar case

Ex-bouncer's testimony sought

by PAT GERLACH

A former employee of B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, will be subpoenaed to testify when a hearing by the Schaumburg Liquor Commission into alleged beatings at the club continues March 25.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessell agreed Tuesday to continue the hearing to allow Harry Frossard, a former bouncer at the club, to be subpoenaed. Also expected at the hearing is Jay Heckman, who with Anthony Pauletto and Danny Seraphine, a drummer with the rock group "Chicago," own B'Ginnings.

The hearing is being held to determine if the club's liquor license should be suspended.

SIX PERSONS, one a Schaumburg police detective, testified March 5 that they were physically mistreated by Frossard and other doormen at the club.

Pauletto, an attorney, presented the club's defense Tuesday and also testified he sent written codes of conduct to employees in December after several incidents came to his attention during a telephone conversation with Police Chief Martin Conroy.

"I instructed our employees to use restraint, common sense and a little class in dealing with patrons who were first to exhibit force when asked to leave the club," Pauletto said.

In other testimony, club manager Dino Kolletis said he "put to work" several minors who, have visited the club before its 3 p.m. opening time. The youths were given jobs cleaning table tops and mirrors "because I'm kind, and I was kind to every kid who came in, and I knew some of them couldn't go home until school was out at 3 p.m.," Kolletis said.

KOLLETIS ALSO said salesmen and other adults occasionally bring their children into the club to see it during nonbusiness hours.

He estimated monthly business attendance at between 9,000 and 12,000 persons.

B'Ginnings, a singles bar, opened in July 1974. Kolletis has been manager since July 1975.

Within five days after the hearing concludes, Kessell must decide if the club's liquor license should be suspended. Kessell, as village president, also serves as village liquor commissioner.

Clavey asks aid in freedom search

The campaign by Lake County Board Member Glenn Miller to have Orville Clavey released to stand trial included the release of a letter from Clavey to Miller this week.

Miller, of Long Grove, has been writing congressmen to get support for Clavey's release from a federal psychiatric institution in Springfield, Mo.

Clavey was sent to the institution on March 3, after a panel of federal Appellate Court judges ruled that he was unfit to stand trial. Court-appointed psychiatrists had testified earlier he was depressed and unable to aid in his defense.

Clavey, a former Lake County sheriff, is accused of extortion and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged shutdown of the Cheetah II Tavern in Half Day.

MILLER, A PERSONAL friend of Clavey's, has launched a campaign for Clavey's release. Miller noted that Clavey has not been convicted of any crime, and wants to stand trial as soon as possible to clear himself.

Clavey's letter in part read, "I am in a cell 6' x 12', with a small bowl and toilet, and a window which looks to the next building. We are allowed no towel so I use toilet paper to keep clean. I have soap, and that helps, and we shower and shave every Saturday and Wednesday, at least that is the days so far."

Clavey said he spent most of his time reading the Bible, talking to the chaplain and praying. "By the mercy of God and the continuance of your labors on my behalf, I pray we will bring this nightmare to speedy conclusion," the letter said.

The sports complex is located at 3900 Owl Dr. Under a joint agreement between the Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights park districts, residents from both communities may use the ice arena at resident fees. Skates are available for rental.

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

With 55 per cent of precincts in Illinois counted, Ford had 219,686 or 60 per cent of the vote to Ronald Reagan's 46,964 or 30 per cent. Incomplete tallies showed Ford winning in all of the five townships in the Northwest suburbs, what was expected to be, a Reagan stronghold in Illinois and home of many of his campaign managers.

In the Democratic "beauty contest," Carter was the big winner, capturing his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, showed a poor third and said while he will remain in some upcoming primaries he said he considered himself out of the race.

With 55 per cent of state precincts in, Carter had 346,848 or 48 per cent of the votes, Wallace had 190,767 votes or 27 per cent, Shriver had 124,060 votes or 17 per cent and Fred Harris had 58,212 votes or 8 per cent.

With most votes counted, Carter was winning big in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Figures for Elk Grove, Maine and Wheeling townships were unavailable.

In the race for convention delegates with 19 per cent of precincts reported, Ford had won 58 delegates of the 96 Republican delegates and Reagan 12. Carter won 63 of the 155 Democratic delegates, Wallace 6.

Voters picked 72 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name. The apparent purpose is to enable the organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation for bargaining.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the race. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at midnight were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine

and Elk Grove townships and leading 2 to 1 in Wheeling Township with most votes counted. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

by JACK PENCHOFF
WANDALYN RICE
and
KURT BAER

Michael Howlett, the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Dan Walker, said early today he will go to work to "unite all the people in Illinois."

In a statement at 1 a.m. to a crowd of his supporters at the Bismark Hotel, in Chicago, he said his first job will be to "unite the Democratic party in Illinois."

Walker, who refused to concede defeat before going to bed at midnight, had earlier said he would support Howlett in November if he won the primary.

With 57 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker early Wednesday by more than 96,000 votes.

Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.

Walker officials at campaign headquarters announced their candidates would not have statements until later today.

"We're still picking up votes downtown. We've told our people to stay in the precincts," a Walker spokesman said.

"Mr. Howlett puts a great premium on courtesy. The courteous thing to do is wait for the other man to concede," a Howlett spokesman said. "If the other guy gets unreasonable, however, then we'll go ahead."

In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Wheeling and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.

Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downtown precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stackler for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoe-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Claire County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 84 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would carry the state, noting he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

Graham gets Senate bid with ease

by TONI GINETTI
JERRY THOMAS
LUISA GINETTI

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, coasted to an easy nomination victory Tuesday night, defeating his 2nd District Republican challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-to-1 margin.

Graham, an 18-year veteran of the state senate and current assistant minority leader, had little trouble holding off Ayers' bid for the party's senatorial nomination.

With most votes counted from Cook and DuPage counties, Graham of Barrington had a 6,359-3,266 edge over Ayers, a 33-year-old high school teacher and an auditor on the Bloomington Township Board.

Graham's Democratic opponent in November will be Marshall R. Rothman of Barrington.

THE 2ND DISTRICT covers portions of a four-county area, including most of Palatine Township in Cook County and parts of Kane, Lake and DuPage counties.

"We're winning big, really big," Graham said as the early totals were counted. "I think Ayers will make a good teacher."

"The electorate has spoken in agreement with the senator from Barrington," he added.

Vote totals from most townships showed Graham carrying a strong lead over Ayers. In Hanover Township Graham held an early 2-1 margin. In Palatine Township, Graham's 2-1 margin also held with 2,437 for Graham and 1,181 for Ayers.

In DuPage County, Graham's strength was not as great, with only about 400 votes separating the two candidates. "I did not do as good as I wanted to in DuPage," Graham conceded. Graham received 1,285 votes to Ayers' 890, with most DuPage precincts reporting.

EARLY RESULTS from Kane County gave Graham 2,638 votes to Ayers' 1,195, with 36 per cent of the vote counted.

Graham credited "hard campaign work" and his senatorial record for bringing in "an overwhelming" victory.

Ayers, in his first bid for a statewide office, expressed disappointment in vote totals from some areas where he had expected stronger support.

AYERS HAD hoped to do well in Bloomington and Elgin Townships where he had campaigned heavily, and he had hoped to run even with Graham in Palatine Township. He failed to carry any of the townships and in four Palatine Township precincts in the Plum Grove Estates area, for example, he also failed to do well.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,999 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomingdale Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomingdale and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 36 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,461 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid vetoes last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

STATE SEN. JOHN Graham, R-Barrington, smiles relishing his victory Tuesday night over challenger Terry Ayers for another chance to represent the 2nd District. Graham had 4,999 votes late Tuesday night compared to Ayers' 2,665.

Roger C. Stanley and incumbent State Rep. John Friedland outdistanced Duane Walter Tuesday night for the Republican 2nd District nominations for state representative.

With more than half the precincts reporting from Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane County reporting, Friedland had an overwhelming 12,766.5 total, while Stanley ran a strong second with 8,140.5 votes, easily bettering Walter's 5,495.5 vote total.

Stanley, 32, the Hanover Township Republican committeeman, and Walter, 50, Winfield Township Republican committeeman, were vying for the Republican spot which will be vacated with the retirement of State Rep. Leo LaFleur.

Friedland, 38, of South Elgin, has served 8 years in the state House and was the big victor in the three-way race for two Republican spots on the November ballot.

FRIEDLAND and Stanley will face Democrats Richard Mugalian of Palatine, the district's other incumbent, and William Sarto of Elgin for the district's three representative seats in the fall contest.

As expected, Friedland scored decisive support in most of the splintered four-county area encompassed in the 2nd District. In his home area of Elgin Township, Friedland totaled a stunning 9,115.5 votes to Walter's 942 and Stanley's 2,590.5.

"The days of the party bosses in the 2nd District are over and the days of geography are over," Stanley said Tuesday night. "I think from now on people will consider the candidate and not the geography."

HIS STATEMENT was a reference to Palatine Township Republican Organization officials' decision not to endorse Stanley because they said DuPage County, Walter's area, should have district representation.

Stanley said a "grassroots" organization of some 400 workers, coupled with the support of homeowners' associations and civic groups helped secure his victory.

He also called Palatine Township, where he won 3,268.5 votes to Walter's 1,988 votes, "a key township."

Friedland was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

WALTER BLAMED a light voter turnout in DuPage County in part for his defeat. "No votes, that's what did me in," he said Tuesday night.

His campaign workers also cited what they termed a bad ballot position for Walter's poor showing.

Friedland's vote total was strong in most areas, but was most dramatic in Elgin and Palatine Townships. In Palatine Township, Friedland's total vote reached 4,567.4. Walter ran third in the township, despite the backing of the township Republican organization.

540 complaints reported of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 150 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Means said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Means said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with

LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

Village withholds ruling on joining lake water unit

Palatine officials will withhold a decision whether to join SHARE, a group of five Northwest suburbs working to get Lake Michigan water to the suburbs, until more information about the organization is obtained.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig was instructed by the village board to continue attending SHARE meetings and keep the board informed about the group's activities.

SHARE, which includes Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, is seeking $5,000 contributions from other villages that want to join the group.

SHARE, which was organized through meetings with village managers of each town, is attempting to obtain Lake Michigan water for the suburbs, Harwig said. The group differs from DAMP, an organization including Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine, because SHARE is not established by state statute.

DAMP, WHICH has been in existence for more than 15 years, seeks to construct an independent water pipeline system to Lake Michigan to provide water for its four members, who in turn can sell water to other suburbs, Harwig said.

Harwig added that DAMP has been seeking an allocation of Lake Michigan water through the Cook County Circuit Court rather than purchasing water from Chicago. SHARE seeks Lake Michigan water, even if it must be purchased from Chicago.

Harwig said he has tentatively planned to include the $5,000 membership cost in the 1976-77 budget for officials to discuss during upcoming budget talks.

Harwig will attend a SHARE meeting Thursday and report back to the board.

Judge sets Meadows manager vote June 12

by JERRY THOMAS

A Rolling Meadows city manager referendum will be held June 12.

Cook County Circuit Judge Harry Comerford Monday set the referendum date during a hearing to consider possible challenges to petitions requesting the referendum.

The petitions were filed Feb. 20 by Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer. There were no challenges brought against the petitions, which contain approximately 440 signatures.

Meyer's petitions blocked an attempt by the city council to hold a referendum April 3 that would have asked residents to approve establishing a city manager-council form of government and continuing to elect two aldermen from each ward.

AFTER MEYER vetoed the council's referendum action, he filed petitions to add a third referendum question asking residents if one instead of two aldermen should be elected from each of the city's five wards.

Aldermen had opposed including the controversial question on council size because they said it was unnecessary.

"I'm pleased. Now it will be up to the residents to decide the size of the city council," Meyer said. "If they feel two aldermen from each ward is what they want, they can vote 'yes' to that question, but if they want only one from each ward they can vote that question."

"The aldermen's referendum gave the residents no other choice if they said they did not want the council to remain the same," Meyer said.

In Schaumburg singles bar case

Ex-bouncer's testimony sought

by PAT GERLACH
A former employee of B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, will be subpoenaed to testify when a hearing by the Schaumburg Liquor Commission into alleged beatings at the club continues March 25.

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessell agreed Tuesday to continue the hearing to allow Harry Frossard, a former bouncer at the club, to be subpoenaed. Also expected at the hearing is Jay Heckman, who with Anthony Pauletto and Danny Seraphine, a drummer with the rock group "Chicago," own B'Ginnings.

The hearing is being held to determine if the club's liquor license should be suspended.

SIX PERSONS, one a Schaumburg police detective, testified March 5 that they were physically mistreated by Frossard and other doormen at the club. Pauletto, an attorney, presented the club's defense Tuesday and also testified he sent written codes of conduct to employees in December after several incidents came to his attention during a telephone conversation with Police Chief Martin Conroy.

"I instructed our employees to use restraint, common sense and a little class in dealing with patrons who were first to exhibit force when asked to leave the club," Pauletto said.

In other testimony, club manager Dino Kolletis said he "put to work" several minors who, have visited the club before its 8 p.m. opening time. The youths were given jobs cleaning table tops and mirrors "because I'm kind, and I was kind to every kid who came in, and I knew some of them couldn't go home until school was out at 3 p.m.," Kolletis said.

KOLLETIS ALSO said salesmen and other adults occasionally bring their children into the club to see it during nonbusiness hours.

He estimated monthly business attendance at between 9,000 and 12,000 persons.

B'Ginnings, a singles bar, opened in July 1974. Kolletis has been manager since July 1975.

Within five days after the hearing concludes, Kessell must decide if the club's liquor license should be suspended. Kessell, as village president, also serves as village liquor commissioner.

Clavey asks aid in freedom search

The campaign by Lake County Board Member Glenn Miller to have Orville Clavey released to stand trial included the release of a letter from Clavey to Miller this week.

Miller, of Long Grove, has been writing congressmen to get support for Clavey's release from a federal psychiatric institution in Springfield, Mo.

Clavey was sent to the institution on March 3, after a panel of federal Appellate Court judges ruled that he was unfit to stand trial. Court-appointed psychiatrists had testified earlier he was depressed and unable to aid in his defense.

Clavey, a former Lake County sheriff, is accused of extortion and income tax evasion in connection with an alleged shakedown of the Cheetham II Tavern in Half Day.

MILLER, A PERSONAL friend of Clavey's, has launched a campaign for Clavey's release. Miller noted that Clavey has not been convicted of any crime, and wants to stand trial as soon as possible to clear himself.

Clavey's letter in part read, "I am in a cell 6' x 12', with a small bowl and toilet, and a window which looks to the next building. We are allowed no towel so I use toilet paper to keep clean. I have soap, and that helps, and we shower and shave every Saturday and Wednesday, at least that is the days so far."

Clavey said he spent most of his time reading the Bible, talking to the chaplain and praying. "By the mercy of God and the continuance of your labors on my behalf, I pray we will bring this nightmare to speedy conclusion," the letter said.

Head lice under control in Dist. 21

A head lice problem in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 appears to be under control although nurses are continuing periodic checks of students.

An outbreak of head lice was originally reported in September at Field School, 51 St. Armand La., Wheeling. Field School nurse Audrey Stanowski said about 40 cases were found by December.

Mrs. Stanowski said in the last check conducted in January, only one new case of lice was found. No new cases have been reported since then, and another check will be made at the end of March. Mrs. Stanowski said Monday.

Head lice are small gray parasites causing chronic itching of the scalp and are easily transferable through contact with combs, hats and bedding.

Parents have been asked to continue checking their children for lice, Mrs. Stanowski said.

Ford beats Reagan; Carter over Wallace

by KAREN BLECHA
JILL BETTNER
JOE SWICKARD

President Gerald Ford won his fifth straight primary and Jimmy Carter crushed George Wallace Tuesday in the Illinois primary.

With 55 per cent of precincts in Illinois counted, Ford had 219,688 or 60 per cent of the vote to Ronald Reagan's 45,894 or 39 per cent. Incomplete tallies showed Ford winning in all of the five townships in the Northwest suburbs, what was expected to be, a Reagan stronghold in Illinois and home of many of his campaign managers.

In the Democratic "beauty contest," Carter was the big winner, capturing his second victory over Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Sargent Shriver, who hoped for a resurgence of his campaign with this primary, showed a poor third and said while he will remain in some upcoming primaries he said he considered himself out of the race.

With 55 per cent of state precincts in, Carter had 346,848 or 48 per cent of the votes, Wallace had 190,787 votes or 27 per cent, Shriver had 124,080 votes or 17 per cent and Fred Harris had 56,212 votes or 8 per cent.

With most votes counted, Carter was winning big in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Figures for Elk Grove, Maine and Wheeling townships were unavailable.

In the race for convention delegates with 19 per cent of precincts reported, Ford had won 58 delegates of the 96 Republican delegates and Reagan 12. Carter won 53 of the 155 Democratic delegates, Wallace 6.

Voters picked 72 delegates committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, who while declining to run, permitted delegate slates to be entered in his name. The apparent purpose is to enable the organization Democrats, led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, to go to the Kansas City convention with a delegation for bargaining.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's Illinois campaign manager, predicted Ford would win with 62 per cent of the race. Reagan, declaring he would not pull out of the campaign, said he still had a 50-50 chance of winning the GOP nomination. His campaign workers at midnight were still predicting the former California governor would win 40 per cent of the vote.

FORD WAS THE winner in Palatine

and Elk Grove townships and leading 2 to 1 in Wheeling Township with most votes counted. The closest race in the Northwest suburbs appeared to be in Schaumburg Township, home base for State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a Reagan campaign manager. However, early tallies showed Ford in the lead there and in Maine Township.

"I'm very encouraged and we all should be," Ford said. "Kansas City (Continued on Page 3)"

Howlett on top; Walker closes gap

by JACK PENCHOFF
WANDALYN RICE
and
KURT BAER

Michael Howlett, the apparent victor Tuesday night in his bid to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Dan Walker, said early today he will go to work to "unite all the people in Illinois."

In a statement at 1 a.m. to a crowd of his supporters at the Bismark Hotel, in Chicago, he said his first job will be to "unite the Democratic party in Illinois."

Walker, who refused to concede defeat before going to bed at midnight, had earlier said he would support Howlett in November if he won the primary.

With 57 per cent of the vote counted, Howlett was ahead of Walker early Wednesday by more than 96,000 votes.

Howlett grabbed a quick lead in the race by capturing a 3-1 lead in Chicago, but trailed in almost all the counties Walker carried in 1972.

Walker officials at campaign headquarters announced their candidates would not have statements until later today.

"We're still picking up votes downstate. We've told our people to stay in the precincts," a Walker spokesman said.

"Mr. Howlett puts a great premium on courtesy. The courteous thing to do is wait for the other man to concede," a Howlett spokesman said. "If the other guy gets unreasonable, however, then we'll go ahead."

In the Northwest suburbs the race was close with Walker leading at midnight in Schaumburg and Palatine Townships and Howlett ahead in Maine Wheeling and Elk Grove townships with more than 30 per cent of the vote counted.

Walker won all five townships by more than 16,000 votes against former Lt. Paul Simon in the 1972 primary.

HOWLETT SUPPORTERS began celebrating an apparent victory about 9 p.m. after Howlett seized his quick lead, but as returns came in from downstate precincts, Howlett aides announced their candidate would not make an appearance until Walker conceded defeat.

Walker aides, however, said the race was not over, and predicted it would continue through the night until the final outcome is known.

Walker's vote tally, however, surpassed the rest of his "team," who all suffered defeat in their bids for statewide office on the Walker ticket.

Other Democrats who won places on the statewide ticket for the November general election were incumbent Neil Hartigan, lieutenant governor; State Sen. Pres. Cecil Partee, attorney general; Michael Bakalis, state comptroller; and Alan Dixon, secretary of state.

HARTIGAN, 37, DEFEATED Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joanne Alter, who was endorsed by Walker. Hartigan won the Democratic bid in 1972 after running opposed to Walker's running mate in the primary. He has been at odds with the governor since his election, criticizing Walker for leaving him outside of state matters. He also blames Walker for the state's fiscal problems.

Partee, 54, defeated Walker-endorsed Ronald Stacker for the attorney general bid. Partee is the first black man to win a major party nomination for statewide office in Illinois.

Partee, a 20-year veteran of the legislature, had come under fire during the campaign for allegedly owing $50,000 in back real estate taxes, but he denied the allegations. He was a (Continued on Page 2)

Thompson shoo-in with 87% of vote

by CLARISSE RITTER
and LYNN ASINOF

James Thompson, former U.S. attorney who short-circuited Mayor Daley's machine with numerous key convictions, Tuesday paved the way for a difficult November battle by smashing winning Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. Thompson projected an 86 per cent victory statewide.

In the Northwest suburbs, Thompson led with 90 per cent of the vote at midnight, leading in all five townships. Thompson led in Cook County with 86 per cent of the vote.

"Hang in there, there's a new day coming when you can be proud of your government again," Thompson told a cheering crowd packed into his campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Thompson praised Cooper for the "positive and responsible" campaign he had run.

SPEAKING FROM his home, Cooper conceded the race, saying he would support Thompson in November. He summed up his defeat by saying there were "no sour grapes" on his part, adding he felt there was little voter concern for issues and much concern for images.

At 11:30 p.m., Thompson's running mate for lieutenant governor remained undecided, with St. Clair County Sheriff Dave O'Neal, 38, leading Metropolitan Sanitary District Comr. Joan Anderson, 50, of Western Springs, with 50.7 per cent of the state vote.

O'Neal led in all five Northwest suburban townships with 64 per cent of the vote at midnight. O'Neal said he was confident he would bring strength to a Thompson-O'Neal ticket because he is the only candidate of the four running for the state's two top offices who hails from outside Cook County.

At Thompson's victory celebration, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., summed up the lieutenant governor's race by saying the party "can't lose with either one of the two who are running. What a wonderful ticket."

Real victor in Tuesday's election is Richard J.

Joe Diaz is my friend downtown at the Pickwick Lounge in the Chicago and North Western Ry. station.

He's wise about Chicago, where a certain mayor reputedly controls everything from ward votes to bubblegum and rock candy sales.

Joe drove a cab for years. Now, he tends bar at the Pickwick. You should listen when Joe talks about Chicago and people. He's usually right.

And nevermore than Tuesday afternoon when just about everyone had the same question in mind. Would it be Walker, or would it be Howlett?

PERHAPS WE should have known when late afternoon newspapers reported that 92.8 per cent of all Chicago ballots were cast in the Democratic primary.

That was Richard J. Daley's "Machine" cranking out votes. And they were the votes which made Daley candidate Michael J. Howlett an apparent victor over incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker, who is certainly a shattered politician.

So Joe was right again.

"Walker could be a great guy," Joe said late Tuesday afternoon when the polls were still open and everything you said was only conjecture.

"The thing is, he's changed so much. If he'd just turn around and say, 'Fellows, I made a few mistakes,' things wouldn't be so bad."

WELL, IT WAS difficult for Daniel Walker Tuesday. But that is the price everyone sooner or later pays when they go against Mayor Daley.

On Wheeling Twp. vote

Schlickman wins, Pullen leading

and TOM WELLMAN

Incumbent State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights gained Republican renomination last night in the Fourth Legislative District and it appears his running mate will be Penny Pullen of Park Ridge.

With approximately two-thirds of the votes tallied, Schlickman had gained 8,143 to lead the ticket.

In a narrow race for the second spot, Pullen pulled ahead of Roy H. Bergquist of Niles, 5,684 to 4,741. However, the majority of votes in Niles Township had not been reported.

Schlickman, who has served six terms in the Illinois General Assembly, gained renomination with a strong showing in his native Wheeling Township.

With approximately 36 of 47 precincts reporting, Schlickman had rolled up 3,491 votes, compared to 862 for Bergquist and 961 for Pullen.

Schlickman said he was especially pleased by the victory in his home township:

"Wheeling Township carried me magnificently. I wish there were more townships like Wheeling."

He added: "I spent less mental effort on this one and relied more on the efforts and actions of others. I would like to have run stronger in Maine Township. That was a disappointment. It's an area I will be concentrating on in the general election."

In Maine Township, with approximately 50 per cent of the votes tallied, Pullen had 2,357 votes, 400 more than Schlickman and 450 votes ahead of Bergquist.

Only scattered returns from six of 50 precincts in Niles Township were available, and they showed Bergquist with 163 votes and Pullen with 105.

Pullen, who lives in Park Ridge and has served as a legislative assistant to the late State Rep. Robert Juckett, said she was pleased with her strong showing in Maine Township.

"I'm better organized than any one else," she said. "If this keeps up, we'll be fine."

Running behind the three top vote-getters were Anne E. Marzullo of Niles, with 2,015 votes, and Gerald M. Rubin of Skokie, with 1,000 votes.

Young gets victory in 10th Dist. race

Republican Samuel H. Young was the apparent victor in Tuesday's 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod with 48 per cent of the vote. With about 63 per cent of all precincts reporting, Young had 14,248 votes, to Hales' 11,093 and Nimrod's 4,315. Both Hales and Nimrod conceded the election and promised to support Young in his effort to unseat Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Graham wins renomination

Incumbent State Sen. John Graham easily won renomination Tuesday night for another term, defeating challenger Terry Ayers by a near 2-1 margin. Graham bested Ayers in most townships reporting late Tuesday night and had a total vote of 4,999 to Ayers' 2,665 with most of Cook DuPage and parts of Kane county counted. Ayers, a Bloomingdale Township auditor competing in his first state-wide race, said he campaigned hard but failed to score well in Bloomingdale and Elgin townships where he had campaigned heavily. "There's not one thing I could have done more," Ayers said. Graham called his victory a sign that voters were "in agreement" with his political record.

Friedland, Stanley win

John Friedland, Republican incumbent, and newcomer Roger C. Stanley, scored big victories Tuesday night to capture state representative nominations in the 2nd District Republican race. Friedland, who has served 8 years in the state house, had an overwhelming 12,766.5 vote total Tuesday night with most precincts in Cook and DuPage counties and parts of Kane county reporting. Stanley's total of 8,140.5 easily outdistanced Duane Walter's 5,495.5 total to give Stanley the second Republican spot in the November general election. Stanley will replace State Rep. Leo LaFleur, the district's other Republican who is retiring. Friedland's biggest vote totals came in his home Elgin area, where he bettered Stanley and Walter by a 3-1 margin, and in Palatine Township.

Egan, Findley lead

In the two contested Cook County races, candidates backed by Mayor Richard J. Daley appeared to be winning easy victories over opponents supported by Gov. Daniel Walker. With about 38 per cent of the precincts reporting in the Cook County, former Illinois Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan had received 225,481 to 73,450 for Donald Page Moore in the race for Cook County State's Attorney. Unofficial reports in the race for Clerk of the Circuit Court showed incumbent Morgan Findley running up a 3-1 margin over Leonard Nowakowski.

leader in the unsuccessful effort to override Walker's school aid vetoes last fall.

He was endorsed by Mayor Daley and will face incumbent Republican William Scott in the general election.

BAKALIS, 37, OF Downers Grove, defeated Roland W. Burris for the state comptroller's nomination. Bakalis was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1970.

The position was made appointive by the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, and since the end of his term in early 1975 he has been chairman of an independent educational improvement committee. He has taught at Northern Illinois University and Northwestern University.

He was a member of the state central committee slate headed by Howlett and backed by Daley. He blames Walker for the state's financial problems, charging Walker with using budgeting "sleight of hand" to conceal the worsening state fiscal picture. Bakalis will face incumbent Republican George Lindberg in the November general election.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, another Daley-backed candidate, easily defeated freshman State Sen. Vince Demuzio for the secretary of state Democratic bid.

Dixon, 48, of Belleville, was the first regular Democrat to announce he would run against Walker but changed his mind when party regulars threw their support behind Howlett. He will face Republican William Harris of Pontiac, who ran unopposed in the GOP primary in the general election.

IT WAS EUGENE Schlickman's night in the Fourth District race. The long-term state legislator swamped his four opponents and will be listed first on the general election ballot in November.

Young triumphs in 10th District

by GERRY KERN
LINDA PUNCH
and
JOE FRANZ

Republican Samuel H. Young Tuesday was the apparent victor in the 10th Congressional District GOP primary, leading a three-man field with about 48 per cent of the vote.

With 334 of 529 precincts reporting, Young, a 53-year-old Glenview attorney, turned back challenges from Daniel B. Hales and State Sen. John J. Nimrod for the right to face Democratic incumbent Rep. Abner J. Mikva in November.

Young was leading with 14,248 votes to 11,093 for Hales, a Winnetka attorney, was trailing badly with 4,315 votes. The vote totals gave Young 48.1 per cent to Hales 37.4 and Nimrod's 14.6.

THE 10TH CONGRESSIONAL district reaches from Des Plaines to the lakeshore, and includes Evanston, New Trier, Northfield, Niles and Maine townships.

Obviously pleased by the election results, Young called for Republicans to close ranks behind him to defeat Mikva.

"I want to extend a hearty welcome to Dan Hales and John Nimrod and their supporters to join the Young campaign for a unified and enthusiastic march to a November 2 Republican victory," Young said in his victory speech. "We intend to field a well-organized effort to elect a congressman the 10th District can believe in."

Although the vote tallies were incomplete, Hales conceded the election and promised to support Young in his efforts to unseat Mikva.

"While the results could turn around, such a reversal would be unlikely," Hales said. "When I started this campaign I had the goal of getting Mikva out of office. I haven't lost sight of that goal. I will work for Mr. Young in that manner."

Nimrod showed up at Young's campaign headquarters at the Glenview Country House Restaurant, Glenview, to congratulate the apparent winner.

"You've got a big job ahead of you," Nimrod said. "I'll help you. You know that."

Young's apparent primary victory gives him the chance to reclaim the seat he lost to Mikva in 1974. It will be the third consecutive election since 1972 that Young and Mikva, a liberal Democrat, have appeared opposite one another on the ballot. Mikva was unopposed in Tuesday's primary.

540 complaints reported of voting irregularity

by JOHN MAES

More than 540 complaints of voting irregularities throughout Cook County Tuesday were received by the state's attorney's office shortly after the polls closed Tuesday night.

Assistant State's Atty. Richard Means, who heads a complaint bureau for the office, said 70 complaints came from suburban polling places, many concerning electioneering. There also were a number of voting machine breakdowns reported in the suburbs as well as in Chicago.

In many of those cases, voters did not use the machines properly, he said.

A SECURITY force of more than 600 prosecutors and police swept through the city and suburbs checking complaints and visiting polling places.

The force included assistant state's attorneys, prosecutors from the U.S. and Illinois Attorney General's offices, along with a number of county sheriff's deputies and 180 state troopers. Tuesday was the first time state police have participated in election security, Mean said.

In Chicago, several reports of vote buying were being investigated, but Mean said no arrests had been made.

"We may very well develop something later," he said.

An election judge affiliated with

LEAP (Legal Elections in All Precincts), an election watchdog group, had to be ejected from a 27th Ward polling place, 150 S. Campbell Ave.

The woman, Cornelia Baldwin, reportedly had argued several times with Democratic judges over assistance to voters, many of them senior citizens. Police were considering a disorderly conduct charge against the woman.

MORAG FULLILOV, a LEAP poll watcher there, said the arguments were sparked by "overzealousness" on the part of the judge and whether the voter aide was "legitimate."

Several investigators were called to the scene and a Chicago policeman, acting as a security guard, said he had to step between the bickering judges several times during the day.

Reports of election judges withholding paper ballots from some voters led U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner's office to inspect several polling places on Chicago's North and South sides.

There also were hundreds of reports of electioneering in the city.

A spokesman for U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said the federal government will subpoena 24 voting machines in the 1st Congressional District on Chicago's South Side to investigate reports of voting irregularities.

An American from Ecuador

Prospect High School's foreign exchange student this year from Cuenca, Ecuador says he is an American. Not a United States citizen, but an American, nevertheless.

The question, "How do you like America?" bothers Thelmo Tapia.

"He insists, 'I come from South America and we consider ourselves Americans. You are simply North Americans.'"

At any rate, Thelmo likes it in North America. He is in Mount Prospect through the American Field Service winter program and lives with the John Welles' family at 616 S. Edward St. He arrived in August and will leave in July.

Thelmo has three "sisters" at the Welles'. In Ecuador, he has seven sisters and three brothers. Thelmo is eighth in the line.

THE VISITOR particularly enjoys the tranquility of the Mount Prospect community.

"My home is in the heart of Cuenca and it is noisy there," he explains. "We don't have the large grassy yards and spacious homes you have."

Thelmo really got acquainted with grassy yards last fall. He mowed the Welles' lawn.

"It was my very first experience with a lawnmower," he said. "And I have to admit I enjoyed it."

The change of seasons has been interesting for Thelmo. It is always warm in Ecuador.

Distances and time seem to be different at Thelmo's two "homes."

"In Cuenca," the AFS student said, "we walk and get places on our own. Here it seems like everything is far away and it is always necessary to drive."

"Also, people here seem very time-conscious and keep looking at their watches."

THELMO LOVES CHICAGO. He finds it a fascinating city and jumps at every opportunity to visit its many attractions.

The South American is a slight young man with large brown eyes and olive skin. Shiny black hair frames a perpetually smiling face.

Thelmo's English is excellent and only occasionally does he need help to find a particular word. He already has graduated from high school at home but he is considered a senior at Prospect this year. He will enter college upon his return to his homeland. He plans to become a doctor and may specialize in, as he puts it, "cutting" (surgery).

Thelmo's high school in Cuenca is for boys only and has 800 students. He enjoys having girls in the classroom now, he admits. He thinks North American girls are a bit noisier and more independent than South Americans.

Thelmo plays guitar and sings. He danced in Prospect's recent production of "Oklahoma!" and reports he had a ball doing it.

UNITED STATES food goes over well with the Ecuadorian.

"The biggest difference in food is that we have rice with every meal and you only have it occasionally," he noted.

Thelmo is surprised at the quantity of sweets eaten here.

AFS students are available for appearances before clubs and organizations. Thelmo Tapia is a charming young man who would be an addition to any program. Call Lorraine Shaler at 255-3262 to make arrangements.

Public hearing planned

Dist. 26 to close 1 grade school

The River trails Dist. 26 Board of Education Tuesday night approved an administrative plan to cut 21 teachers, increase class size and close one elementary school.

None of the district's five elementary schools was singled out for closing late Tuesday. Board members were discussing criteria on which to make the decision.

The plan calls for an increase of average class size from 20 to 26 students, with no class under 20 students and none to exceed 28.

THE CUTBACK IN teachers was 3.5 more than originally projected by district officials.

Board member William Haase said the school district stands to save about $300,000 by implementing the plan. Without increases in local taxes and state aid, the district will face bankruptcy by the 1977-78 school year if spending remains at the same level as this year.

Board Pres. Leora Rosen said the plan calls for dropping 1.5 teachers in music and physical education, 4.5 teachers at the junior high school level, 14 teachers at the elementary school level and one teaching consultant.

Mike Gibler, a member of the teachers' union negotiating team, said the union will have no immediate comment on the cuts.

Haase termed the plan a "most workable, reasonable solution" to the financial problems facing the district. "We are not creating anything grotesque," he said.

"It is the least lousy way to deal with the problem. The issue is clearly not one of what is desirable," he said.

"We're talking about the best available solution that does not affect the education process," he said. "This does not affect a single elementary school program."

SUPT. JOHN Fridlund said the plan was compiled by individual school administrators and that it was a "building-level decision."

Fridlund said the plan was based on a 26-student-per-class ratio and on the fact that one elementary school would be closed.

Mrs. Rosen said after the board had decided on the criteria for choosing a school to be closed, informational pamphlets would be distributed to district residents. She said residents would be invited to attend a public hearing to voice their views. The hearing date will be announced later.

Author's at peace when he writes about his home

by DIANE MERMIGAS

James Alexander Thom is doing what he loves most: writing about the people and lifestyle of his southern Indiana homeland.

But the town of Gasport, his birthplace with a population of 400, is a long way from Mount Prospect where Thom has done much of his freelance writing, including a 24-page photo-feature in this month's National Geographic on "Indiana's Self-Reliant Uplanders."

Thom, 42, returned home last spring to do the story and spent several months living and talking with the simple, self-supporting people of the Indiana uplands south of Indianapolis.

HE DESCRIBES the blacksmiths, craftsmen, hunters and homemakers of the region in colorful stories.

These timeless people continue plowing by horse, woodcarving and garden tending like their ancestors who migrated from the South in the early 1800s.

These are the people who once paid Thom's parents, a medical team in the area, with cattle and bushels of vegetables in exchange for health care, he said.

The land there is rich with forests and limestone and the people are rich in spirit.

"Most of my adult life I have lived in cities, writing about the complexities and anxieties of modern society. Now and then I need to return to these old uplands where I was born and raised because here, time seems to pause and let me think," Thom writes in his recent article.

THOM ABRUPTLY gave up a job with the Indianapolis Star in the mid-1960s to become a freelance writer.

He also gave up his position as senior editor of the revived edition of the Saturday Evening Post in 1971-72 in addition to his financial writing for the Wall Street Journal. He no longer writes speeches for businessmen and politicians.

However, he remains editor of "Nuggets," a philosophical, literary monthly magazine, and looks forward to the publication of his first book, "Let the Sun Shine In" later this year. He called his first book an "upbeat, common sense approach to living the good life" and "living like the rich without having to be one," he said.

But, a novel he currently is working on will be far different from this first book, "and an effort to capture the character and philosophy" of his people.

THE MOST THAT Thom asks from life is to someday be able to build his own home in the Indiana uplands and to be a successful novelist.

He says he is "semi-contented" in the Northwest suburbs, but adds he would not be here if it weren't for the work of his wife, Cody Sweet, a non-verbal communications expert and lecturer.

Thom said the Indiana upland dwellers are inspiring to him; they have made him realize the most important things in life are simplicity and honesty.

"No matter what goes on with the rest of the world, I know from talking to those people that they will always get along. And they have more happiness and laughter than any of the rich people I know," Thom said.

Thom said he is concerned only with the tales of the "plain" and "common" people.

"I think that's what writing is all about. The novelist writes about people who are experiencing things in the world, hoping to help others understand life a little better," he said.

"When I was younger, I wanted to be a forester. But when I returned home from the Korean War, there were some things I wanted to write down, and I haven't stopped writing since."

Prospect gains $1,500 in Bicentennial grants

The Prospect Heights Bicentennial Commission has received $1,500 in grants to support its activities this summer.

The Illinois Bicentennial Commission has awarded a $500 grant to the city to help finance entertainment June 4, 5 and 6 when Bicentennial activities are scheduled, said Lynn Klotz, chairman.

Wheeling Township also has awarded $1,000 to the city which will pay for entertainment and an Indian crafts and artifacts display, she said.

The city's Bicentennial commission is planning a parade Friday night June 4, a funfair and a dance Saturday June 5, and an arts and crafts show and entertainment Sunday June 6.

Mrs. Klotz said the commission has a total of about $2,100 to finance Bicentennial activities, "which will be just about enough."

She said entertainment for the weekend will include a performance of country and western music by Robert Alcher, former Schaumburg mayor, and his family.

Prospect Heights was recently designated as a Bicentennial city by the Illinois Bicentennial Commission. Residents of the new city will celebrate their recent incorporation and their Bicentennial status at a dinner-dance May 14 at the Arlington Park Towers, Arlington Heights.

Tickets are $25 per couple and can be purchased by calling Mrs. Klotz, 255-9678.

Dist. 57 won't rehire 11 teachers this fall

Eleven teachers in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 have been notified that they will not be rehired this fall.

The reduction of 11 teaching positions is caused by a decline in enrollment. The teachers who were notified were not tenured, and most are first- and second-year teachers. If the district receives resignations from other staff members for the 1976-77 school year, some of the teachers who were notified may be rehired.

The district is required by law to notify teachers that they will not be rehired at least 60 days before the end of the school year. The Dist. 57 Board of Education called for the notification at its meeting Monday night.

Trustees mull library meeting site

Mount Prospect officials are studying the pros and cons of moving village board meetings to the newly completed public library, Central Road and Main Street.

Trustees Michael H. Minton and Theodore J. Wattenberg said they are unhappy with the president board meeting room at 112 E. Northwest Hwy., citing uncomfortable audience seating, raised seating for board members and poor acoustics.

Minton said advantages of using the new library include a larger seating capacity, elevators, underground parking, better ventilation and nearby rest rooms.

"It would also increase the use of the new $4 million public library," Minton said.

If the library decides to charge rent or make other adjustments in its budget, it might create a financial disadvantage. Minton said he plans to look into this possibility.

The new library now under construction is scheduled for completion in the fall.

An 8.2% increase

Record $15.2 million budget approved by city

Des Plaines officials have approved a record-setting budget of $15.2 million for 1976-77, an increase of 8.2 per cent over last year.

The budget, which takes effect May 1, was approved unanimously by the city council Monday night.

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, chairman of the city council's finance and insurance committee, said officials are attempting to hold the line on spending to ensure a balanced budget. The committee trimmed more than $500,000 from the budget requests of the city's department heads, but still surpassed last year's budget of $14.1 million.

THE BUDGET, BOLEK said, does not provide for new programs or the hiring of new employees.

He said it has escalated to a record-high figure primarily because of the rising cost of materials and labor, increases in employee salaries and the amount of money the city must pay into employee pension funds.

The budget provides for employee pay raises May 1, but officials have not revealed the amount because contract negotiations between the city and its police, fire and public works unions still are in progress.

The city granted its 400 employees a 6.5 per cent increase in salary and fringe benefits last year.

Although spending will increase, Bolek said recent tax hikes will bring in the needed revenue, and further increases will be unnecessary.

THE CITY WILL receive additional revenue from increases in garbage pickup fees, liquor licenses, vehicle license transfers, licenses for some trucks, water and sewer tap-on fees and property taxes.

The city also is expected to receive additional state income and sales and property tax revenues this year.

The city is considering several money-saving measures in 1978, including a proposal to reduce the city's work force and revise employee salary scales. City officials are awaiting the report of a consulting firm hired to study the matter before taking action.

Foes won't halt creek upgrade: state

The state will proceed with a $200,000 improvement program for McDonald Creek in Mount Prospect, despite some residents' refusal to grant temporary easements along the creek.

Leo M. Eisler, director of the state division of water resources, said Tuesday new calculations show failure to get these easements will have only a small impact on the over-all project.

"There is really a negligible increase in the water surface profile because of the deletion of that portion," Eisler said.

Fifteen residents along the creek refused to grant the temporary easement, saying they feared it would cause bank erosion.

A contract for the project has been awarded by the state to Bongi Carriage Co., for $197,961, a few hundred dollars below the state engineering estimates. Eisler said work on the project probably will begin around April.

"I WOULD hope the contractor would get in there as soon as the weather dries out a little bit," Eisler said. "We'll finish the project before September because that is when the contract runs out."

The project as now designed will include the widening and dredging of McDonald Creek south of Foundry Road to the Des Plaines River. The state will clear the creek and creek banks of any underbrush and obstructions to the water flow north of Foundry Road to the Soo Line R.R. culvert.

Eisler said the year-old culvert at the Soo Line tracks, built to relieve flooding upstream, will not be opened until the project is completed.

"We're just very anxious to provide the relief from flood damage to the upstream property owners which they have waited so long for without doing damage to the downstream people," he said.

THE IMPROVEMENTS are designed to protect downstream residents from possible flooding caused by increased water flow when the new culvert is opened.

The village had been asked to assume maintenance of the creek once improvements are completed, but rejected the original contract proposed by the state. Eisler said this is not a major stumbling block to the project.

"We'll have to sit down with the village," Eisler said.

'Goodwife' to visit Eisenhower School

The Philadelphia Goodwife will visit Eisenhower School today to acquaint children with family life in America during the 1770s.

Mary Alice Helms portrays the goodwife, explaining meals, manners, clothing, home activities, occupations, schooling and life in a big city. Mrs. Helms, who appears in costume, uses posters and props in her presentation.

The program is sponsored by the Eisenhower School PTA. The school is located at Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.
